After surviving a car accident, 18-year-old Lia Welles finds herself in the place between life and death when she sleeps. The memories and images she sees all belong to a soul who died more than 100 years ago. Jackson Cabot is the epitome of everything a gentleman in 1901 ought to be, and he has been wandering through his memories for more than a century trying to figure out what undone task is keeping him from passing to the other side.

As Lia continues to return to Jackson in her dreams, the memories come alive, filling with people, conversations, and very important clues. In her desire to help Jackson find peace—and maybe also avoid her own less-than-spectacular reality—Lia spends more and more of her time asleep and more and more time falling in love with Jackson. But both of them soon come to understand that Jackson's uncompleted task is fully giving himself over to true love—and if Jackson finally falls in love, they will be separated forever.

~The Serpent’s Quill

Below Forsaken Mountain, a revolution stirs with the aim to overthrow the tyrant king of Trollus, and Marc is the right hand of its leader. It's a secret more than one troll would kill to possess, which is why he must keep it from everyone, even the girl he loves.

Since a tragic accident revealed her affliction and ruined her sister's chance at the throne, Pénélope is hated by her father, the Duke d'Angoulême. Deeming her life worthless, he gives her one chance to survive: find proof that the boy she loves is a leader in the revolution.

Marc and Pénélope must navigate the complex politics of Trollus, where powers on all sides are intent on using them as pawns, forcing them to risk everything for a chance at a life together.

Except being together might be the greatest risk of all.

MY NEW CRUSH GAVE TO ME

Swoon Reads (Macmillan)
October 2017

- A Young Adult holiday romance

Charlotte “Charlie” Donovan knows exactly what she wants for Christmas: Teo Ortiz. He’s the school’s star athlete, an award-winning student, he’s invited to every party, contributes to the school paper (where Charlie is co-editor) —basically, he’s exactly the type of guy Charlie should be with. The only problem—he barely knows she exists.

But Charlie is determined to be Teo’s date to the Christmas ball. And she has a plan: to rig the paper’s Secret Santa contest so that she can win his heart with five perfect gifts. But to do that she needs help. Enter J.D. Ortiz—Teo’s cousin, and possibly the most annoying person on the planet. He’s unorganized, always late, and makes a joke out of everything—the exact opposite of Charlie (and Teo). But he’s willing to provide insight into what Teo wants, so she’s stuck with him.

Yet, the more time Charlie spends with J.D., the more she starts to wonder: Does she really know what, or rather who, she wants for Christmas?
