THE ROANOKE GIRLS

Amy Engel
March 2017
Rights: World

Lane Roanoke is fifteen when she comes to live with her maternal grandparents and fireball cousin, Allegra, at the Roanoke family estate in rural Osage Flats, Kansas, following the suicide of her mother. Lane knows little of her mother's family, other than the fact that her mother ran away years before and cut off all contact with her parents. Allegra, abandoned by her own mother at birth and raised by her grandparents, introduces Lane to small-town life and the benefits of being one of the rich and beautiful

Roanoke girls. But there is darkness at the heart of the Roanoke family, and when Lane discovers its insidious pull she has no choice but to run, as far and as fast as she can.

Eleven years later, Lane is scraping by in Los Angeles when her grandfather calls with the news that Allegra has gone missing. "Come home," he beckons. Unable to resist his pleas, Lane returns to Osage Flats, determined to find her cousin and assuage her own guilt at having left Allegra behind all those years ago. Her return might mean a second chance with Cooper, the boyfriend whom she loved and destroyed that fateful summer. But it also means facing the terrible secret that made her flee, one she may not be strong enough to run from again.

As it weaves between the summer of Lane's first arrival and the summer of her return, THE ROANOKE GIRLS shocks and tantalizes, twisting its way through revelation after mesmerizing revelation, exploring the secrets families keep and the fierce and terrible love that both binds them together and rips them apart.

She has fans everywhere; the Facebook and Twitter posts that revealed her new jacket were seen by over ONE MILLION PEOPLE.

“One of my favorite authors since I read Waiting to Exhale in college, Terry McMillan has done it again with this one. Overflowing with her trademark heart and humor, I Almost Forgot About You will inspire you to live a little bigger. I wish Georgia weren’t fictional—I would find her and befriend her.”

—Emily Giffin, #1 New York Times bestselling author of First Comes Love and Something Borrowed

“McMillan’s narrator is the ideal running commentator on what smart women do to reach the pinnacle of success and what they must do to get the hell out before it’s too late. It’s a story about both reinvention and acceptance, told in McMillan’s quintessential voice, now even more expansive, prismatically perceptive, and laugh-aloud generous in how we talk about love and all its wonders.” -Amy Tan, New York Times bestselling author of The Joy Luck Club and The Valley of Amazement

THE DRAMA TEACHER

Koren Zailckas

July 2017

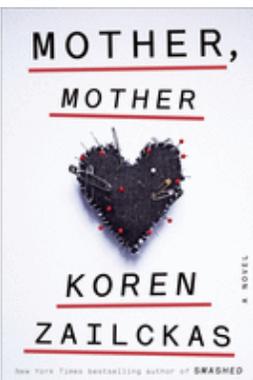

Rights: World

A twisty, compulsive new thriller featuring a deliciously devious unreliable narrator who will do anything to give her family a better life, by the New York Times bestselling author of Mother, Mother and Smashed. Gracie Mueller seems like an average person. Married, mother of two. Owns a house with her husband, Randy, in upstate New York. Life is balanced and (relatively) honest. But she has a lot to hide—she's not even a US citizen—and when Randy's failing career as a real estate agent makes finances tight, he leaves town for a better job, their home goes into foreclosure, and Gracie turns back to the creatively illegal lifestyle of her past to keep things afloat for her kids. After all, how many times can a woman lose everything?

An expert in fake identities, she becomes Tracey Bueller, who later becomes Mariana DeFelice. She's an architect and designer, a musician and an actress. After a deadly stint upstate when a friend asks too many questions, she leaves town for New York City, finding her way into the best school in Manhattan for her kids, where she gets a job as the drama teacher. But as she struggles to keep her web of lies spun taut and her secrets hidden, more questions about her past are raised. She never intended to be a cheat, a liar, a thief, or a killer; she just can't afford for anyone to know what she's done.

Written with the style, energy, and penetrating insight that made her memoir Smashed a bestselling phenomenon, Koren Zailckas' new novel confirms her growing reputation as a psychological novelist that can stand up to the best of them. You won't be able to stop turning the pages.

Koren Zailckas is an internationally bestselling writer, and has contributed to The Guardian, U.S. News & World Report, Glamour, Jane, and Seventeen magazine. She currently lives with her family in the Catskills Mountains of New York.

MEXICO

Josh Barkan
January 2017
Rights: World

A powerful, deeply original short story collection about people living in Mexico whose lives are turned upside down by the violence and chaos of the drug cartels.

The characters in Josh Barkan's remarkable story collection MEXICO are ordinary people--everyday citizens, expats, and travelers visiting the country for their own reasons--who find themselves inexorably caught up in and impacted by the criminality and brutality of the Mexican cartels. In these pages readers will meet a tourist who is kidnapped off the street, a teacher whose students risk death if they fall in love with the wrong person, a chef who must cook for a gangster under pain of death, a plastic surgeon forced to alter a fugitive drug lord's appearance, and many more compelling and memorable characters suddenly thrust into harrowing, life-changing situations. But for all that the characters in MEXICO have their lives touched by crime, these are much more than simple "crime stories." Rather, they are complicated and deeply human tales that touch on universally recognizable themes such as a parent's desire to connect with their children, an idealistic belief in young love, and the struggle to maintain faith in a world full of hardship. Josh Barkan has a keen eye for detail and an authentic sense of place, polished over many years spent living in Mexico, and he brings this world to life with uncommon grace. As extreme as the events in these stories may be, they are always grounded in recognizable and relatable human characters. Readers will see themselves in these pages, which makes the unflinching portrait of drug violence all the more powerful.

Josh Barkan's fiction has received accolades and awards from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Grace Paley Prize for Short Fiction, Paterson Fiction Prize, Juniper Prize for Fiction, and the Lightship International Short Story Prize. His writing has appeared in Esquire. He received his MFA from the Iowa Writers' Workshop and he has taught writing at Harvard, Boston University, and NYU. With his wife, a painter from Mexico, he divides his time between Mexico City and Roanoke, Virginia.

A Novel

Edan Lepucki

May 2017

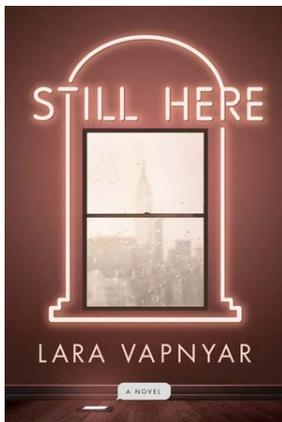

Rights: World

From the New York Times bestselling author of California, a dark, sexy noir for fans of Sue Miller, Heidi Julavits, and Vendela Vida about the intensity of female relationships—whether mother to daughter or friend to friend—that lie behind the hedgerows of beautifully manicured Los Angeles.

When Lady decided to take a break from her husband, she hires a live-in nanny, so that she can finish her book—but also so that she can possibly avoid her children. S, a young artist/student, arrives on her doorstep to interview for the job and instantly connects with both her sons, but soon begins to act in a way that causes Lady to question her reason for being there. This twisty, moody, bizarre, and confidently written second novel is a riveting exploration of female friendship that will further establish Lepucki as a major voice in literary fiction.

Praise for Edan Lepucki's California:

"In her arresting debut novel, Edan Lepucki conjures a lush, intricate, deeply disturbing vision of the future, then masterfully exploits its dramatic possibilities." -Jennifer Egan, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of *A Visit from the Goon Squad

STILL HERE

Lara Vapnyar

August 2016

Rights: World English (translation rights with Jankow & Nesbit)

A warm, ambitious, and beautifully moving novel from the writer Louis Menand calls "Jane Austen with a Russian soul."

Vica, Vadik, Sergey, and Regina are émigrés living in New York City. Each in their mid-thirties, they're old friends from Russia who've remained close, though the pressures of daily life in America bear down on them. Vica, medical researcher and mother of one, must keep her Staten Island household together while her husband, Sergey, spins through a cycle of lost jobs as an analyst, hoping his great ideas for a hot new app will someday make him rich. Regina, once an esteemed translator, is now married to a wealthy investor and spends her days holed up in a sweeping Tribeca loft, curtains drawn, watching television and eating takeout; and Vadik, ever in search of a sense of newness, works hard as a programmer to keep his new apartment, new girlfriend, and new life in Williamsburg totally pristine. When Sergey hones his app idea—he calls it "Virtual Grave," intended to give a voice to those who've died via texting and social media—it begins a formidable debate in the group, spurring questions about mortality and memory, the inevitability of death, the loss of control, and what we hope to leave behind. And as the four friends share the many rises and falls of their love lives, struggles as immigrants in a still-new city, professional fortunes, and hopes for their futures, they consider what the point of life is, each discovering a newer, fuller way to exist in the now.

An effortless and big-hearted novel about friendship, success, and connection, Lara Vapnyar's STILL HERE sets her among the ranks of today's most beloved literary storyteller.

Lara Vapnyar moved from Moscow to Brooklyn in 1994. The author of two story collections and the novels Memoirs of a Muse and The Scent of Pine.

TELL ME HOW THIS ENDS WELL

David Samuel Levinson

April 2017

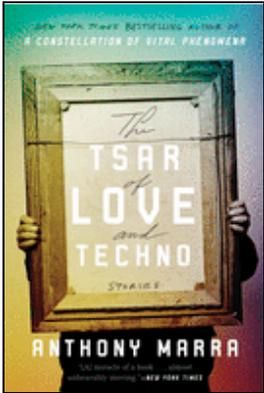

Rights: World

An ambitious, gripping, darkly funny family drama about the reckoning of three adult children with their profoundly flawed parents, set during Passover in a speculative, near-future America rife with anti-Semitism and terror, from an award winning short story writer.

In 2022, Jewish-Americans face an increasingly unsafe landscape. A flood of Israeli refugees into the country has brought deep hostilities and latent anti-Semitism to the forefront of American life. Amid this fraught climate, the Jacobson family gathers in Los Angeles for Passover, reuniting from around the world for the first time in years. But despite the backdrop of increased intolerance and terror, their immediate problems seem to be more personal than political. The family is coming apart at the seams and the three adult children, Mo, Edith, and Jacob, find themselves in various states of crisis, the result, each claims, of a lifetime of mistreatment by their hateful, undermining father, Julian. The Jacobson offspring have begun to suspect that Julian is hastening their mother Ruth's demise, and years of resentment reach a climax as the siblings debate whether they will go through with the real reason for their reunion: an ill-considered plot to murder their father and end his iron rule once and for all. That is, if they can put their bickering, grudges, festering relationships with their partners, and distrust of one another to the side long enough to act. And God help them if their mother finds out...

Darkly comic, disturbingly prescient, and incredibly accomplished, TELL ME HOW THIS ENDS WELL interweaves the stories of this very troubled family into a rare and compelling exploration of the state of America itself, asking profound, chillingly perceptive questions about where our world, country, and each of us could be headed.

THE TUNNELS

Escapes Under the Berlin Wall and the Historic Films the JFK White House Tried to Kill

Greg Mitchell

October 2016

Rights: World

On their backs with loud machines, then, as they neared the border, only picks and shovels, a band of young West Germans gouged their way beneath the Berlin Wall in 1962. The team, risking arrest or death, had arranged for a group of East German loved ones to meet them in the basement of a tenement on the East side to spirit the group under the wall to freedom.

The symbolic drama of East German attempts to leap, climb, or scrape their way West made for gripping television, and no one knew that better than the Berlin correspondents of the two major networks and their bosses, Piers Anderton and Reuven Frank at NBC, and CBS's Daniel Schorr and Blair Clark. Unbeknownst to each other, NBC and CBS, hearing rumors of tunnelers around Berlin, abetted and funded separate tunnel attempts and vied to be the first to air a triumphant documentary of the human will to be free from Communism.

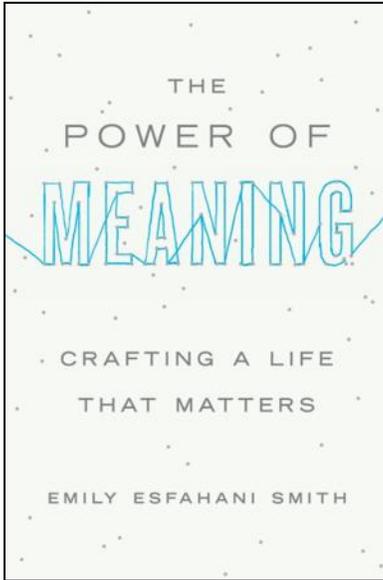

Anxiously looking over the shoulders of them all, with more than a trace of political hypocrisy, John F. Kennedy, his brother Robert, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, exerted all the influence they could to put an end to these endeavors. If the programs were broadcast, the administration might be perceived by Khrushchev as using its propaganda outlets to condone perforating the border.

Greg Mitchell, relying on documents declassified in the last 12 months, winds this tense story with excitement and panache in THE TUNNELS, Le Carré meets Argo in a nonfiction Cold War nail-biter. Using brand new source material, Mitchell revisits this magnetic time in history that continues to beckon readers.

THE POWER OF MEANING
Crafting a Life That Matters

Emily Esfahani Smith
January 2017
Rights: World

For anyone exhausted or disillusioned by the perpetual pursuit of personal happiness, here is the antidote: a book about the pursuit of meaning, a better route to a fulfilling life Americans have a lot to be happy about. Entertainment is always at the tips of our fingers. Companies tempt employees with junk food and video games. We have apps that enable us to order pizza or have our laundry picked up with the tap of a button. In short, our culture is obsessed with the good life. Yet, we're more dissatisfied than ever. In THE POWER OF MEANING, Emily Esfahani Smith argues that we've been chasing the wrong thing. It's not happiness that makes life worth living-it's meaning. Drawing on the latest cognitive science research, as well as insights from literature and philosophy, and her own prodigious reporting, Smith shows that by developing a "meaning mind-set," we can all achieve a deeper satisfaction.

With a warm, assured voice that moves effortlessly from George Eliot and Aristotle to Monty Python and Louis C.K., Smith spells out the four pillars of the meaning mind-set: cultivating connections to others, working toward our life's purpose, telling stories about our place in the world, and finding transcendence. Along the way, she visits a tight-knit fishing village in Tangier to investigate belonging, experiences awe while stargazing in West Texas, and attends a dinner where twentysomethings have gathered to share their experiences of profound loss. She introduces us to compelling seekers of meaning: the drug kingpin who found his purpose in helping people get fit, the artist who draws on her Hindu upbringing to create arresting and inspiring photographs, and a "winterkeeper" at Yellowstone who finds a sense of belonging even in isolation. And she shows us how we can lean on the pillars in difficult times, and how we might begin to build a culture of meaning in our families, our workplaces, and our communities. Stirring, inspiring, and story-driven, THE POWER OF MEANING will strike a profound chord in anyone seeking more in life.

Emily Esfahani Smith writes about culture, relationships, and psychology for the Atlantic, New Criterion, New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Newsweek, Daily Beast, and other publications. She holds an MA from the University of Pennsylvania in applied positive psychology. A native of Zurich, she grew up in Montreal and lives in Michigan.

ON EDGE

A Memoir of Anxiety

Andrea Petersen

May 2017

Rights: World

A bracingly honest yet sympathetic account of living with anxiety, coupled with deep reportage on the cutting-edge science that is driving research on the condition, from a longtime Wall Street Journal writer. Andrea Petersen was first diagnosed with anxiety disorder as a college sophomore, but she had been experiencing the shallow-breathing panic associated with the affliction since early childhood. Although having a name for her sudden shakiness and irrational phobias was comforting for Petersen, identifying it was only the beginning of a journey to understand it—one that takes her from Appalachian mountaintops to the backs of motorbikes in Vietnam as she refuses to let anxiety be her master.

In ON EDGE, Petersen harnesses her own personal and professional experience to talk about how anxiety disorders work, unraveling their biological mysteries and exploring how, thanks to recent developments in brain imaging and other areas, groundbreaking research might point the way to new treatments. She excavates the role of genetics and environment in mental illness by tracing her family history, from her frequently institutionalized grandmother to her own young daughter, in whom Petersen sees shades of herself. Along the way, she also illuminates important social context—such as the gendered cultural baggage the condition has accrued—and introduces us to the people whose support has allowed her to make her life her own.

Andrea Petersen is a news editor and feature writer for the Wall Street Journal, covering everything from health, pharmaceuticals, and aging to travel, home, and family. She has appeared on CNBC, Fox News, and CBS This Morning.

DISASTER FALLS

A Family Story

Stéphane Gerson

January 2017

Rights: World

A piercing and luminescent catalogue of a father's grief, parsing the shapes and distances of profound loss into a way forward for a family in crisis. As darkness fell on the day a fateful rafting trip down Utah's Green River took the life of his eight-year-old son Owen, Stéphane Gerson huddled in a tent with his wife, Alison, and their older son, Julian, trying to process the unthinkable. "It is just the three of us now," Alison said over the sounds of a light rain and, nearby, the rushing river. "We cannot do it alone. We have to stick together; we have to care for one another."

DISASTER FALLS chronicles the aftermath of that impossible day and the hard road to stay true to Alison's resolution. A historian by training, Gerson narrates his own response to the loss with beautiful specificity but also situates it in concentric rings of context—historical (he draws on an era of public tragedy, World War II, and also 9/11, with which his family had a far more personal history), natural (the protean forces of time and river rapids), social (the responses of extended family and friends), and, ultimately, familial. In this interior yet expansive inquiry, Gerson writes his way back toward Owen and some understanding of the place of that before/after singularity in his life—while also writing through the currents of rebellion and resolve, sharing and withholding, protest and lament and silence that distinguish his own grief from that of Alison and Julian, and that threaten to isolate them each in their own post-Owen world. With astonishing candor and empathy, Gerson draws on the darkest shades of human experience to create a portrait of grief iridescent in its fullness. Stéphane Gerson is a cultural historian of modern France and a professor of French and French studies at New York University. He lives in Manhattan and Woodstock, New York, with his family.

CROSSINGS
A Doctor-Soldier's Story

Jon Kerstetter
May 2017
Rights: World

A searing, beautifully told memoir by a Native American doctor on the trials of being a doctor/soldier in the Iraq War, and then, after being wounded and suffering a stroke, of becoming a doctor/patient at home. In Iraq, as a medic and officer, Jon Kerstetter balanced two impossibly conflicting imperatives--to heal and to kill. When he suffered an injury and then a stroke during his third tour, he wound up back home in Iowa, no longer able to be either a doctor or a soldier. In this gorgeous memoir that moves from his impoverished upbringing on an Oneida reservation, to his harrowing stints as a volunteer medic in Kosovo and Bosnia, through the madness of Iraq and the struggle afterwards to come to terms with a life irrevocably changed, Kerstetter beautifully illuminates war and survival, the fragility of the human body, and the strength of will that lies within.

Jon Kerstetter received his medical degree from the Mayo Medical School in Rochester, MN, and his MFA degree from Ashland University in Ohio. He practiced emergency medicine and military medicine, serving as a combat physician and flight surgeon for the U.S. Army and completing three combat tours in Iraq. He has also taught disaster relief and practiced emergency medicine in Kosovo, Bosnia, Rwanda, and Honduras.

As she had in 2008, Hillary Clinton entered the 2016 presidential campaign as the sure-thing frontrunner. This time, however, she had absorbed the lessons of her devastating primary loss to Barack Obama and the long journey back to the top that took her through the State Department. Or had she? In this inside look at the 2016 Clinton campaign, acclaimed reporters and authors Jon Allen and Amie Parnes dive deep in Hillaryland to find that in a chaotic election season, Clinton's biggest threat is, as ever, the one she sees in the mirror every morning. Chronicling a race that's hers to lose, and featuring a cast of characters from Trump to Jeb to President Obama to Bill Clinton-the world's most famous would-be First Husband-Allen and Parnes provide an intimate look into the world of the woman who (once again) might be the first woman president.

A brilliant, indispensable volume of poems from a major new voice of contemporary poetry.

In this masterful, expansive debut collection, Jana Prikryl journeys through place and time, from a childhood in central Europe to present-day New York City, from ancient Rome to the Czech Republic and back again, all while unfolding a wide range of ideas about family, friendship, and love, and the buried conflicts within each. These poems tell a story of the self-the party of lives being lived and the after party of solitary contemplation-and showcase Prikryl's ambitious experimentation with style.

The accomplished "Thirty Thousand Islands," the second half of the collection, presents some fifty linked poems, soliloquies, and character studies in a great variety of forms. Rooted in a single place, the remote shores off of Lake Huron in Canada, a place with no natural resources other than its beauty, it's an elegy that speaks on grief and dislocation, written with a metaphysical flair reminiscent of Elizabeth Bishop and guaranteed to become a classic of the genre. Honest, bold, and visionary, these poems are sure to confirm Prikryl's standing as one of her generation's greatest poets.

Jana Prikryl's poems have appeared in The New Yorker, The London Review of Books, The Paris Review, and The New York Review of Books, where she is a senior editor. She lives in New York.

IN THE NAME OF GUCCI

A Memoir

Patricia Gucci

May 2016

Rights: World

The gripping family drama-and never-before-told love story-surrounding the rise and fall of the late Aldo Gucci, the man who is responsible for making the Italian fashion label the powerhouse it is today, told by his daughter.

Patricia Gucci was born a secret: the love child whose birth could have spelled ruination for her father, Aldo Gucci. It was 1963, and the halcyon days for the "must-have" brand of Hollywood and European royalty. Patricia's mother gave birth in secret in London before she was smuggled back to Vatican City and hidden from the fashion world, the media, and the rest of the Gucci family. Aldo couldn't afford a public scandal, but he could not resist his feelings for Patricia's mother, Bruna, the paramour he first met when she worked for him as a shopgirl in Rome.

In IN THE NAME OF GUCCI, Patricia Gucci charts her parents' untold love story, relying on her own childhood memories as well as an archive of love letters and interviews with her mother. She interweaves her parents' story with that of her own relationship with her father-from a little girl who remained a secret for eighteen months and wasn't publicly acknowledged for her first decade, through her rise to become Gucci's ambassador and Aldo's protégé, to the moment when his three sons, who betrayed him in a famous palace coup, were disinherited and Patricia, once considered the shame of Gucci, was made sole universal heir. It is an epic tale of love and loss, betrayal and loyalty, sweeping among Italy, England, and America throughout the tumultuous years during the rise and fall of the House of Gucci.

Patricia Gucci was born in London and educated in England, Italy, and Switzerland before moving to New York to study acting. In 1982 she was appointed to the board of Gucci and roving ambassador in the United States and Asia until the brand's sale to Investcorp in 1987. She has three daughters and lives in Switzerland.

THE KEYS

They Don't Want You To Read This Book

DJ Khaled

September 2016

Rights: World

"The key is to weather the storm. It's gonna rain some days. That's how it is."

"The key is not to jet ski at night."

From the hip-hop impresario and social media guru DJ Khaled, a motivational collection of his "keys" to success.

Hip-hop artist/producer, businessman, and social media star DJ Khaled has amassed millions of followers in recent months for the motivational advice he offers up in the short videos he posts to social media. He refers to his pieces of uniquely phrased wisdom as "keys," always using the key emoji to signify their importance.

THE KEYS will share what DJ Khaled considers to be the major keys to success, some more intuitive ("Be honest but don't play yourself") than others ("Don't drive your jet ski in the dark"), which he'll illustrate with stories from his personal experience. He'll also get into the philosophy behind some of his famous catchphrases, which have spread like wildfire despite their enigmatic nature, including "another one," "securing the bag," "special cloth alert," "bless up," and more. And throughout the book will be "Mogul Talk" sidebars featuring insight gleaned from famous friends like Jay Z, Madonna, and Jimmy Kimmel.

As DJ Khaled says, "The key is to have all the keys," and THE KEYS will gather them and explain them, as you ride with DJ Khaled on your journey to success.

DJ Khaled is a music industry mogul, executive, mega producer, and recording artist who has made dozens of chart-topping records with artists such as Kanye West, Jay Z, Drake, Chris Brown, Ludacris, and more. The creator of one of the most globally viewed Snapchat accounts, Khaled has nearly 6 million Snapchat followers, 3.1 million Instagram followers, and 2.8 million Twitter followers.

LEADING LADY

Sherry Lansing and the Making of a Hollywood Groundbreaker

Stephen Galloway

February 2017

Rights: World

The definitive biography of movie executive and philanthropist Sherry Lansing traces her groundbreaking journey to become the first female head of a major motion picture studio, shares behind-the-scenes tales from movie sets and Hollywood boardrooms, and explains what inspired her to walk away from it all to start the Sherry Lansing Foundation.

As the president of 20th Century Fox and CEO of Paramount Pictures, Sherry Lansing defied expectations, rising to the top of the ranks in a town notorious for its boys' club mentality. Her career was unprecedented at a time when most industry women were expected to become secretaries or starlets. But her determination, intelligence, and the kindness that became her trademark helped her to survive and thrive. She helped bring Oscar-winning movies and blockbusters to the silver screen—from Kramer vs. Kramer and Fatal Attraction (where she made the crucial decision to cast Glenn Close) to Forrest Gump, Titanic, Saving Private Ryan, and many others. Later, when she was at the top of her game, she left it all behind to start the Sherry Lansing Foundation, a renowned philanthropic organization that supports cancer research, public education, and other fundraising initiatives.

Written by The Hollywood Reporter executive editor and the 2013 Entertainment Journalist of the Year, Stephen Galloway, this is an entertaining and inspiring look at Lansing's life and career. Galloway's revealing portrait portrays a dynamic woman who was unafraid to push boundaries, change career paths, and achieve the life she wanted.

The truth is out there. The New York Times bestselling author of UFOs offers an impeccably researched investigation of the existence of reincarnation, near-death experiences, psychic abilities, and things that go bump in the night.

Leslie Kean continues her own investigation into real life X-files. Turning her discerning and journalistic eye toward mysterious phenomena, the author of UFOs: Generals, Pilots, and Government Officials Go on the Record presents a landmark book of sobering and unflinching research, examining the most compelling evidence for proof of such things as ghostly phenomena, the Scoles experiments (involving the validity of some mediums and clairvoyants), out-of-body experiences, and the United States' involvement in remote viewing (or psychic espionage). Kean's first book, and her credibility as a seasoned and well-respected journalist, made people take notice of a topic that most considered a fairy tale. This book will do the same.

OTIS REDDING
An Unfinished Life

Jonathan Gould

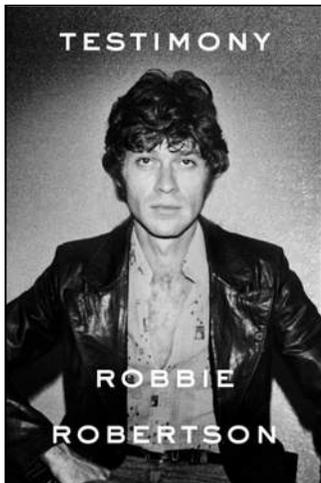

May 2017

Rights: World

The definitive biography of Otis Redding, the artist many call the heart of American soul music, timed to the 50th anniversary of Redding's iconic performance at the 1967 Monterey Pop Festival.

When we think of Otis Redding, we remember his classic hits, from "The Dock of the Bay" and "Shake" to "Try a Little Tenderness" and "Respect," a song we often forget that he penned before Aretha Franklin made it famous. We know his music, yet we know very little about his life, which ended tragically at the age of 26, at the height of his career. According to Jonathan Gould, that knowledge gap is a shame, because while Redding might not have been as gifted as Ray Charles or as smooth as Sam Cooke, Otis-not Marvin Gaye, not James Brown, not Stevie Wonder--is "the purest distillation of what we talk about when we talk about 'soul.'" Now, in this biography, we'll finally get a fitting look at the unfinished life of the man some call "the King of Soul." That said, this book is not just about Redding and his music; it is also about the times from which they emerged. Gould never lets us forget that the boundaries between black musicians and white listeners were becoming porous at precisely the moment that racial tensions were at their highest--a theme that remains relevant today. His portrait of Redding is both a remarkable look at a long-misunderstood artist and a fascinating exploration of race and music in America in the 1960s.

Jonathan Gould is a writer and a former professional musician who studied with the eminent jazz drummer Alan Dawson and spent many years working in bands and recording studios.

TESTIMONY

Robbie Robertson

November 2016

Rights: World

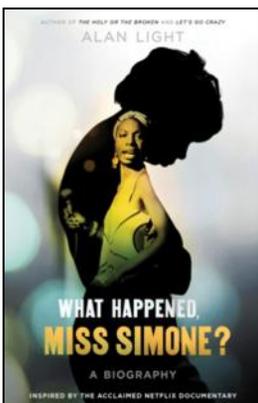

A spellbinding memoir from one of rock's greatest storytellers. Robbie Robertson's singular contributions to popular music have made him one of the most beloved songwriters and guitarists of all time. But few could have expected that a young Canadian would pen some of this past century's most distinctively American songs, music that seems soaked in the mythology and traditions of the Old South. With songs like "The Weight," "The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down," and "Up on Cripple Creek," Robertson and his partners in the Band introduced a new popular music lexicon that has endured for decades, influencing countless musicians and styles.

In this remarkable memoir of the group's storied career, Robertson weaves together tales of his half-Jewish, half-Mohawk Indian upbringing in Toronto with his rollicking early years on the road with rockabilly legend Ronnie Hawkins; he recalls the slow formation of the Band as each future member joined Hawkins's backing band, their trial-by-fire supporting of Bob Dylan on his 1966 world tour, and the cloistered sessions at the legendary Big Pink house in Saugerties, New York, that produced The Basement Tapes and forged the group's unique sound. He recounts being catapulted to fame with the success of their groundbreaking debut and takes us through the astonishing run of albums that culminated in one of music history's most famous farewell concerts, The Last Waltz.

More broadly, this is the story of a time and place—the moment when rock 'n' roll crawled out of the swamps and became life, when electric blues legends like Muddy Waters and Otis Rush crisscrossed the circuit of clubs and roadhouses from Texas to Toronto. It's the story of change, as America tumbled through the '60s, and of how figures like Dylan and the Band redefined both music and culture, with a little help from sex and drugs. And it's the story of the profound friendship between five young men who together would create a new kind of popular music, one that still fascinates us.

Robbie Robertson was the guitarist and principal songwriter in the Band. He has produced many movie soundtracks for Martin Scorsese and others, and continues to record as a solo artist. His most recent record, How to Become Clairvoyant, came out in 2011.

Trade Paperback Original

The cats of America are under siege, faced with greater dangers than we have ever known. Long passed are the good old days when a cat's biggest worries were a mean dog or getting a bath. Modern cats must contend with liberals, international bankers, Satanists, cybercriminals, ghosts, and countless other threats to both their nine lives and their souls. Never has there been a single book to help you prepare your cat for the myriad challenges they face every day... until now.

HOW TO TALK TO YOUR CAT ABOUT GUN SAFETY is a parody guidebook, mixing the lighthearted silliness of Cat Fancy magazine with the paranoid, reactionary rhetoric of a Chick tract. Also includes the important discussion topics: "How to Talk to Your Cat About Evolution" and "How to Talk to Your Cat About Abstinence."

Zachary Auburn is a writer and artist whose 'zines include an analysis of every outfit worn by the Golden Girls in the first season, a Choose Your Own Adventure about a tortured relationship (which Slate called a "small masterpiece"), and a field guide to the aliens on Star Trek. HACKING GROWTH

How Today's Fastest-Growing Companies Drive Breakout Success

Sean Ellis and Morgan Brown

April 2017

Rights: World

This is the definitive playbook by the pioneers/creators of Growth Hacking, one of the hottest business methodologies in Silicon Valley and beyond, which drove the rapid growth of start-ups like Uber, Facebook, Airbnb, Dropbox, Yelp, LinkedIn, Pinterest, and more.

A highly accessible, practical method for growth that involves cross-functional teams and continuous testing and iteration. Growth Hacking does for marketshare growth what The Lean Startup did for product development and Business Model generation for strategy. Growth Hacking focuses on customers-how to attain, retain, engage, and monetize them-rather than product.

Written by its pioneers, this book is a comprehensive toolkit that any company in any industry can use to implement their own Growth Hacking strategy: how to set up and run growth teams, how to identify and test growth levers, and how to evaluate and act on the results. It is for anyone looking to break out of the ruts of traditional marketing and become more collaborative and less wasteful, and achieve more consistent, replicable, data-driven results.

As the secret weapon behind the growth of the most successful start-ups, this methodology is proven to work. And it is increasingly being used at "traditional" companies, including IBM, Walmart, and Microsoft (where Satya Nadella has called it a key component of his strategy). Additionally, the authors are superstars and have been featured as the leading experts on Growth Hacking by the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Wired, Fast Company, and more. Their web site Growthhackers.com attracts 1.8 million unique users globally and receives 350,000 new visitors every month. Growth Hacking has ambassadors organizing meet-ups all over the world (similar to Lean Start-Up groups), and they also host a bi-annual conference, which has become the center of thought-leadership, attracting executives of both Fortune 100s and the hottest start-ups.

Sean Ellis is CEO of Qualaroo and co-founder of GrowthHackers.com, the #1 online community built for growth hackers. Sean coined the term "growth hacker" in 2010, and is the producer of the Growth Hacking Conference. He regularly speaks to start-ups and Fortune 100s and has been featured in the New York Times, WSJ, WIRED, Fast Company, inc.com, and TechCrunch. Morgan Brown is a start up-marketing veteran, and the co-founder of Growth Hacking. Both speak regularly at major conferences including SXSW, TechWeek, HubSpot, and others.

RED TEAM

How Companies Use Contrarian Thinking to Beat the Competition

Bryce Hoffman

April 2017

Rights: World

Adapted from the U.S. Army, a revolutionary new management concept on making critical thinking and contrarian viewpoints a key part of the planning process of any organization or business.

Most established companies live with the gnawing fear that there is another Uber out there just waiting to disrupt their industry. The cure for this paranoia or anxiety: red teaming. First set up by the U.S. military in the 1960s, Red Teams were used in war-gaming exercises during the Cold War; they were made up of American military officers tasked with assuming the role of their Soviet counterparts. They were supposed to think like Soviets and act like them, even referring to each other as “comrade” as they plotted the defeat of the decadent Americans and their European lackeys. The practice waned in the wake of the Cold War, though computer security experts continued to use red teaming as a tool for exposing hidden vulnerabilities in networks and software, assuming the role of hackers to try to breach their own security systems. Big companies such as Apple and Microsoft established red teams to help make their own software and systems more secure, and the practice soon became an industry standard.

Red teaming is both a set of analytical tools and a mindset. It is designed to overcome the mental blind spots and cognitive biases that all of us fall victim to when we try to address complex problems. The same heuristics that allow us to successfully navigate life and business also cause us to miss or ignore important information. We do not know what we do not know. The good news is that with red teaming, we can find out.

This book will be for entrepreneurs and decision makers who want to improve their decision making; aspiring managers and executives who need to know the latest, cutting-edge management practices to get ahead in their careers; and government agencies, nonprofits, and civic groups who would benefit from factoring in contrarian thinking when they strategize and plan.

Bryce Hoffman is the author of the New York Times bestseller American Icon: Alan Mulally and the Fight to Save Ford Motor Company, which has sold over 80,000 copies in all editions. An award-winning investigative business journalist, Bryce is now a consultant training the executives and CEOs of some of America’s foremost businesses. Bryce was the first civilian invited to go through the U.S. Army’s Red Team Leader Course at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth.

ELEVATE YOURSELF The Power of Women at Work

Sallie Krawcheck

December 2016

Rights: World

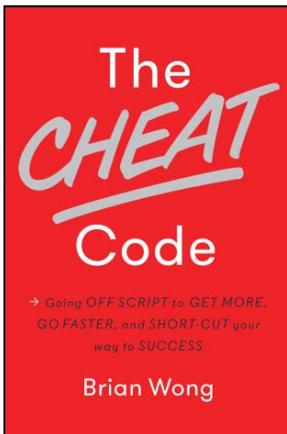

One of the highest-ranked women to ever have worked on Wall Street shows how women can elevate themselves and their careers by embracing the uniquely female traits proven to make women better leaders, more effective team players, and more valuable assets to companies and employers.

Lean in. Demand your place at the table. Sallie Krawcheck has had it with professional advice implying that if women simply leaned in a little farther, played the game a little better, and demanded just a little bit more—in other words, acted a little more like MEN—they could finally break through that glass ceiling and enjoy the success and power they deserve. The problem is that trying to beat a man at a man's game, she says, is a contest rigged to lose. A better strategy is to embrace and invest in the unique traits that make women better positioned to lead and succeed than men: broader diversity of perspective, greater long-term focus and healthier attitude towards risk, higher aptitude for certain types of creativity, better people skills, greater empathy, and more.

Having been the lone woman at the very highest rungs of male-dominated Wall Street, as CFO of CitiGroup and President of Wealth Management at Bank of America, Krawcheck knows what it takes to succeed as a woman in a man's world. Which is why, in the new chapter of her life as chair of one of the largest professional networks for women, she put her research analyst background to work to uncover reams of irrefutable evidence showing that companies perform better when they fully engage women—that companies with women in leadership positions serve clients and customer needs better, have a stronger and more engaged culture, are vastly more innovative, and sustain profits over a longer term.

Drawing on this research as well as on fascinating stories from her years at the highest echelons of the biggest boys' club in the world, Krawcheck will inspire and empower women to elevate both themselves and their companies by investing in these assets and strengths. Because according to Krawcheck, women who capitalize on these skills won't need to "lean in" or demand a place at the table; employers will offer that place to them willingly because it makes good business sense. Picking up the conversation where Lean In left off, this book will show women how to go beyond merely sitting at the table and elevate themselves to the next level by bringing their true female selves to work.

Sallie Krawcheck has been dubbed "The First Lady of Wall Street" and been named one of TIME magazine's "Global Business Influentials," one of Fast Company's "100 Most Creative People of 2014", and has appeared 9 times on the Fortune list of Most Powerful Women in Business. Her Elevate Network (<https://www.ellevatenetwork.com>) is global and they currently have a presence in the UK, Brazil, Spain, China, Taiwan, India, and South Africa.

THE DIFFERENCE When Good Enough Isn't Enough

Subir Chowdhury

February 2017

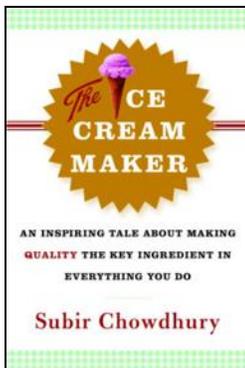

Rights: World

As Subir Chowdhury makes clear, while improving a company's processes is vital, if you don't focus first on your people-your employees-the best processes in the world won't get you where you want to go.

In the bestselling tradition of The Fred Factor, bestselling author and quality guru Subir Chowdhury (The Power of Six Sigma) tackles a question that has haunted him in his consulting work with companies for years. Why is that some companies improve 50x, while others improve only incrementally? The ideas and training after all, is the same. What is the difference? That is the questions he tackles in this compelling and empowering new book.

In THE DIFFERENCE, Subir Chowdhury looks at what distinguishes a company that adopts his quality training processes, and improves 5x, versus a company that adopts the same training and consulting, but increases their profits and quality 50x. The difference he claims, in this short, engaging, and insightful book, is the people in your workplace, on your staff, in your executive offices. The best processes and training programs in the world will not lead to world-class operations, unless a company first looks to the people who make up their workforce. Only by creating a caring mindset-a culture built upon straightforwardness, honesty, and openness; a management structure that thinks about the concerns of their people; a workplace that inspires accountability and engagement; and managers and employees who tackle the challenges they face with perseverance and resolve, can companies flourish and excel.

Subir Chowdhury is an enormously successful management consultant and quality guru who works with major Fortune 500 companies to improve their processes, operations, quality, and performance. He is the bestselling author of The Power of Six Sigma and The Ice Cream Maker.

When Chris Guillebeau toured more than fifty cities on five continents to promote his two previous New York Times bestselling books, he noticed that readers all over the world had some version of the same question: "I love all these stories about people finding their dream job or career, but how do I figure out what my dream career is?" Finding the answer to that question is what this book is about.

In BORN FOR THIS, the mega-bestselling author of the $100 Startup returns to his fan base with the practical business book his readers have been waiting for, offering readers a step-by-step guide for finding the work that feels so "right," it feels like they were born to do it, whether by launching a side hustle that turns a passion into a profitable business, by finding a dream position within a traditional organization, by fashioning an entirely new self-styled profession around all one's many varied interests, or by "hacking" an existing hum-drum job into work you love.

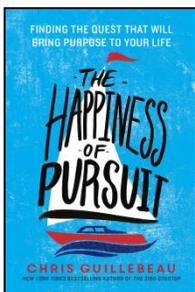

There are certain people out there who seem to have won the career lottery. To the outside observer, at least, it seems that by some stroke of good luck or divine intervention, the type of work they do best also just happens to be the work they most love to do. But in reality, their good fortune didn't come about by chance. There's an actual method for finding the job you love so much it doesn't even feel like work-and getting paid well to do it. This book will show you how.

THE THIRD DOOR

Uncovering How the World's Most Successful People Launched Their Careers

Alex Banayan

June 2017

Rights: World

THE THIRD DOOR is an account of twenty-something venture capitalist and Forbes' 30-Under-30 standout Alex Banayan's journey to interview the world's most successful people and learn how they rose to the top of their fields.

After interviewing such luminaries as Bill Gates, Jane Goodall, Bill Clinton, Howard Schultz, and Maya Angelou—and hanging out with such entertainers as Sean "P. Diddy" Combs and Lady Gaga—twenty-year-old Alex Banayan realizes that entering the realm of the mega-successful can be accomplished only by passing through one of three doors. First Door: Advertised entrance with hundreds of people waiting in line. Second Door: For those lucky ones born rich, athletic prodigies, and the stupendously gifted. Third Door: A hidden, mostly unspoken of entrance that requires cleverness to find, but leads directly to the top.

Through his conversations with the world's most successful people, including Bill Gates, Tim Ferriss, Jane Goodall, Maya Angelou, and Steven Spielberg, Alex gradually learns how to pass through the third door. Revealed here are breaking-in tools that will have others taking your call, granting you an audition, reading your proposal, listening to your pitch, and most important, asking you to stick around. Entertainingly told in the manner of Neil Strauss's The Game, in which a neophyte with no "moves" receives wisdom from a series of gurus, ultimately morphing into a person with "all the right moves."

Alex Banayan is an associate at the San Francisco-based venture capital firm Alsop Partners. He has contributed to the Washington Post, VentureBeat, TechCrunch, and the Huffington Post.

THE BATTLE FOR SILICON VALLEY

Samsung's Strategy to Overtake Apple and Amazon and Rule Tech

Geoffrey Cain

May 2017

Rights: World English (Translation rights with ICM)

A behind-the-scenes investigation into the "fifth horseman" of Silicon Valley—the secretive Korean juggernaut Samsung that is determined to overtake Apple and Google, and its war for dominance in technology.

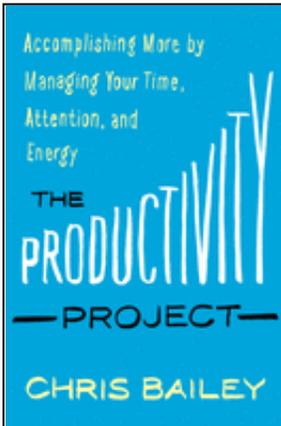

Written by Geoffrey Cain, the reporter who covered Samsung at Fast Company and Time for five years in South Korea, THE BATTLE FOR SILICON VALLEY pulls back the curtain on a company determined to overtake American tech giants. Known as a fast follower rather than an innovation leader, Samsung has nonetheless captured over 40% of the smartphone market, and has been pushing the envelope on every technology front. In 1980, Samsung was a rickety Korean conglomerate that produced everything from sugar to paper to fertilizer. But with the advent of the PC revolution, Lee Byung-chul launched a bold experiment to make Samsung a major supplier of computer chips. The multimillion dollar plan was expensive and incredibly risky, but Lee was obsessed with creating a tech empire. And three decades later it supplies parts for virtually every digital device now on the market, and has become a market leader in tech.

Today, Samsung employs 369,000 people (compared to Apple's 80,000). Their revenues have grown 39 times what they were in 1987 and makes up 20% of the entire South Korean economy. And with the launch of their Galaxy S smartphone, they have taken the battle directly to consumers. Apple, incensed that Samsung had copied the iPhone and stolen their patents, investigated with a costly sweeping lawsuit. But Samsung, rather than backing down, doubled down, igniting one of the biggest corporate battles in history.

A sweeping, insider account of the militaristic company's war against the likes of Google and Apple, THE BATTLE FOR SILICON VALLEY shows how a determined and fearless Asian competitor is becoming a technology giant.

Geoffrey Cain was covering Samsung for Fast Company and Time magazine for five years, interviewing over 100 executives and former executives and other employees. He is currently part of a hedge fund, advising his investing team on corporations and potential corporate investments/takeovers. He lives in Seoul, Korea.

DISARMING THE SOCIOPATH NEXT DOOR

How to Defend Against the Manipulative, Conscienceless, and Destructive Person in Your Life

Martha Stout, Ph.D.

February 2017

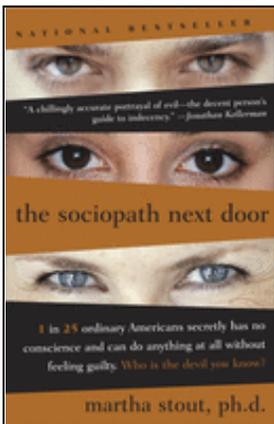

Rights: World

A sequel to Stout's 2005 bestseller The Sociopath Next Door, this compilation of stories the author has received from readers examines the personal and global implications of sociopathy, and provides hope for those who are currently dealing with a sociopath.

Bringing together the countless e-mails, phone calls, and letters that she has collected from readers since the publication of The Sociopath Next Door, Martha Stout mines these accounts for their inherent fascination and instruction and makes the issue of conscience, or the lack thereof, riveting and relevant to a wide audience. Organized around the intersection of sociopathy and subjects such as destructive narcissism, physicians and other professionals, politicians and the military, nonprosecuted violent crimes, and our neighbors, each chapter contains representative stories from "everyday people," as well as Stout's detailed explanation and commentary. Uniting these disparate categories is Stout's discussion of changing psychological theories of personality and sociopathy and the enduring triumph of conscience over those who operate without empathy or concern for others.

With DISARMING THE SOCIOPATH NEXT DOOR, Stout aims to help readers navigate their interactions with ruthless people in their personal lives and to inform society's broader interest in character and conceptions of normality during a time of great cultural change.

Martha Stout, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist in private practice, served on the faculty in psychology in the department of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School for twenty-five years. She is also the author of The Myth of Sanity. She lives in Massachusetts.

LIFE BETWEEN HEAVEN AND EARTH

What You Didn't Know About the World Hereafter and How It Can Help You

George Anderson and Andrew Barone

June 2016

Rights: World

For more than forty years, spiritual medium George Anderson has been able to bridge the world of the hereafter and the earth, through his ability to communicate messages of hope from those who passed on. Since the age of six, Anderson has had a special relationship with what he calls “the souls” who depend on his ability to hear them and bring peace and comfort to their grieving families. The author of two New York Times bestsellers, including Lessons from the Light, is widely considered by those in the medical, scientific, and religious fields to be the world’s greatest living medium.

In this new book, Anderson collects the wisdom of the dearly departed, who now see with perfect clarity, into twelve time-honored principles to help us navigate the most important and critical times in our lives. Lessons include: mind your own business; how to read the body language of heaven; laugh and fail more; to look for the light, follow the moon; and others.

Many of us are spiritually near-sighted. We can only see what’s right in front of our eyes. LIFE BETWEEN HEAVEN AND EARTH will provide us with metaphorical corrective lenses. For those who were inspired by the hopeful message of Proof of Heaven, George Anderson, the medium who defined this genre in the late 20th century, will show simply and practically that Heaven isn’t just an idea but a reality in the here and now.

George Anderson is the first medium in history to appear regularly on a cable television show, the first medium to gain international exposure for his extraordinary ability, and the only living medium to have been invited to Holland by surviving members of the family of Anne Frank, and remains the most scientifically tested medium on Earth. He’s the New York Times bestselling author of Walking in the Garden of Souls and Lessons from the Light.

THE SALT FIX

James DiNicolantonio

February 2017

Rights: World

This counter intuitive and paradigm-shifting book will appeal to readers of Mercola.com and fans of Dr. David Perlmutter's Grain Brain. Dr. James DiNicolantonio, a respected cardiovascular research scientist, overturns conventional thinking about salt and explores instead the little-understood importance of it, the health dangers of having too little, and how salt can actually help you improve sports performance, crush sugar cravings, and stave off common chronic illnesses.

We all know the dangers of sugar and salt: but the danger attributed to the second crystal, according to Dr. DiNicolantonio, is having too little of it, not too much. Too little salt in the diet can lead the body into semi-starvation mode and cause insulin resistance, as well as cause you to absorb twice as much fat for every gram you consume. Too little salt in certain populations can increase blood pressure, as well as resting heart rate. We need salt in order to hydrate and nourish our cells, transmit nerve signals, contract our muscles, ensure proper digestion and breathing, and maintain proper heart function.

THE SALT FIX will explore how we got to demonize this historically treasured substance as well as what the current science really says about this misunderstood mineral and its effect on your health.

Dr. James DiNicolantonio is a cardiovascular research scientist and doctor of pharmacy. He has spent years researching the science behind this book. He is the author or co-author on more than 150 medical publications, including several high-profile articles related to nutrition. In the last year, his research has been found in the New York Times, The Telegraph, BBC News, The Globe, Daily Mail, Forbes, and many others.

THE ACID WATCHER DIET A 28-Day Reflux Prevention Program

Jonathan Aviv, MD, FACS

January 2017

Paperback Original

Rights: World

A groundbreaking program by a leading expert on acid reflux to help the millions of diagnosed and undiagnosed sufferers identify the silent, potentially deadly symptoms and provide them with a proven 28-day eating plan to stop acid damage in its tracks.

Do you suffer from abdominal bloating; a chronic, nagging cough or sore throat; post-nasal drip; a feeling of a lump in the back of your throat; allergies; or a shortness of breath? If so, odds are that you are experiencing acid reflux without recognizing the silent symptoms. Even without the presence of heartburn or indigestion, more than 60 million people are suffering from acid-related disorders that are undetected or untreated-and leading to long-term health problems, including the rapid rise of esophageal cancer. Since there are no outward signs of acid damage and the typical symptoms might not be recognized, until now you might not have known how pervasive acid reflux is or that you have it.

In THE ACID WATCHER DIET, Dr. Jonathan Aviv, one of the leading authorities on the diagnosis and treatment of acid reflux disease, helps readers identify those silent symptoms and provides his proven solution for reducing whole-body acid damage quickly and easily. His 28-day program includes a two-phase eating plan, menu guide, and recipes and works to immediately neutralize acid, stabilize pH levels, and relieve the inflammation at the root of acid reflux. Dr. Aviv's Power of Five rule will help readers discover the key foods that offer fast relief, and his Daily Six will reveal the foods to avoid (onion, tomato, citrus, and more).

THE ACID WATCHER DIET's groundbreaking program is just what millions of readers need to reduce acid and balance their bodies and minds for optimal health.

Dr. Jonathan E. Aviv, MD, FACS, is a world-renowned physician, surgeon, educator, inventor, speaker, and author as well as a lifestyle integrative health and wellness expert. THE ADHD SOLUTION

Natural Remedies to Correct Deficiencies, Remove Toxins, and Reverse the Effects of ADHD

James Greenblatt

May 2017

Rights: World

A strong, integrative approach to dealing with ADHD, Dr. James Greenblatt uses natural minerals to treat imbalances in the body so that any child (or adult) can flourish without their ADHD symptoms holding them back.

In his practice, Dr. Greenblatt has seen the positive effects of treating individuals rather than simply prescribing medication for their ADHD symptoms. Structured around four phases of healing, he details the natural methods used to treat problems like nutritional deficiencies of magnesium or zinc, dysbiosis (a microbial imbalance inside the body), sleeping difficulties, and food allergies, all of which-unbeknownst to many-can cause or exacerbate the symptoms of ADHD. By exploring each of these possibilities in his Plus-Minus Healing Plan, parents will finally be able to finally get the assistance they need in providing true wellness for their children, whether or not they're already on medication. ADHD is a medical disorder, not a discipline problem, and this book will address each individual's unique pattern of biological weaknesses to get at the root of the issue.

A pioneer in the field of integrative medicine, James M. Greenblatt has treated patients with behavioral and mood disorders since 1990. He received his medical degree from George Washington University, and specialized in the diagnosis and treatment of childhood disorders during his time as Chief Resident at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. He currently serves as Chief Medical Officer and VP of Medical Services at Walden Behavioral Care in Waltham, one of the first healthcare centers to provide a full continuum of care for patients with psychiatric disorders.
