FICTION HIGHLIGHTS

HUNTERS IN THE DARK

LAWRENCE OSBORNE

JANUARY 2016

Fiction
Hogarth; Hardcover
Rights: World

“A modern Graham Greene... Osborne is a thrilling, exceptional talent .”

—Sunday Times (UK)

Lawrence Osborne’s newest novel is a tour-de-force set in contemporary Cambodia that recalls Graham Greene, Paul Bowles and Ian McEwan in its brilliant atmosphere, tautly wound narrative and indelible characters.

When Robert Grieves crosses the Thai-Cambodia border, he is simply a lone, aimless traveler: a British English teacher in his early thirties, abroad on holiday with no particular destination in mind. But when he unexpectedly wins a large sum of money at the gambling table, his fate becomes intertwined with the lives of a cast of others: people who are strangers to him now but whose choices will affect his future in surprising – and often dangerous – ways.

Simon Beaucamp, a dashing expat American, asks Robert to join him at his lavish riverside home and introduces him to Sothea, his beautiful and reserved Khmer girlfriend, and though Simon’s motives are unclear, Robert can’t help but be taken in by the American’s elegance and generosity. What follows is a sophisticated game of cat and mouse, where identities are blurred, greed trumps kindness, and karma ruthlessly has its way with everyone involved. Filled with Hitchcockian twists and turns, suffused with the steamy heat and pervasive superstition of the Cambodian jungle, and unafraid to confront uneasy questions about destiny, luck, and the machinations of fate, HUNTERS IN THE DARK is a masterful novel that feels like an instant classic.

After stunning readers and reviewers alike with the sneakily suspenseful, darkly tense novel The Forgiven in 2012, and following up with the deceptively slender, Graham Greene-esque The Ballad of A Small Player in 2014, Lawrence Osborne is poised to break into international literary stardom with this masterful novel that feels like an instant classic.

Praise for The Ballad of a Small Player

“A vivid and feverish portrait of a soul in self-inflicted purgatorio.”—Tom Shone, New York Times Book Review

“Elegantly told... The beauty of this novel is in the elegance and precision of its prose, which renders the glaring kitsch of Macau into a series of exquisite miniatures, and draws on Osborne's reserves as a travel writer.”—The Guardian (UK)

Sold to Hogarth UK. They will release their edition in May 2015.

Lawrence Osborne is the author of The Forgiven, The Ballad of a Small Player, and six books of nonfiction, including The Wet and the Dry. He has written for the New York Times Magazine, The New Yorker, New York Times Book Review, Forbes, Harper's, and several other publications.

THE TSAR OF LOVE AND TECHNO

ANTHONY MARRA

OCTOBER 2015

Fiction, Short Stories
Hogarth; Hardcover
Rights: World

From the author of National Book Award longlist selection and New York Times bestseller A Constellation of Vital Phenomena come these dazzling, poignant, and lyrical interwoven stories about family, sacrifice, the legacy of war, and the redemptive power of art.

This exquisitely written collection introduces a cast of remarkable characters whose lives intersect in ways both life-affirming and heartbreaking. A 1930s Soviet censor painstakingly corrects offending photographs, deep underneath Leningrad, bewitched by the image of a disgraced prima ballerina. A chorus of women recount their stories and those of their grandmothers, former gulag prisoners who settled their Siberian mining town after their release. Two pairs of brothers share a fierce, protective love. Young men across the former USSR face violence at home and in the military. And great sacrifices are made in the name of a pastoral landscape painting completely unremarkable except for the almost incomprehensibly peaceful past it depicts. In stunning prose, with remarkable character portraits and a sense of history reverberating into the present, The Tsar of Love and Techno is a captivating work from one of our greatest new talents.

Selected Praise for A Constellation of Vital Phenomena

“A flash in the heavens that makes you look up and believe in miracles.... At the risk of raising your expectations too high, I have to say you simply must read this book.” –Ron Charles, Washington Post

“Extraordinary....[A] 21st-century War and Peace....Marra seems to derive his astral calm in the face of catastrophe directly from Tolstoy.” –Madison Smartt Bell, New York Times Book Review

“A Constellation of Vital Phenomena is ambitious and intellectually restless....[Marra is] a prose writer who resembles the Joseph Heller of Catch-22 and the Jonathan Safran Foer of Everything Is Illuminated.” –Dwight Garner, New York Times

“In exquisite imagery, Marra tends carefully to the twisted strands of grace and tragedy....Everything in A Constellation of Vital Phenomena...is dignified with a hoping, aching heartbeat.” –Ramona Ausubel, San Francisco Chronicle

Anthony Marra is the author of the New York Times bestseller A Constellation of Vital Phenomena, 2014 winner of the National Book Critics Circle's inaugural John Leonard Prize; Anisfield-Wolf Book Award in fiction; Carla Furstenberg Cohen Fiction Award; and Indies Choice Award for Adult Debut. A 2014 National Book Award long list selection, Constellation was also a finalist for the 2014 PEN/Robert W. Bingham Award for Debut Fiction; the 2013 Flaherty-Dunnán first novel prize; the 2014 Young Lions Fiction Award; and the 2014 Medici Book Club Prize. Marra received an MFA from the Iowa Writers' Workshop and was a Stegner Fellow at Stanford University, where he now teaches as a Jones Lecturer in Fiction.

THE LIBRARY AT MOUNT CHAR

SCOTT HAWKINS

JUNE 2015

Fantasy
Crown; Hardcover
Rights: World

"The most genuinely original fantasy I've ever read. Scott Hawkins plays with really, really big ideas and does it with superb invention, deeply affecting characters, and a smashing climax I did not see coming. Don't miss this one. There is nothing else like it."—Nancy Kress, Hugo and Nebule Award-winning author of Beggars in Spain and Flashpoint

"Part magical fantasy, part high-stakes heist, The Library at Mount Char is the kind of story that keeps yanking you off in ridiculous new directions every time you think you know what's coming next. It's funny, horrifying and original enough to make you wonder what the hell you just read."—David Wong, New York Times bestselling author of John Dies at the End and This Book is Full of Spiders

"Funny, bizarre, moving, frightening, and surreal. Don't pick up this book unless you want to read something you've absolutely never read before. The most original work I've read in ages!"—Walter Jon Williams, New York Times bestselling author of Dread Empire's Fall and Destiny's Way

Neil Gaiman meets Joe Hill in this astonishingly original, terrifying, and darkly funny contemporary fantasy.

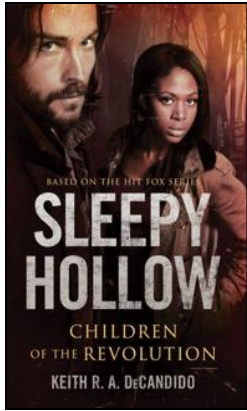

Carolyn's not so different from the other human beings around her. She's sure of it. She likes guacamole and cigarettes and steak. She knows how to use a phone. She even remembers what clothes are for. After all, she was a normal girl, once. That was a long time ago, of course--before the time she calls "adoption day," when she and a dozen other children found themselves being raised by a man they learned to call Father. Father could do strange things. He could call light from darkness. Sometimes he raised the dead. And when he was disobeyed, the consequences were terrible.

In the years since Father took her in, Carolyn hasn't gotten out much. Instead, she and her adopted siblings have been raised according to Father's ancient Pelapi customs. They've studied the books in his library and learned some of the secrets behind his equally ancient power. Sometimes, they've wondered if their cruel tutor might secretly be God.

Now, Father is missing. And if God truly is dead, the only thing that matters is who will inherit his library--and with it, power over all of creation.

As Carolyn gathers the tools she needs for the battle to come, fierce competitors for this prize align against her. But Carolyn can win. She's sure of it. What she doesn't realize is that her victory may come at an unacceptable price--because in becoming God, she's forgotten a great deal about being human.

Scott Hawkins lives in Atlanta with his wife and works as a software engineer for Intel.

THE MARAUDERS

TOM COOPER

February 2015

Fiction, Crime
Crown; Hardcover
Rights: World

"The Marauders is so damned good you won't believe it's a first novel...and by the time you reach page 20, you won't care. It's rollicking, angry, eye-popping, and fall-on-the-floor funny, sometimes in the course of a single scene. The cast is winning, the post-Katrina bayou setting is richly evoked, the dialogue crackles, and the story rolls on a wave of invention. It's a little Elmore Leonard, a little Charles Portis, and very much its own uniquely American self. Basically, Tom Cooper has written one hell of a novel." —Stephen King

This dark, strange, and wickedly funny debut crime novel with shades of Carl Hiaasen and Elmore Leonard is set in a small Bayou town that has recently been devastated by an oil spill. The desperate circumstances push the lowlifes who inhabit the town to enact whatever risky schemes they can to reverse their fortunes. At the center of it all is Gus Lindquist, a pill-addicted, one-armed treasure hunter obsessed with finding the lost treasure of pirate Jean Lafitte. His journey brings him into contact with a wide array of memorable characters, including a couple of small-time criminals prone to some truly hysterical banter, the smooth-talking oil company middleman out to bamboozle his own mother, and some psychotic drug smuggling twins who could have walked in off the set of Breaking Bad. Initially, the narrative threads seem entirely distinct, but as the story progresses, the connections become clearer, the tension and action ramp up, and everything begins to come together. THE MARAUDERS is part pulp fiction and part Southern gothic swamp noir. It's a literary beach read that's compelling, sad, dark, funny, relevant, and meaningful.

Tom Cooper has been published in dozens of literary magazines and journals. His stories have been four times nominated for the Pushcart Prize. He lives in New Orleans.

For fans of Rhys Bowen, Susan Elia MacNeal, and Jacqueline Winspear, a historical mystery featuring the witty and wily Mary Handley, the first woman detective in New York City, as she tries to prove herself in a man's world while solving a high-profile murder.

Mary Handley is a not your typical late nineteenth-century lady. She's fiery, witty, daring--and she has a foul mouth that makes her mother cringe. Just days after being fired from her job at the hat factory for insubordinate behavior, she finds herself at the murder scene of Charles Goodrich, the brother of a prominent alderman and a former employee of Thomas Edison. When Mary proves her acumen as a sleuth, she is hired by the Brooklyn police department to solve the crime. As she delves into the mystery, she finds herself questioning the likes of J. P. Morgan, Thomas Edison, and Nikola Tesla. Mary quickly realizes there is much more at stake than justice, and that catching the killer will be impossible unless she can find Charles Goodrich's journal.

This is a fantastically fun debut with winning and colorful characters, witty dialogue, and the fast-moving plot make for a page-turning historical mystery. Also to note, this has been optioned by Warner Brothers for a television series.

Lawrence H. Levy is an award-winning writer for television and film. This is the first of a two-book deal. The second novel will also feature Mary Handley.

PETER CLINES

Fiction, Action & Adventure

Crown; Hardcover

Peter Clines, author of the Ex-Heroes series, takes a step away from zombies and superheroes and brings us a brilliantly twisty, turny supernatural mystery.

The folks in Marco Leland's small New England town would say he's just your average, everyday guy. And that's just how Marco likes it. Sure, the life he's chosen may not be much of a challenge to someone with his gifts, but Marco is content with his quiet and peaceful existence. That is, until an old government friend presents him with an irresistible mystery--one that Marco seems uniquely qualified to solve: it seems that a team of DARPA scientists has invented a device that could make teleportation a reality. But something is very wrong with the project. The personalities of the scientists who work on it are changing. People are dying. And reality itself seems to be...warping. Marco soon learns that the machine is not at all what it appears to be--and that its creators may have opened a doorway to something horrible that lurks just outside our world's borders.

Clines is an absolute master when it comes to plot, and he outdoes himself here, first presenting us with a mystery so seemingly inexplicable that we just have to keep reading, then hitting us with one shocking reveal after the next.

Peter Clines has published several pieces of short fiction and countless articles on the film and television industries, as well as the novels Ex-Heroes, Ex-Patriots, Ex-Communication, Ex-Purgatory and 14. He lives and writes in southern California.

SPINSTER: A Life of One's Own

KATE BOLICK

April 2015

Social Science
Crown; Hardcover
Rights: World

Kate Bolick, who wrote the 2011 cover story in The Atlantic called “All the Single Ladies,” is like a number of single women we know: unmarried, divorced or widowed. Women today are turning their backs on hearth and home—adopting a fly by the seat of their pants lifestyle that may or may not bring them the happiness they seek. But if Kate Bolick’s original and bold book proves anything, it is that single women are on to something, and there is a reason we are curious about what they do with themselves and who they think they are. The book Kate Bolick is writing, like the article that inspired it, offers an unconventional answer to some pesky, common questions lobbed at women: when are you going to get married? Or, do you see children in your future?

Instead of offering yet another statistic-packed, anecdote-rich socio-cultural exploration of this recent demographic feature of the way we live today, Kate has done something more daring and emotionally rewarding: she takes us deep inside her own imagination and life and introduces us to the writers—all women, most single for the majority of their lives—whose careers, personal lives and most important art have guided her in her own personal search for another way to live. You will recognize the names of some of these writers and artists, many born in the 19th century:

Edna St. Vincent Millay (who was sent to Europe by Vanity Fair in exchange for satirical essays and where she had adventures and dalliances), Edith Wharton (who moved with her wealthy family to Europe to avoid the Reconstruction period), and others you might discover for the first time like Ganna Walks (Polish, but born in Belarus), Neith Boyce, Elsie de Wolfe and several others, all of whom lived lives of shocking modernity.

This chorus of esteemed bachelorettes is brought to us through the story of Kate’s own single life, which she explores through the city that made her an adult: New York. She doesn’t shy away from sex, from morning-after regrets, from talking about women and, oh my god the only thing worse than not having a man, ambition and from discussing why even the idea of an adult woman living alone—in spite of the millions who are doing it—still provokes debate. This book is also shot through with a love story to bad boys, you know the ones who are great to date if not to usher in forever.

Kate Bolick’s book is the story of a woman’s coming of age by herself. It is also the story of a woman learning to live by herself, on her own terms, by her own wits and under her own house rules. .

Kate Bolick is a contributing editor to The Atlantic. She was previously the culture editor to Veranda magazine. She lives in New York.

AVENUE OF SPIES

A True Story of Terror, Espionage and One American Family's Heroic Resistance in Nazi-occupied Paris

ALEX KERSHAW

August 2015

History

Crown; Hardcover

Rights: World

The best-selling author of The Liberator brings to life the incredible true story of an American doctor in Paris, and his heroic espionage efforts during the Second World War. The leafy Avenue de Foch, one of the most exclusive residential streets in Nazi-occupied France, was Paris's hotbed of daring spies, murderous secret police, amoral informers, and Vichy collaborators. So when American physician Sumner Jackson, who lived with his wife and young son Phillip at Number 11, found himself drawn into the Liberation network of the French resistance, he knew the stakes were impossibly high.

Just down the road at Number 31 was the "mad sadist" Theodor Dannecker, an Eichmann protégé charged with deporting French Jews to concentration camps. And Number 84 housed the Parisian headquarters of the Gestapo, run by the most effective spy hunter in Nazi Germany. From his office at the American Hospital, itself an epicenter of Allied and Axis intrigue, Jackson smuggled fallen Allied fighter pilots safely out of France, a job complicated by the hospital director's close ties to collaborationist Vichy.

After witnessing the brutal round-up of his Jewish friends, Jackson invited Liberation to officially operate out of his home at Number 11--but the noose soon began to tighten. When his secret life was discovered by his Nazi neighbors, he and his family were forced to undertake a journey into the dark heart of the war-torn continent from which there was little chance of return. Drawing upon a wealth of primary source material and extensive interviews with Phillip Jackson, Alex Kershaw recreates the City of Light during its darkest days. The untold story of the Jackson family anchors the suspenseful narrative, and Kershaw dazzles readers with the vivid immediacy of the best spy thrillers. Awash with the tense atmosphere of World War II's Europe, AVENUE OF SPIES introduces us to the brave doctor who risked everything to defy Hitler.

Our publication will coincide with the 75th Anniversary of the fall of Paris in June 1940 and the 70th anniversary of the end of the war in Europe. AVENUE OF SPIES is currently being developed for television.

Alex Kershaw is the New York Times bestselling author of several books on World War II, including, The Liberator, The Bedford Boys and The Longest Winter. He lives in Willamstown, Massachusetts.

AFTER THE LIGHTS GO OUT

TED KOPPEL

October 2015

Political Science

Crown; Hardcover

Rights: World

America's most trusted broadcast journalist uncovers the deadly threat of cyber warfare and offers solutions for how we can prepare.

When we think of cyber security, many of us think about identity theft or perhaps denial of service attacks. What we don't think about is the water we drink, the electricity we rely on to power everything from subway trains to lifesaving hospital equipment, and the phone and internet systems that serve as vital lifelines in an emergency. One well-placed cyber attack could cripple our infrastructure to a degree that would dwarf natural disasters like Hurricane Sandy--and Koppel convincingly argues that this is not a question of if but when.

Drawing on interviews with cyber security experts and others, Koppel demonstrates that we are completely unprepared for dealing with a cyber attack and offers solutions for how we can plan for this inevitability, both on the national and the individual level.

With the recent revelations about massive breaches of information from hackers in countries like North Korea and Russia, this topic is ever more important, and Koppel, one of the most trusted newsmen and respected across political spectrum, is just the person to give us this wake up call.

Ted Koppel, a thirty-seven-year veteran of ABC News, was anchor of Nightline from 1980 to 2005. He has won every significant television award, including thirty-two Emmys, six Peabodys and nine Overseas Press Club Awards. Before creating Nightline, he was a foreign, domestic, and war correspondent and bureau chief for ABC, and its chief diplomatic correspondent.

OBJECTIVE TROY

SCOTT SHANE

September 2015

Political Science
Crown; Hardcover
Rights: World

This is the gripping story of the high-stakes cat-and-mouse game between President Obama and Anwar al-Awlaki, US citizen and most-wanted terrorist.

In 2000, the CIA realized that their surveillance drones could be weaponized, thus changing the game of warfare as the world has always known it. In OBJECTIVE TROY, Scott Shane, national security reporter for the New York Times, tells the riveting story of the advent of the drone, tapping his unparalleled access to the top sources in the intelligence community, the armed force, and the Obama administration whose military policies have come to be defined by this lethal homing weapon.

The larger narrative of the drone era is anchored by the immense, frantic manhunt for Anwar al-Awlaki, the first US citizen to be deliberately targeted for assassination by his own government. As far as the President was concerned, terrorist leader Awlaki had declared war on America and America had, in turn, declared war on him. Awlaki (code named "Objective Troy") evaded Obama's efforts for a year and spent that time taunting the President--mocking him online, and falsifying terrorist threats against Obama's native Chicago. Shane writes a white-knuckled, thrilling account of how Obama finally cornered Awlaki, while exposing a new type of warfare that has profound, lasting implications that extend well beyond the military and leak into our everyday lives.

The drone wars continue to dominate headlines and, sadly, the conflicts in the regions targeted by the US show no signs of abating. The stakes for this kind of warfare couldn't be higher--and raise issues of government surveillance, increasingly complex weapon technology, and unclear oversight. This highly relevant topic is of great importance today and Scott Shane, who has deep access to hard-to-reach sources, is the veteran journalist to tell it.

Scott Shane is a national security reporter for the New York Times, where he has worked for over a decade. He is based out of Washington, DC.

HEADSTRONG: 52 Women Who Changed Science--and the World

RACHEL SWABY

April 2015

Science

Broadway Books; Trade Paperback Original

Rights: World

Fifty-two insightful and inspiring profiles of history's brightest female scientists and mathematicians.

In March 2013, the New York Times published an obituary for Yvonne Brill. It began: "She made a mean beef stroganoff, followed her husband from job to job, and took eight years off from work to raise three children." It wasn't until the second paragraph that readers discovered why the Times had devoted several hundred words to her life: Brill was a brilliant rocket scientist who invented a propulsion system to keep communications satellites in orbit, and had recently been awarded the National Medal of Technology and Innovation.

The obituary--and consequent outcry in response--highlighted not only that women in science are often treated with less respect than their male counterparts, but also that there are still so few women in the STEM fields (science, technology, engineering, and medicine). This is in part because they are lacking the critical encouragement and support they need to help them advance.

HEADSTRONG delivers a powerful and entertaining response to the question: Who are the role models for today's female scientists? Covering Nobel Prize winners and major innovators, as well as lesser-known but hugely significant scientists who influence our every day, these engaging profiles span centuries of courageous thinkers and illustrate how each subject's ideas developed, from their first moment of engagement with science through the research and discovery for which they're best known. Finally, it gives these 52 lives the attention and respect they deserve--with the aim to encourage and inspire a new generation of girls to put on their lab coats.

Some of the featured scientists are:

- Austria: Lise Meitner explained uranium fission.
- China: Chien-Shiung Wu disproved what was thought to be a fundamental law of physics.
- Denmark: Inge Lehmann discovered the earth's inner core.
- England: Ada Lovelace wrote the very first computer program.
- France: Irene Joliot-Curie won the Nobel prize in chemistry for the discovery of the first artificially produced radioactive element.
- Germany: Maria Mayer won a Nobel prize in physics for "discoveries concerning nuclear shell structure"
- Italy: Rita Levi-Montalcini won a Nobel Prize for discovering growth factors.
- Russia: Sophie Kowalevski was a pioneering mathematician. She opened a new area of research in theoretical mathematics.

RAIN: A Natural and Cultural History

CYNTHIA BARNETT

April 2015

Science/Cultural history

Crown; Hardcover

Rights: World

For readers of Michael Pollan and Susan Casey's The Wave, a natural history of rain, told through a compelling, lyrical blend of science, cultural history, and human drama. It is the subject of countless poems and paintings; the top of the weather report and the cause of catastrophic floods; the source of all the world's water. Yet this is the first book to tell the story of rain.

Cynthia Barnett, a science journalist, begins 4 billion years ago with the torrents that filled the oceans to transform a fiery planet into a living one. It explains the science of it--the physics of a rainbow, the true shape of a raindrop--while weaving in the human history, from ancient rain gods and divining rods to modern floodwalls and geo-engineering. RAIN is also a love story. For centuries, people have tried to summon it, Thomas Jefferson was obsessed with it, and in these pages, Barnett makes it almost palpable.

RAIN is not only a journey through history but also a travelogue, taking readers to Scotland to tell the story of the mackintosh raincoat and its eccentric inventor, and to India, where villagers extract the scent of monsoon rains and turn it into perfume. Barnett sees rain, from the increasingly severe storms that unleash it to the life-giving freshwater it provides, as a unifying force in our divided culture. Too much and not nearly enough, churning in hurricanes or frozen into icy "snowmagedons," rain is a conversation we share, and this is a book for everyone who has ever experienced it.

Cynthia Barnett is a long-time environmental and science journalist who has reported on water from the Suwannee River to Singapore. She is the author of Mirage, which won the gold medal for best nonfiction in the Florida Book Awards and Blue Revolution, which was named by the Boston Globe as one of the top 10 science books of 2011. She lives in Florida.

Forty-three men have served as President of the United States. Countless books have been written about them. But never before has a president told the story of his father, another president, through his own eyes and in his own words.

A unique and intimate biography, 41: A Portrait of My Father covers the entire scope of the elder President Bush's life and career, including his service in the Pacific during World War II, his pioneering work in the Texas oil business, and his political rise as a congressman, U.S. representative to China and the United Nations, CIA director, vice president, and president. The book shines new light on both the accomplished leader and the warm, decent man known best by his family. In addition, George W. Bush discusses his father's influence on him throughout his own life, from his childhood in West Texas to his early campaign trips with his father, and from his decision to go into politics to his own two-term presidency.

THE HAREM
LESLIE CAMHI
September 2015

Biography
Crown; Hardcover
Rights: World

On a cloudy June morning in 2008, the cream of the international fashion world and French politics assembled at the Église Saint-Roch in Paris to bid farewell to Yves Saint Laurent, the preeminent designer of the later 20th century, whose work had accompanied, as a fellow traveler, the great changes unfolding in women's lives in his era. Today, some six years after his death, interest in Saint Laurent, his life and his legacy, continues to grow.

THE HAREM approaches his story through the lives of seven women who served as inspiration for him. They range from public faces of the house, such as Catherine Deneuve and Loulou de la Falaise, to icons of style, such as Talitha Getty, to friends and intimates, such as Betty Catroux and Paloma Picasso, to his adoring mother Lucienne Mathieu-Saint-Laurent.

Through this mosaic a portrait emerges of a man of multiple contradictions, whose relentless work ethic was coupled with a drive for escape and self-destruction; an exhibitionist who (scandalously) posed naked to advertise his first men's cologne, yet shrank from the inquiries of journalists; the young prince of fashion, an intensely modern designer, yet still in the grip of past obsessions, who controlled the workings of a multi-billion-dollar enterprise with his weaknesses, and who seemed to grow old overnight. Over one hundred original interviews conducted over four years of research in locations ranging from Paris and London to Tangiers and Marrakech contribute to this archaeology of both style and of changing mores between men and women, and between the gay and straight worlds.

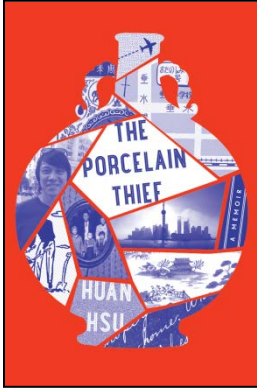

Leslie Camhi is a leading cultural journalist based in New York whose essays have appeared in the New York Times and Vogue, among other publications and whose travel writing has been widely anthologized. The Harem is her first book.

THE PORCELAIN THIEF

Searching the Middle Kingdom for Buried China

HUAN HSU

March 2015

Autobiography
Crown; Hardcover
Rights: World

Huan Hsu, a first-generation Chinese American, returns to China to discover the fate of his great-great-grandfather's long-buried porcelain collection and, in the process, unearths the key to understanding his family's history over the past one hundred years of Chinese history

In the tradition of the best works of history that uncover a forgotten family story, such as The Hare with Amber Eyes or The Lost, THE PORCELAIN THIEF recounts journalist Huan Hsu's journey through the old and new worlds of China to find hidden treasure, reconnect with his ancestry, and come to terms with his hyphenated identity.

In 1938, when the Japanese arrived in Hsu's great-great-grandfather's Yangtze River hometown of Xingang, the family was forced to bury their valuables, including a vast and prized collection of antique porcelain, and to flee on a decades-long trek that would splinter the family over thousands of miles and countless upheavals. In 2007 Hsu, raised in Salt Lake City and armed with mere strands of a family legend, moves to China to work in his uncle's semiconductor chip business and begins to understand his family's history as he never has before. A conversation with his grandmother, the last living link to his family's life in dynastic China, ignites his desire to learn more about not only his ancestral heirlooms but also porcelain itself. Mastering conversational Chinese enough to launch himself into the countryside, Hsu sets out to separate the layers of fact and fiction that have grown up around both his family and China, and finally complete his family's long march back home.

Melding memoir, travelogue, ethnography, and social and political history, THE PORCELAIN THIEF takes the reader along with Hsu as he travels throughout mainland China and Taiwan to learn more about his family's fabled porcelain collection and, as a result, about the great-great-grandparents and estranged aunts and uncles he never knew. THE PORCELAIN THIEF is an intimate and personal way to understand the bloody, tragic, and largely forgotten events that defined Chinese history in the 19th and 20th centuries.

Huan Hsu, born in the Bay Area and raised in Salt Lake City, is a former journalist and the recipient of two Society of Professional Journalists Awards as well as receiving recognition from the Casey Foundation for Meritorious Journalism. His essays and fiction have also appeared in Slate, The Literary Review, and Center: A Journal of the Literary Arts. He currently lives in Amsterdam and teaches writing at Amsterdam University College.

THE REAL DOCTOR WILL SEE YOU SHORTLY
How Physicians Are Made in One Terrifying, Inspiring Year

MATT MCCARTHY

April 2015

Autobiography

Crown; Hardcover

Rights: World

Medical school may teach you medicine, but—unfortunately for patients—the only training for being a doctor is on the job. Matt McCarthy’s funny, candid memoir about his intern year at a New York hospital is a scorchingly frank look at how doctors are made, taking readers into the critical care unit to see one burgeoning physician’s journey from ineptitude to competence.

After his professional baseball career failed to launch, McCarthy went to Harvard Medical School and on to a coveted residency slot in New York. But after almost losing a patient on his first day, he found himself facing the harsh reality of a new doctor’s life—one in which even overachievers find themselves humbled, and in which med school training has little to offer in navigating the emotional rollercoaster of dealing with actual patients.

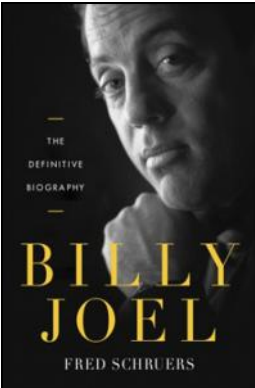

Luckily for McCarthy, his second-year-resident adviser was an offbeat genius with a knack for breaking down the complicated process of treating patients. But neither doctor can offer much help to a patient named Barney, who had been living in the hospital while waiting for a new heart, and whom McCarthy slowly befriended over the course of the year in ways that changed his perception of what it means to be a physician. Mixing tense drama and screwball humor, McCarthy offers a window to hospital life that dispenses with sanctimony and self-seriousness while emphasizing the black-comic paradox of becoming a doctor: How do you learn how to save lives in a job where there is no practice? This will inspire and entertain physicians and patients alike.

Matt McCarthy is an assistant professor of medicine at Weill Cornell Medical College and an assistant attending physician at New York–Presbyterian Hospital. He has a degree from Yale and a medical degree from Harvard. His work has appeared in Sports Illustrated and The Atlantic. His first book, Odd Man Out, was a New York Times bestseller.

SUPER GENES

DEEPAK CHOPRA and TANZI, RUDOLPH

November 2015

Neuroscience/Healthy Living

Deepak Chopra; Hardcover

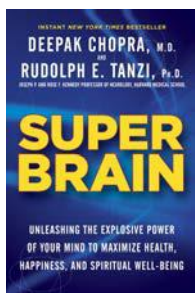

Rights: World

In SUPER GENES cutting-edge science and spiritual wisdom converge to present a bold new understanding of our genes and how changes in lifestyle can not only benefit our genetics but help lead us to happier, healthier and more fulfilling lives. "You are not simply the sum output of your genome," writes Deepak Chopra and Rudy Tanzi, "you are the user and inventor of your genome." This revolutionary idea is at the heart of the new book from the bestselling authors behind Super Brain (Harmony 2012). For years it was accepted knowledge that genes were fixed components of our bodies, and that we as individuals were incapable of altering our genetic make-up. Yet, groundbreaking research suggests something else, that a change in lifestyle and diet can greatly influence our genetic predispositions to disease and certain physical and psychological behaviors. Moreover, the adoption of ancient Vedic practices like yoga and meditation create genetic mutations that allow us to lead longer and healthier lives. SUPER GENES will be a follow-up to the highly successful Super Brain picking up on the same ideas. It will feature some breathing and meditation exercises as well as information on how to manage risk factors for disease.

Rudolph E. Tanzi, PhD, is the Joseph P. and Rose F. Kennedy Professor of Neurology at Harvard University, and Director of the Genetics and Aging Research Unit at Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH). Dr. Tanzi co-discovered the first Alzheimer's disease gene and several others, as head of the Alzheimer's Genome Project. He is the co-author of the book Decoding Darkness: The Search for the Genetic Causes of Alzheimer's Disease.

Deepak Chopra is the author of more than 65 books translated into more than 35 languages—including numerous New York Times bestsellers in both the fiction and nonfiction categories. Dr. Chopra is a fellow of the American College of Physicians, a member of the American Association of Clinical Endocrinologists, adjunct professor at the Kellogg School of Management, and a senior scientist with the Gallup Organization. He is founder and president of the Alliance for a New Humanity. Time magazine heralds Deepak Chopra as one of the top 100 heroes and icons of the century and credits him as "the poet–prophet of alternative medicine."

THE FUTURE OF GOD

A Practical Approach to Spirituality for Our Times

DEEPAK CHOPRA

November 2014

“The Future of God is a much-needed book. Chopra convincingly exposes the limitations, arrogance and intellectual blindness of the 'new atheists'. He recognizes that unbelief has a role to play, but he also shows how to go beyond the atheists' narrow dogmatism to a far richer experience and understanding of reality.” -- Rupert Sheldrake, PhD, author of Science Set Free.

Chopra offers new and provocative ways to understand God and nature of belief in the 21st century. Over the last five years Chopra and Richard Dawkins have been in heated debates over God, science, and the future of mankind. Chopra wants to address arguments of overzealous atheism. The book isn't just a discussion over belief systems, it's a stirring call to action for all of us to reevaluate how we look at and live with God in our lives

REJECTION PROOF

How I Beat Fear and Became Invincible, One Rejection at a Time

JIA JIANG

April 2015

Self -Help/Empowerment/Happiness
Harmony; Hardcover
Rights: World

REJECTION PROOF is the highly entertaining and inspiring account of Jia Jiang's effort to conquer his fear of rejection. Jia Jiang came to the United States from China with the dream of being the next Bill Gates. But despite early success in the corporate world, his first attempt to pursue his entrepreneurial dream ended in rejection. Jia was crushed, and spiraled into a period of deep depression. He realized that his fear of rejection was a bigger obstacle than any single rejection would ever be, and he needed to find a way to cope with being told no without letting it destroy him. He started the "100 days of rejection" experiment during which he willfully sought rejection on a daily basis--from requesting a lesson in sales from a car salesman (no) to asking a flight attendant if he could make an announcement on the loud speaker (yes). He learned that even the most preposterous wish may be granted if you ask in the right way, and shares the secret of successful asking, how to pick targets, and how to tell when an initial no can be converted into a yes. But more important, he learned techniques for steeling himself against rejection and ways to develop his own confidence.

A cross between A. J. Jacobs's funny narrative voice and Susan Jeffers's dynamic wisdom and self-empowerment, REJECTION PROOF is a fun, thoughtful examination of how to overcome our fears and dare to live more boldly. The "100 days of rejection" project has so far garnered 6.5 million page views on YouTube and been the basis of a blog attracting 55,000 people monthly, and Jiang's TED Talk has received over 180,000 views.

JIA JIANG is founder of the popular blog and video series 100 Days of Rejection. His story has been covered by dozens of news outlets, including Bloomberg Businessweek, Yahoo News, The Huffington Post, Forbes, Inc.com, MTV, Gawker, the Daily Mail, Fox News, and CBS's The Jeff Probst Show. A native of Beijing, China, Jiang came to the U.S. as a teenager to pursue his dream of becoming an entrepreneur. Jiang holds an MBA from Duke University and a bachelor's degree in computer science from Brigham Young University

LEAP WITHOUT A NET

Leaving a Job with No Plan B

TESS VIGELAND

August 2015

Self-Help/Personal Growth
Harmony; Hardcover
Rights: World

This is an account of Tess Vigeland's experiences walking away from the security of a so-called dream job and recalibrating our notions of what makes us important, what makes us valuable, and what role work plays in both of those things. Until recently, Tess Vigeland was the longtime radio host of NPR's Marketplace; it was a rewarding, high-status job, and Tess was very good at it--but she'd begun to feel restless. Without any definite, clear sense of what she wanted to do next (but an absolute certainty that what she'd been doing was no longer truly satisfying), she walked away from a job that millions of people would kill to have and into a vast unknown.

And in the process, Tess Vigeland, created a personal and well-researched account of leaping without a net that will appeal to the multitude of people who change jobs mid-career (by choice or circumstance), to the growing legions of freelance workers, and to the entrepreneurially minded who see self-employment as an increasingly more viable option. LEAP WITHOUT A NET is part memoir and part field guide and offers a funny, thoughtful, and provocative look at how to find happiness, satisfaction, and success when pursuing a career less ordinary. When Tess spoke to more than 3,000 people at the World Domination Summit, she was one of the only speakers to receive a standing ovation. Tess is not a typical self-help author promising an easy path to success. Rather, she's questioning the way our society defines success to begin with.

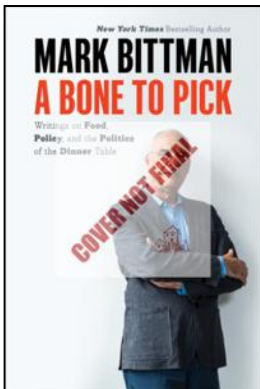

Tess Vigeland was the host of National Public Radio's Marketplace from 2006 to 2012. She now spends her days pursuing what matters to her--speaking, writing, connecting with her fans, and gardening.

WHAT TO EAT WHEN YOU'RE PREGNANT

How to Support Your Health and Your Baby's Development During Pregnancy

DR. NICOLE M. AVENA

June 2015

Health & Fitness/Pregnancy and Childbirth
Ten Speed Press; Trade Paperback Original
Rights: World

A trimester-by-trimester guide to what to eat--as opposed to what to avoid--while pregnant and nursing, to support the mother's health and the baby's development during each stage of pregnancy, with 50 recipes. Pregnancy has traditionally been viewed as a time when women can give in to their food cravings and not worry about their weight. But new research suggests that the foods women eat during pregnancy can have a lasting effect on the baby's brain development and behavior, as well as the mother's waistline. While many books tell women what not to eat, there are few guides that tell women what to eat while also considering that hormonal influences during pregnancy can make it difficult to stick to a healthy diet. More and more women enter pregnancy overweight, gain an unhealthy amount of weight while pregnant, then struggle to lose the "baby weight" after the baby is born. Drawing on the latest research from the fields of medicine, nutrition, and psychology, this guide gives moms-to-be a clear understanding of what their bodies really need and how those foods contribute to the development of healthy and happy babies.

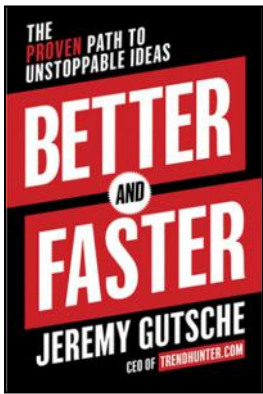

Dr. Nicole M. Avena is a research neuroscientist at the New York Obesity Research Center at Columbia University; an expert in the fields of nutrition, diet, and addiction; and the co-author of Why Diets Fail: Science Explains How to End Cravings, Lose Weight, and Get Healthy. She received a PhD in neuroscience and psychology from Princeton University, followed by a postdoctoral fellowship in molecular biology at The Rockefeller University in New York City. Her research has been featured in Shape, Men's Health, Glamour, Details, Women's Health, Prevention, Oxygen, and Fitness, and she regularly makes public speaking appearances throughout the US, Europe, and Asia. She has written extensively on topics related to food, addiction, obesity, and eating disorders, and she writes the Food Junkie blog for Psychology Today.

thrive as an entrepreneur, innovator, or investor.

GRIT TO GREAT

How Hard Work, Perseverance, and Pluck Take You from Ordinary to Extraordinary

LINDA KAPLAN THALER & ROBIN KOVAL

October 2015

Business/Motivational
Crown Business; Hardcover
Rights: World

It is not native intelligence or natural talent that makes people excel, say Linda Kaplan Thaler and Robin Koval--it's old-fashioned sweat equity and hard work. And that claim is backed up by new research from MacArthur Fellowship Award winner and University of Pennsylvania psychologist Angela Duckworth, among others. Not everyone is blessed with exceptional intelligence, or wins the gene lottery. But the good news is that you can excel beyond your wildest dreams in your career and your personal life--success is within your grasp--through the right attitude and determination.

The authors personally know of what they are writing about. They grew up in the Bronx, with no money or connections. But through dint of hard work and perseverance, they have risen to the top of the advertising world, as CEO and president, respectively, of the Kaplan Thaler Group and Publicis US, creating and orchestrating world-famous advertising campaigns such as the AFLAC duck and Clairol Herbal Essence. In their meetings with executives from around the world, they have seen firsthand the power of grit in helping women and men advance in their careers.

In GRIT TO GREAT, they offer a rich narrative from the front lines of business on the impact determination and hard work have on getting ahead, whether you are an entry-level new hire or a seasoned veteran eager to advance your career. Written in the same entertaining and compelling fashion that made The Power of Nice a bestseller, they offer a wealth of strategies and research on how to turn potential into performance, and how to compete--and win--against anyone, no matter how smart or connected they may be. It turns out there is a secret to success--and it's one each and every one of us has complete control over. This book shows you how to really get ahead. So, let's get to work.

Linda Kaplan Thaler is CEO and chief creative officer and Robin Koval is president of The Kaplan Thaler Group, creators of pop-culture icons like the Aflac Duck. Together, they have been featured on Today, the Martha Stewart Show, and Nightline, as well as in USA TODAY, the New York Times, and BusinessWeek, among many others. They are the authors of The Power of Nice and The Power of Small.

The Power Of Nice (Crown Business, 2006) was sold to Allen & Unwin (ANZ), GMT/Sextante (Brazil), Iztok-Zapad (Bulgaria), China City Publishing (China), Art People (Denmark), Altamira-Becht (Holland), DTV (Germany), Matar (Israel), Gramedia (Indonesia), Gentosha (Japan), ChungRim (Korea), Edicoes ASA (Portugal), Planeta (Spain), Domain Publishing (Taiwan), Nation Books (Thailand), Virgin (UK), Phuong Nam (Vietnam).

THE WHO PRINCIPLE
Changing the Way We Live and Lead
THOMAS SPAULDING
September 2015

Business/Leadership
Crown Business; Hardcover
Rights: World

In THE WHO PRINCIPLE, motivational speaker Tommy Spaulding is tackling the subject of principled leadership, asking and answering such fundamental questions as Who am I, and Who do I want to serve, and How can I be a better leader? In his first New York Times bestselling book It's Not Just Who You Know, former CEO of Up with People talked about the power of relationships in getting ahead in life, stating that the secret to achieving your full potential is to reach out for the support, insight, and influence of others. In his new book, Spaulding turns his focus to ourselves -- to who we are. Genuine "Who" leadership, he says -- the kind of leadership that leads to transformational organizations -- is based on what Spaulding calls the five Who Leader qualities -- humility, vulnerability, transparency, empathy and love. And over the course of this compelling and deeply personal book, illustrated with stories of exceptional leaders, he unpacks what those qualities mean, and how to incorporate them into our careers, into our management skills and into our lives.

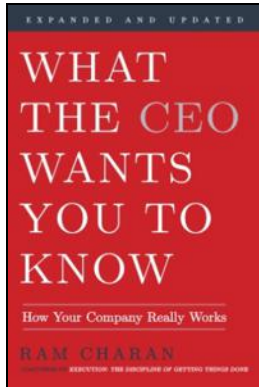

Tommy Spaulding, the founder and president of Spaulding Companies, a leadership-development consulting firm is the author of the New York Times bestselling book It's Not Just Who You Know.

FRIEND AND FOE

When to Cooperate, When to Compete, and How to Succeed at Both

ADAM GALINSKY and MAURICE SCHWEITZER

September 2015

Business/Decision-Making
Crown Business; Hardcover
Rights: World

How to improve relationships and come out on top in any interaction or negotiation at work and at home, by learning when to compete and when to cooperate - and how to do both better. Whether we're negotiating with our boss for a raise or promotion, brokering a major business deal with a client or customer, or wrangling with our spouse over who will do the dishes, we all encounter countless situations daily that prompt the question "Should I be cooperative or fight ruthlessly to get what I want?" The authors argue that this very choice is flawed and the real issue is not whether to compete or cooperate but how to balance the two in order to improve our relationships as well as getting what we want. Authors Galinsky and Schweitzer draw on original, cutting-edge research to show how to strike this balance. In the tradition of bestselling books like Predictably Irrational and Freakonomics, FRIEND OR FOE presents counterintuitive findings ranging from behavioral psychology to economics to neuroscience.

Both authors speaks frequently around the world to business and professional audiences such as Accenture, BP, the FBI, Philadelphia Federal Executive Board, the Hearst Publishing Company, the Young Presidents Organization, and more.

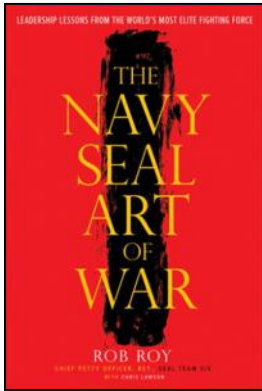

Adam Galinsky is the Vikram S. Pandit Professor of Business at the Columbia Business School. He has published numerous articles on management and social psychology and his research and insights have appeared in The Economist, The New York Times, The New Yorker, Wall Street Journal, and The Financial Times. Maurice Schweitzer is the Cecilia Yen Koo Professor of Operations and Information Management at the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. Both authors travel and lecture extensively abroad.

THE NAVY SEAL ART OF WAR

Leadership Lessons from the World's Most Elite Fighting Force

ROB ROY

April 2015

Business/Leadership
Crown Business; Hardcover
Rights: World

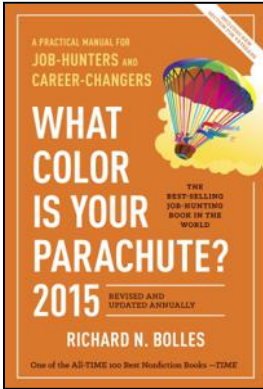

"Roy will tear you down and deprive you of everything you think is important. When he's done, you--and your company--will thank him." --Entrepreneur
"Not for the faint of heart." --Wall Street Journal

Veteran Navy SEAL officer Rob Roy shows how the battle-tested skills that enable SEAL teams to achieve the impossible can help business executives and individuals to make better decisions and get the best out of their teams when the pressure is on. Anyone can make good decisions when everything is in their favor, but in life as in war, it's in turbulent times that great leaders separate themselves. Rob Roy learned this lesson during 26 years of combat, in which the difference between life and death was his team's ability to decode complex environments, take decisive action, and seize crucial opportunities. The Navy SEAL Art of War decodes the cutting-edge leadership lessons of the battlefield for today's business leaders and individuals--how to make good decisions under pressure, how to utilize and leverage the strengths of others while minimizing the weakness of the individual or team, and how to act instead of react, anticipating events despite having minimal information and effectively communicating tasks and priorities. THE NAVY SEAL ART OF WAR FOR BUSINESS is destined to take its place aside It's Your Ship as a business classic.

In addition to a robust speaking platform, Roy has trained, and advised special-ops units around the world, including the Army Special Forces, the CIA, and SWAT teams in the U.S.; the IDF in Israel; and teams in Great Britain, Australia, Sweden, Denmark, and Thailand.

Rob Roy, Chief Petty Officer (Ret.), spent 20 years as a Navy SEAL (including service on the legendary SEAL Team Six) before founding Sot-G, an 80-hour intensive leadership course that uses military combat training to teach executives and managers the leadership skills they need to succeed in business and in life.
