THE LOST NIGHT

Andrea Bartz

March 2019

Rights: World

Journalist Andrea Bartz's psychological suspense novel The Lost Night, pitched as Luckiest Girl Alive meets HBO's GIRLS, revolves around a woman whose group of friends scatters after a tragic suicide at a labyrinthine "hipster" loft in Brooklyn in 2008.

Ten years later, a chance reunion between two of the surviving friends leads Lindsay, now 33 and well beyond the artistic, yearning hipster phase of her early twenties, to start questioning if there was more to her friend's death than the police concluded at the time. This sets her off on a search through her old technology, her long-held assumptions, and the truth about her own past that she's been trying to outrun.

The Lost Night captures that incredibly singular moment in a young person's life when she's on her own for the first time. Her new city is everything, and the world of friendship dramas and relationships feels so important and crucial and everlasting... and yet, of course, is impossible to sustain.

Andrea Bartz is a well-established freelance journalist and former editor at Glamour, Self, Martha Stewart Living, Fit Pregnancy, Psychology Today, and Natural Health. She is the co-author of the 2010 nonfiction blog-to-book Stuff Hipsters Hate. <http://www.andreabartz.com/>

WUNDERLAND

Jennifer Cody Epstein

April 2019

Rights: World English (Translation rights with International Creative Management)

An intimate portrait of a friendship severed by history, and a sweeping saga of wartime, motherhood, and legacy by an award-winning novelist.

It's 1989 in New York City, and Ava Fischer is a mess: she's broke, her teenage daughter is barely speaking to her, and her estranged mother's ashes have just arrived from Germany by mail. Things were never easy between Ava and her mother Ilse. Throughout Ava's childhood in Germany, first in an orphanage after World War II and then in Ilse's care, too many unspoken secrets hovered between them: Who was Ava's father? Why won't her mother tell her anything about him? And what exactly was Ilse doing during the war? In a trove of unsent letters that arrive with Ilse's ashes, written to her childhood best friend, Renate, Ava begins to find her answers, sending her spiraling deep into the past of the mother she never truly knew.

It's 1933 in Berlin. Two young girls, Renate and Ilse, meet at school and become inseparable friends. Bonded by their mutual bookishness, Ilse is the confident mischief-maker to Renate's brainy klutz. But as the Nazi party tightens its grip on the city, the two girls find their friendship torn apart by the Nuremberg Laws. And as Ilse is increasingly drawn in by the Hitler Youth movement and its promise of a Germany restored to greatness, Renate is forced to confront a family secret long since buried, and one friend will catastrophically betray the other, with reverberations that will be felt for generations to come.

Jennifer Cody Epstein is the author of the international bestseller The Painter from Shanghai and The Gods of Heavenly Punishment, winner of the 2014 Asian Pacific Association of Librarians Honor award for outstanding fiction. She has written for the Wall Street Journal, Vogue, Self, Mademoiselle, and many others. She has an MFA in fiction from Columbia University and a Masters of International Affairs from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

THE DRAMA TEACHER

Koren Zailckas

August 2018

Rights: World

A twisty, compulsive new thriller featuring a deliciously devious unreliable narrator who will do anything to give her family a better life, by the New York Times bestselling author of Mother, Mother and Smashed. Gracie Mueller seems like an average person. Married, mother of two. Owns a house with her husband, Randy, in upstate New York. Life is balanced and (relatively) honest. But she has a lot to hide--she's not even a US citizen--and when Randy's failing career as a real estate agent makes finances tight, he leaves town for a better job, their home goes into foreclosure, and Gracie turns back to the creatively illegal lifestyle of her past to keep things afloat for her kids.

An expert in fake identities, she becomes Tracey Bueller, who later becomes Mariana DeFelice. She's an architect and designer, a musician and an actress. After a deadly stint upstate when a friend asks too many questions, she leaves town for New York City, finding her way into the best school in Manhattan for her kids, where she gets a job as the drama teacher. But as she struggles to keep her web of lies spun taut and her secrets hidden, more questions about her past are raised. She never intended to be a cheat, a liar, a thief, or a killer; she just can't afford for anyone to know what she's done.

Koren Zailckas is an internationally bestselling writer and has contributed to The Guardian, U.S. News & World Report, Glamour, Jane, and Seventeen magazine. She currently lives with her family in the Catskill Mountains of New York. The Drama Teacher is her second novel.

THE GIRL WHO SMILED BEADS

A Story of War and What Comes After

Clemantine Wamariya and Elizabeth Weil

April 2018

Rights: World

A riveting story of dislocation, survival, and the power of the imagination to save us.

Clemantine Wamariya was six years old when her mother and father began to speak in whispers, when neighbors began to disappear, and when she heard the loud, ugly sounds her brother said were ‘thunder.’ It was 1994, and in 100 days more than 800,000 people would be murdered in Rwanda and millions more displaced. Clemantine and her 15-year-old sister, Claire, ran and spent the next six years wandering through seven African countries searching for safety--hiding under beds, foraging for food, surviving and fleeing refugee camps, finding unexpected kindness, witnessing unimaginable cruelty. They did not know whether their parents were alive.

At age 12, Clemantine, along with Claire, was granted asylum in the United States—a chance to build a new life. Chicago was disorienting, filled with neon lights, antiseptic smells, endless concrete. Clemantine spoke five languages but almost no English, and had barely gone to school. Many people wanted to help--a family in the North Shore suburbs invited Clemantine to live with them as their daughter. Some saw her only as broken. They thought she needed, and wanted, to be saved. Meanwhile Claire, who had for so long protected and provided for Clemantine, found herself on a very different path, cleaning hotel rooms to support her three children. Raw, urgent, yet disarmingly beautiful, The Girl Who Smiled Beads captures the true costs and aftershocks of war: what is forever lost, what can be repaired, the fragility and importance of memory, the faith that one can learn, again, to love oneself, even with deep scars.

Clemantine Wamariya is a storyteller, public speaker, social entrepreneur, and human rights advocate. Born in Kigali, Rwanda, displaced by conflict, Clemantine migrated throughout seven African countries as a child. At age 12, she was granted asylum in the United States and went on to receive a BA in comparative literature from Yale University. Clemantine now uses stories drawn from her experiences to catalyze change and create community. Elizabeth Weil is a contributing writer to the New York Times Magazine.

PRESIDENTS OF WAR

The Epic Story, from 1807 to Modern Times

Michael Beschloss

October 2018

Rights: World

Provocative and illuminating, Presidents of War is a definitive work of presidential history and an invaluable guide to leadership and decision-making in times of crisis.

Ever since America's founding, after a nearly decade-long struggle with Great Britain, the nation has found itself almost continuously at war. Throughout history, at the forefront of every struggle--large or small, foreign or domestic, celebrated or forgotten--has been the president, who as commander-in-chief of the armed forces has to make the impossible choice of when to hazard American lives.

Michael Beschloss is a lauded historian and one of the keenest observers of the White House. In Presidents of War, he offers an authoritative portrait of our major wartime presidents in action, from the War of 1812 to the Vietnam War. Whether examining Lincoln's controversial military leadership, Wilson's idealistic and authoritarian approach to World War I, or LBJ sinking into the quagmire of Vietnam, Beschloss employs deep research and unsurpassed storytelling to bring these presidents to life in moments of public oratory and private doubt. He also charts their relationships with the public, which has consigned them to fame or infamy, and with Congress, which has continually struggled to define and redefine the president's wartime powers.

Beschloss is insightful and even-handed in analyzing the historical successes and failings of wartime presidents, and the conclusions he draws from his subjects concerning preparation, communication, goal-setting, and decision-making have broad applications for those in managerial and executive positions.

Michael Beschloss is the author of many bestselling books, most recently Jacqueline Kennedy, The Conquerors, and Presidential Courage. He is the NBC News Presidential Historian and a board member of the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History.

STUCK IN THE MIDDLE

Why Middle School Is Miserable, How Adults Make It Worse, and What It Will Take for Us All to Grow Up

Judith Warner

April 2019

Rights: World

The bestselling author of Perfect Madness trains her eye on the middle school years: why they're so painful, how parents unwittingly make them worse, and what we can do about it.

The French have a name for the uniquely hellish years between elementary school and high school: "Le Sale Age," or the "Rotten Age." Characterized by a perfect storm of developmental changes--physical, psychological, and social—the middle school years are a time of great distress for parents and children, alike, marked by hurt, isolation, exclusion, competition, anxiety, and often outright cruelty. Some of this is inevitable; there are intrinsic challenges to growing up. But these years are harder than they need to be, and Judith Warner believes that adults are complicit.

With piercing insight, compassion, and humor, Warner walks us through a new understanding of the role that middle school plays in all our lives. She argues that today's helicopter parents are overly concerned with status, achievement, and sorting--in some ways a residual effect of their own middle school experiences--and that this is worsening the self-consciousness and self-absorption so typical of early adolescence. Drawing on new insights from neuroscience and psychology, and bringing together the voices of social scientists, child development experts, educators, and parents, Warner shows how adults can be moral role models for children, making them more empathetic, caring, and resilient. She encourages us to start treating middle schoolers as the complex people they are, holding them to high standards of kindness and helping them see each other as more than "Jocks and Mean Girls, Nerds and Sluts." Part intellectual investigation and part call to action, this timely book unpacks one of life's most formative periods, and shows how we can help our children not only survive it, but thrive.

Judith Warner is the author of the New York Times bestsellers Hillary Clinton: The Inside Story and Perfect Madness: Motherhood in the Age of Anxiety, as well as the highly acclaimed We've Got Issues: Children and Parents in the Age of Medication. A former contributing columnist for the New York Times, where she wrote the popular online column, "Domestic Disturbances," Warner is now a contributing writer for the New York Times Magazine.

THE WOMEN WITH SILVER WINGS

The Untold Story of the Women Airforce Service Pilots of World War II

Katherine Sharp Landdeck

April 2019

Rights: World English (Translation rights with Aevitas Creative Management)

The thrilling, as-yet-untold history of the Women Airforce Service Pilots, the daring female aviators who helped the United States win World War II.

When Japanese planes executed a sneak attack on Pearl Harbor in December 1941, Cornelia Fort was already in the air. At twenty-two, Fort was a failed debutante hoping for a fresh start as a flight instructor in Hawaii. She and her student had just taken off when the bombs began to fall, and they barely made it back to ground that morning. Still, when the US Army put out a call for women pilots to aid the war effort, Fort was one of the first to respond. She became one of 1,900 women from across the nation--chosen from an application pool of more than 25,000--to converge on Sweetwater, Texas, to train for the U.S. Army Air Force in the hope of earning their silver wings.

In The Women with Silver Wings, historian Kate Landdeck introduces us to these young women as they meet even-tempered, methodical Nancy Love and formidable, demanding visionary Jacqueline Cochran, the women who first envisioned sending American women into the air, and whose rivalry would define the WASP. For women like Cornelia, it was a chance to serve her country--and to prove that women aviators are just as skilled and able as men. While not authorized to serve in combat, the WASP helped train male pilots for service abroad and risked their lives to ferry bombers across the Atlantic. Cornelia herself would not survive the war. But even taking into account these tragic losses, Love and Cochran's social experiment seemed to be a resounding success--until, in 1943, with the tides of the war turning and fewer male pilots needed in Europe, Congress pulled out the rug from under the WASP. The program was disbanded, the women sent home. But the bonds they'd made during their time together never failed, and over the next few decades, they banded together to fight for recognition as the military veterans they were--and for their place in history.

Beautifully written and painstakingly researched, The Women with Silver Wings is an unforgettable portrait of these fearless, groundbreaking women and their long fight for justice.

KING CON

The Bizarre Adventures of the Jazz Age's Greatest Imposter

Paul Willetts

August 2018

Rights: World

For Edgar LaPlante, a charming and charismatic vaudeville performer, the summer of 1923 was the prelude to one of the 20th century's most extraordinary adventures--an adventure that would require all his theatrical flair to deliver what would turn out to be the most demanding and lucrative performance of his life. To raise money for his fraudulent campaign to help starving children on Native American Indian reservations, LaPlante reinvented himself as a Cherokee warlord named Chief White Elk, touring small towns yet addressing enormous crowds, before decamping to Europe. As he made his way across the Continent, still in the character of Chief White Elk, he joined the fast-living expatriate set, befriendng F. Scott Fitzgerald and his troubled wife, Zelda.

All that extravagance drained LaPlante's resources--he needed his next mark. At a casino in Nice, he found her: a beautiful, exceptionally wealthy Austrian countess. Before long, they became lovers, and LaPlante coned her out of a chauffeur-driven limousine, a troop of servants, and the equivalent of $101 million in today's currency.

They took a tour of Italy, and LaPlante's habit of tossing crisp bank notes from the windows of their limousine ensured that they attracted thousands of people, who had to be marshaled by the police. LaPlante cultivated a friendship with the Pope and the recently installed Italian fascist dictator, Benito Mussolini. Il Duce treated him like royalty, staging banquets and even a military procession in his honor. Most improbably, LaPlante managed to install himself as a delegate to the League of Nations.

But the whole charade reached an embarrassing conclusion in 1925 when the countess's stepson hired a private detective to investigate Chief White Elk. Eventually, after years of extreme luxury, the jig was up; LaPlante was imprisoned in the harshest jail in Rome. Yet he maintained the charade, even upon his release, refusing to remove the mask he had worn for so long, in spite of all the damning evidence. Meticulously researched yet imbued with novelistic verve, King Con is the bizarre story of a man whose life became his best performance.

London-based Paul Willetts has written several books to high acclaim in the UK, and writes frequently for The Independent, The Guardian, The Daily Telegraph, and The Times Literary Supplement. King Con is his American debut. 11

KICKS

The Great American Story of Sneakers

Nicholas Smith

May 2018

Rights: World

A cultural history of sneakers, tracing the footprint of one of our most iconic fashions across sports, business, pop culture, and identity.

When the athletic shoe graduated from the beaches and croquet courts of the wealthy elite to streetwear ubiquity, its journey through the heart of American life was just getting started. In this rollicking narrative, Nicholas K. Smith carries us through the long 20th century as sneakers became the totem of subcultures from California skateboarders to New York rappers, the cause of gang violence and riots, the heart of a global economic controversy, the linchpin in a quest to turn big sports into big business, and the muse of high fashion. Studded with larger-than-life mavericks and unexpected visionaries--from genius rubber inventor, Charles Goodyear, to road-warrior huckster Chuck Taylor, to the feuding brothers who founded Adidas and Puma, to the track coach who changed the sport by pouring rubber in his wife's waffle iron---Kicks introduces us to the sneaker's surprisingly influential, enduring, and evolving legacy.

Nicholas Smith has worked as a reporter for the past ten years, covering a range of topics, including stolen World War II art, melting glaciers, Austrian indie gamers, and the New York City mayoral election. He is a 2014 graduate of the Columbia School of Journalism, where he was awarded the Lynton Fellowship in Book Writing.

RUSH

Revolution, Madness and the Visionary Doctor who Became a Founding Father

Stephen Fried

September 2018

Rights: World

The dynamic and unexpected story of one of our nation's most radical and influential Founding Fathers--and the only doctor to sign the Declaration of Independence.

In July 1776, fifty-six of the most noted American men to ever live put their quills to a dangerous piece of paper they called a Declaration of Independence. Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson were among their number, but so was Dr. Benjamin Rush. Rush, an army doctor and medical adviser to George Washington, was one of the document's youngest signatories--and in a list with lots of competition, also one of its most idealistic.

Rush's true brilliance was as a physician and scientist, but his provocative medical discoveries are only part of his legacy. Over his lifetime, Dr. Rush managed to be both a progressive thorn in the side of the American political establishment (he was a vocal opponent of the American slave trade and campaigned against capital punishment) and close friends with its most prominent leaders. He was the protégée of Franklin and a favorite of the nation's first three presidents--although his brash, impulsive style sometimes put him in hot water with them.

Drawing on a trove of archival materials (including voluminous correspondence between Rush and his better-known counterparts, and the physician's detailed personal writings), Stephen Fried resurrects the most significant Founding Father we've never heard of, and installs Dr. Rush in the pantheon of great American leaders.

Stephen Fried is an award-winning journalist, a New York Times bestselling author, and an adjunct professor at Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism. He is co-author, with Congressman Patrick J. Kennedy, of A Common Struggle. His own books include Appetite for America, Bitter Pills, and the essay collection Husbandry. A two-time winner of the National Magazine Award, Fried has written frequently for Vanity Fair, GQ, the Washington Post Magazine, Rolling Stone, Glamour, and Philadelphia magazine.

THE OLD DRIFT

Namwali Serpell

March 2019

Rights: World

From a Caine Prize winner comes a sweeping, ambitious tale of three families who are plagued by a curse over the course of generations--following them from India, Italy, and England until their tangled fates converge in Zambia.

Three families intersect over three generations, traveling from India, Italy, England, and ultimately Zambia: a country that becomes a character in itself, from Livingstone's "discovery" of Victoria Falls in 1855 to a brilliantly imagined Southern Africa of 2050. Split into three Books--the Grandmothers, the Mothers, and the Children--the story follows these families with beautifully human detail, all framed within an interstitial Greek chorus: the voice of a swarm of mosquitos.

Namwali Serpell was born in Zambia in 1980 and now lives in California, where she is associate professor of English at UC Berkeley. Her writing has been featured in publications including Tin House, n + 1, McSweeney's, The Believer, San Francisco Chronicle, and The Guardian. In 2011, Serpell received a Rona Jaffe Foundation Writers' Award for women writers, and in 2014 she was selected as one of the Africa 39, a Hay Festival Project to identify the 39 best African writers under 40. Serpell's first published short story, "Muzungu," was selected for The Best American Short Stories 2009 and anthologized in The Uncanny Reader. She was shortlisted for the Caine Prize for African Writing for "Muzungu" in 2010, and won the Caine Prize for her story "The Sack" in 2015.

MOTHER AMERICAN NIGHT

My Life and Crazy Times

John Perry Barlow with Robert Green Field

June 2018

Rights: World

John Perry Barlow wrote thirty songs for the Grateful Dead -- and that's just the start to a Zelig-like life that took him from a childhood as Wyoming ranching royalty to friendships with Neal Cassady, Steve Jobs, and JFK Jr.

By any standard imaginable, John Perry Barlow has led a truly remarkable life. Mother American Night is the heartrendingly sad, hysterically funny, and often unbelievable yet always completely true story of a singular individual who has always pushed the edge of every envelope just as far as it would go while living his life to the fullest in the company of some of the most extraordinary public figures of our time. Referred to by more than one publication as "The Most Interesting Man In The World," Barlow has throughout his life maintained close and long-lasting relationships with such diverse cultural figures as Bob Weir, Jerry Garcia, Timothy Leary, John F. Kennedy, Jr., Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Steve Jobs, and Gilberto Gil, the renowned Brazilian musician who also served as that country's minister of culture.

During his long and varied career, Barlow has written the lyrics to many songs by the Grateful Dead while also running his family's 22,000 acre cattle ranch in Cora, Wyoming. Despite being a freely self-confessed acidhead, he served as a campaign manager for Dick Cheney during his successful run for Congress from that state in 1978--the same year he hosted an 18-year-old JFK Jr. at his ranch for some summer seasoning. Plunging into the world of computers when he was 42 years old, Barlow became a renowned internet guru who first defined the unique nature of cyberspace and then began vigorously defending the right for all to use it freely by cofounding the Electronic Freedom Foundation in 1990.

John Perry Barlow recently passed away in February 2018. He was a brilliant thinker and writer, and over the course of the past half century, he somehow managed to always be at the cutting edge of popular culture in both America and the world. And as impressive as his public accomplishments have been, the saga of Barlow's dramatic personal life reads like the story of a generation writ large. Blessed with an incredible sense of humor and a unique voice that comes right off the page, Barlow was a born storyteller in the great American tradition of Mark Twain and Will Rogers.

A charming narrative and "pop historical" look into how Italy has shaped the Western world's most vibrant passions, from literature to love, music to art, food to wine.

What makes Italian passion so undeniably unique? Dianne Hales unspools the answer to this question with gusto in La Passione: How Italy Seduced the World, her ambitious follow-up to La Bella Lingua: My Love Affair with Italian, the World's Most Enchanting Language. Streams of Italian passion have irrigated every field of endeavor. Whether they built aqueducts, chiseled arches, conducted choirs, directed movies, raced cars, or designed fashion and furniture, Italians have done so with a full-hearted zest that transforms everything they touched. What didn't exist, they invented: the first universities, public libraries, and law and medical schools; the first modern histories, satires, and sonnets; the battery, barometer, radio, and thermometer--even the gift of music. In every creative field, Italian passion inspired masterpieces of unparalleled genius. Dante and Petrarch, titans of the Italian language, translated their fervid love for idealized muses into literary landmarks. Michelangelo carved a Bacchus so sinuously delectable that a Florentine sniped, "Buonarotti could not have sinned more with a chisel." Puccini swept listeners, in a biographer's words, "into that place where erotic passion, sensuality, tenderness, pathos, and despair meet and fuse." Passion has penetrated Italian everyday life so profoundly that even everyday foods sizzle with erotic electricity. La Passione traces this earthly, earthy drive back to its roots, follows its course through the centuries, and chronicles its impact on the realms of literature, art, music, cuisine, and style, as its people came to embrace, fully and deeply, a passion for life itself.

Combining her adroit journalist's eye with extensive research, Hales delves into passions of the heart, senses, and soul across the ages in this perfect read for the casual Italophile, inquisitive tourist, or history buff in your life.

Dianne Hales is a journalist and author of books on Italian culture, most recently 2014's Mona Lisa: A Life Discovered and Crown's La Bella Lingua: My Love Affair with Italian, the World's Most Enchanting Language. Her website and blog, "Becoming Italian Word by Word," has been honored as the best blog on Italian culture in an international survey, and has more than 1.3 million visitors.

ALPHA GIRLS

Julian Guthrie

May 2019

Rights: World (Polish rights sold by The Gersh Agency)

Film and television rights were picked up by Welle Entertainment in an intense bidding war!

In the bestselling vein of Hidden Figures, Alpha Girls is reporter Julian Guthrie's powerful account of five women pioneers in the field of venture capital who bucked the system and found ways to survive and thrive in the cutthroat, high-stakes, male-dominated world of Silicon Valley.

The closed doors investment decisions made by venture capitalists have the power to fund new startups and shape our economy, technology and our world. They have enabled the very existence of many of the world's most profitable companies. Known for their risk taking and prescient investments, the VC community has reaped tens of billions of dollars, and has become the envy of Wall Street. Yet thanks to the "bro-grammer culture" that rules the VC world, it is a cabal that is almost a foreign country for women. A mere six percent of general partners at VC firms are women; roughly eighty percent of VC firms have never had a woman general partner.

But there are a few. Armed with unprecedented access to the secretive VC universe, Guthrie uncovers one of the great untold stories of the digital era. Against all odds, a small cadre of women--pioneers that Guthrie calls the "alpha girls"--have determinedly made their way despite harassment, second class citizenship, and men stealing the credit and the rewards, to become powerhouses of the finance world. Through their grit and smarts and determination they helped to launch the IPO's of some of the biggest tech firms. In Alpha Girls, Guthrie tells their story.

Julian Guthrie is a New York Times best-selling author. Her most recent book – How to Build a Spaceship (Penguin Press) – drew rave reviews, making several “best of” lists, and was a shortlist finalist for a PEN award. She spent twenty years at the San Francisco Chronicle, where she also won numerous awards and was nominated multiple times for a Pulitzer Prize. In addition to Spaceship, she is the author of two other nonfiction books: The Grace of Everyday Saints and The Billionaire and the Mechanic.

BLITZSCALING

The Lightning-Fast Path to Building Billion-Dollar Companies

Reid Hoffman and Chris Yeh

October 2018

Rights: World

“Most value creation takes place not at the startup phase, when new companies are formed but at the “scale-up” phase, when a select number of these companies grow at dizzying pace. This growth is so rapid that I believe it deserves a new term to describe it: Blitzscaling.” - Reid Hoffman

LinkedIn co-founder, legendary investor and author of the New York Times bestseller The Start-up of You reveals the secret to starting and scaling massively valuable companies. For most of the world, the terms "Silicon Valley" and "startup" are synonymous. Indeed, Silicon Valley is home to a disproportionate number of companies that have grown from garage startups into global giants. But what is the secret to these startups' extraordinary success? Contrary to the popular narrative, it's not their superhuman founders or savvy venture capitalists. Rather, it's that they have learned how to Blitzscale.

Blitzscaling is a specific set of practices for igniting and managing dizzying growth; an accelerated path to the stage in a startup's life-cycle where the most value is created. It prioritizes speed over efficiency in an environment of uncertainty, and allows a company to go from "startup" to "scaleup" at a furious pace that captures the market.

Drawing on Hoffman's experiences as an executive at PayPal and co-founder at LinkedIn, Hoffman and Yeh show readers the best way to quickly take their company from scrappy startup to global giant.

THE POWER OF DECOUPLING

The Impact of Consumer-Driven Disruption

Thales Teixeira

February 2019

Rights: World

Based on six years of research, Harvard Business School professor Thales Teixeira shows how and why industries are disrupted, and what established companies can do to respond -- as well as what potential startups must master if they hope to gain a competitive edge.

As it turns out, there is a pattern to disruption in an industry, whether the disruptor is Uber, Airbnb or a dozen other startups that have shaken up incumbents and threatened the status quo.

For disruptors to pose a threat to an industry, they have to successfully break the link in choosing, purchasing or consuming a product or service. Upstarts, Teixeira shows, do not attempt to compete with or overtake a reigning incumbent company entirely. Instead, they work to peel away a portion of the consumer decision-making process, the way Birchbox offered women a new way to sample new beauty products from a variety of cosmetics and fragrance companies, without having to go to the Revlon or Estée Lauder store. Zipcar doesn't attempt to compete head to head with GM, but rather to offer people who need transportation an alternative way to get around, without owning a car themselves, or being responsible for fuel, maintenance, or insurance.

In a penetrating narrative filled with case studies and stories, Teixeira shows us how start-ups successfully disrupt industries -- and what industry leaders must do to avoid being disrupted and protect their domain.

Thales Teixeira holds a Ph.D. in marketing from the University of Michigan. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration and master's degree in statistics at the University of São Paulo, Brazil. Before joining Harvard Business School, Professor Teixeira was an independent quantitative marketing consultant to technology and financial services companies.

After more than ten years of smuggling creativity into the business sector without getting busted, Tania's learned that any task or pursuit can be a creative one. But we need to be willing to break the rules, disrupt the norms, and color outside the lines to create fertile ground for fresh new opportunities, ideas and insights to emerge. Once we learn to celebrate the things that make us stand out - with all our quirks and flaws - is when we truly shine.

THE GROWTH OS

David Kidder

March 2019

Rights: World English (Translation rights with David Black Agency)

In The Growth OS, start-up guru David Kidder and the Bionic team reveal their blueprint for helping companies recapture their growth skills -- by funding a portfolio of start-ups and monitoring their progress to encourage entrepreneurship within companies.

When David Kidder was invited to speak at GE's annual leadership conference in 2012, he yelled down to chairman and CEO Jeff Immelt, "How many $50 million companies did you launch last year?" The answer was zero. But Immelt, rather than being angry or offended at the interruption, candidly said to his teams, "That was the most important question in the thirty-seven years of this conference." The fact is, as Kidder shows in The Growth OS, entrenched thinking and outdated bureaucracy is at war with new ideas.

Yet, of the top five companies by market cap in 2001, only Microsoft remains, in 2016. Traditional companies have tumbled off the list.

To think like a scaled start-up, companies today need to look for markets that haven't been discovered or created yet. They need to identify a customer problem, and work backward from the outside in to discover a business model for that solution. The Growth OS is designed to instill the mindsets, methods and tools that veteran venture investors and experienced entrepreneurs use to discover the future in the face of the unknowable. But even most bets placed by VC's fail, more than 80% of the time. That is why you need a portfolio of investments, and a growth board to measure the progress of each business, only continuing to fund those that show validated progress.

David Kidder is an entrepreneur with a wide range of web-based application expertise focused on social, mobile, and digital advertising. He is the co-founder and CEO of Bionic, an enterprise social innovation platform. Kidder is a graduate of the Rochester Institute of Technology, and received ID Magazine's International Design Award and Ernst and Young's Entrepreneur of the Year Award in 2008.

BIG POTENTIAL

How Transforming the Pursuit of Success Raises Our Achievement, Happiness, and Well-Being

Shawn Achor

January 2018

Rights: World

Praise for Shawn Achor:

"BIG POTENTIAL turns our notions of success upside down. It shows that the secret to achievement isn't to focus on one's self, but to lift up the lives of others. Then it outlines the practical, actionable steps to turn these ideas into action. This book is another reminder of the inspiring power of Shawn Achor."— Daniel H. Pink, bestselling author of WHEN and DRIVE

A vibrant book on how to bring out the best in others—and how they can bring out the best in us. With enticing stories, fresh studies, contagious enthusiasm, and immensely practical tips, this is Shawn Achor at his best." - Adam Grant, New York Times bestselling author of GIVE AND TAKE, ORIGINALS, and OPTION B with Sheryl Sandberg

We have long thought about potential as being a set of individual traits; your creativity, your skills, your intelligence., In a world that thrives on competition and individual achievement, we are encouraged, and in some instances pressured, to pursue success in isolation - pushing others away as we push ourselves too hard. In doing so, we are not just limiting our potential, we are becoming more stressed and disconnected than ever. But thanks to exciting new research combining neuroscience and psychology with Big Data, we now know that our potential is not limited by what we alone can achieve. Instead, it is determined by how we complement, contribute to, and benefit from the abilities and achievements of people around us. Drawing on cutting edge original research, Achor shows that success and happiness are not competitive sports. Rather, they depend almost entirely on how well we connect with, relate to, and learn from each other.

The Third Door takes readers on an unprecedented adventure—from hacking Warren Buffett’s shareholders meeting to chasing Larry King through a grocery store to celebrating in a nightclub with Lady Gaga—as Alex Banayan travels from icon to icon, decoding their success. After remarkable one-on-one interviews with Bill Gates, Maya Angelou, Steve Wozniak, Jane Goodall, Larry King, Jessica Alba, Pitbull, Tim Ferriss, Quincy Jones, and many more, Alex discovered the one key they have in common: they all took the Third Door.

There’s the First Door: the main entrance, where ninety-nine percent of people wait in line, hoping to get in. The Second Door: the VIP entrance, where the billionaires and celebrities slip through. But what no one tells you is that there is always, always... the Third Door. It’s the entrance where you have to jump out of line, run down the alley, bang on the door a hundred times, climb over the dumpster, crack open the window, sneak through the kitchen—there’s always a way in. Whether it’s how Bill Gates sold his first piece of software or how Steven Spielberg became the youngest studio director in Hollywood history, they all took the Third Door.

THE FATE OF FOOD

What We'll Eat in a Bigger, Hotter, Smarter World

Amanda Little

March 2019

Rights: World

Weaving together stories from the world's most creative and controversial innovators in the world of food farming and production, The Fate of Food documents the race to secure the global food supply and explores the future of sustainable food and agriculture.

From dairies in India where microchips embedded in cow flanks transmit real-time data about the animals' health and milk quality and into the fields of Nigerian farmers who are growing the world's first drought-tolerant rice, The Fate of Food tells the story of human innovation through food, examining both old and new approaches to food production and their costs and benefits in an era of climate change. Amanda Little seeks to answer questions like: can GMOs actually be good for the environment? What are the most sustainable sources of protein, long-term? What would it take to not just reduce but eliminate harmful chemicals from farming and processed foods? Her investigation takes her to the most extreme frontiers of modern food production, meeting pioneers such as the California botanist restoring thousand-year-old nutrients in fruits and vegetables and the Dutch entrepreneur mass-producing flour made from crickets.

The Fate of Food will tell the defining story of the sustainable food revolution - not the movement of the past decade that brought us farm-to-table restaurants and biodynamic wines, but the broader movement that will feed nine billion people in a hotter, smarter world and a future that is unfolding right now. Readers will gain a deeper, more human understanding of climate change, along with a sense of awe and optimism about the scope of human ingenuity.

Amanda Little teaches investigative journalism and creative non-fiction at Vanderbilt University, where she is Writer-in-Residence in the English Department. She went to Brown University and has been working in online media since 1996, when she was the first employee of the first online magazine, FEED. Little has published interviews with public figures ranging from Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton and John Kerry to John McCain and Rupert Murdoch. She serves on the Board of Trustees at Fisk University in Nashville.

From the utterly charming blogger who lost over 125 pounds in one year by making all her meals in her Instant Pot, 125 fast, easy, and tasty electric pressure cooker recipes for anyone looking to lose weight.

Brittany Williams had struggled with her weight all her life. She grew up eating the standard American staples--fast, frozen, fried, and processed--and hit a peak weight of 260 pounds. When her 4-year-old daughter's autoimmune disease was alleviated by a low-sugar, dairy-free, grain-free, whole-food-based diet, Brittany realized she owed her own body the same kind of healing. So on January 1, 2017, she vowed to make every meal for a year from scratch, aided by her new Instant Pot. She discovered that the versatility, speed, and ease of the electric pressure cooker made creating wholesome, tasty, family-satisfying meals a breeze, usually taking under 30 minutes. Not only did the family thrive over the course of the year, Brittany lost an astonishing 125 pounds.

Illustrated with almost 50 full-color photos, Instant Loss Cookbook shares the 125 recipes and meal plans that Brittany used for her own weight loss, 75% of which are recipes for the Instant Pot or other multicooker. These recipes are whole food-based with a spotlight on veggies, and mostly dairy and grain-free--and she uses ingredients that you can find at any grocery store. Her ingredient lists are refreshingly approachable, and her recipes are the clearest guides to navigating your Instant Pot or other multicooker that you'll find. Here's how to make healthy eating convenient--the key to sustainable weight loss.

Brittany Williams, a mother of three, blogger and self-proclaimed lover of food, decided to make a big change in her diet by removing processed snacks, takeout and high-calorie meals from her family's menus. And she replaced those foods with healthier meals she could make in her Instant Pot. She has since lost 125 pounds and has been featured in media including Good Morning America, The Today Show, and more.

THE FAST FIX PLAN

Repair Your Liver, Stop Storing Fat, and Become Naturally Thin and Healthy

Alan Christianson

January 2019

Rights: World

Trim: 6-1/8 x 9-1/4 in

Illustrations: Charts, roughly 50 recipes

A new book from the author of The Adrenal Reset Diet. The Fast Fix Plan will be based around Dr. Alan Christianson's four-week plan, a fasting process that resets and cleanses the liver, which in turn can help readers lose weight, increase immune function and cognition, and even reverse diabetes. High blood sugar is caused by damage to the pancreas and liver, which is why some people still struggle with weight loss and lowering blood sugar, even if they cut out sugar and carbs.

Christianson uses intermittent fasting over a four-week period of time to cleanse the liver and reboot health and weight loss. His fasting is less extreme than many calorie restriction plans and produces the same overall health results. The program has been clinically proven to reverse diabetes and help people drop 15 pounds in as few as four weeks. Cleansing the liver two or three times a year using this fast will help readers reboot their system and result in improved long-term health. The book will include recipes, meal plans, a four-week exercise plan, and a maintenance chapter.

THE HAVING

The Secret Art of Feeling and Growing Rich

Joo Yun (Joanne) Hong with Suh Yoon Lee

February 2019

Rights: World (Korean rights sold by the author)

When Wharton MBA Joanne Hong went seeking the true secret of creating wealth, she found herself studying under Suh Yoon Lee, a mysterious and famed Korean wealth guru. Here, Joanne shares the lessons she learned in this life-changing narrative that shows readers how to become truly wealthy, in the financial and spiritual sense, by employing the "mentality of the rich," a practice refined over three decades of experience and classical teachings.

Suh Yoon Lee was identified as a wealth guru at the age of six by her grandmother, and set off on a course of study -- ranging from Asian classical texts to economics to an analysis of 100,000 case studies -- to learn the methods for how to become truly rich. Although a bestselling author in South Korea and famed advisor to the 1%, Suh Yoon Lee had retreated into seclusion, troubled by the impact her guidance to the wealthy may have had on income disparity around the world.

Joanne Hong, a journalist, Wharton MBA, and former McKinsey consultant, has devoted her adult life to understanding how to build personal wealth without an inheritance in an era of increasing inequality. She wrote to the guru for an interview, never expecting a response. Instead, the guru invited her to Lake Como, Italy, for a conversation. This invitation set off a life-changing lesson about how anyone can apply the true secret of wealth to their life.

In spectacular destinations ranging from Paris to Tokyo, this intimate narrative traces the growing friendship between these two women in a series of conversations that create a framework for the everyday person to experience the ease and comfort of wealth. Suh Yoon Lee is a beautiful, empathetic woman, and her counterintuitive guidance is premised on the notion that almost all people have the capacity to attain 1 to 3 million dollars--and some have a capacity for much more. And that journey begins with feeling what you already have.

As Joanne applies the guru's practical lessons in her everyday life, she experiences a transformation of her mood, fulfillment and, ultimately, her net worth--a transformation available to anyone who practices the system of Having.

Families today are pulled in so many different directions, and with the increasing pressure to excel at parenting, home keeping, work, and personal relationships, it's easy to feel overwhelmed and dissatisfied. Positive Discipline for Today's Busy (and Overwhelmed) Parent will include information on specific tools that can be used for working parents to keep permissive parenting at bay and avoid pampering in the name of guilt (for instance, Decide What You Will Do and Take Time for Hugs), as well as tips for parents on how to balance out their "wheel of life" and strategies to keep from being overwhelmed at bay.
