RECIPE FOR A PERFECT WIFE 4 February 2020

KARMA BROWN

In this captivating dual narrative novel, a modern-day woman finds inspiration in hidden notes left by her home's previous owner, a quintessential 1950s housewife.

As she discovers remarkable parallels between this woman's life and her own, it causes her to question the foundation of her own relationship with her husband--and what it means to be a wife fighting for her place in a patriarchal society.

'A bold, intoxicating, page-turner. Karma Brown has long been a favorite of mine' Taylor Jenkins Reid, New York Times bestselling author of Daisy Jones & The Six

'A brilliant, brooding, timely novel, fraught with tension, that packs a punch. Brown knows how to keep readers riveted until the very last page.' Mary Kubica, New York Times bestselling author of The Good Girl

'Brown's vivid storytelling deftly explores the joys and limitations of the role of wife – a wonderful read.' Fiona Davis, international bestselling author of The Chelsea Girls

THE WOMAN ON THE GOLDEN HIND

April 1579: When two ships meet off the Pacific coast of New Spain, an enslaved woman seizes the chance to escape.

But Maria has unwittingly joined Francis Drake's circumnavigation voyage and he's about to set sail on a secret detour to find the fabled Anian Straits in the far north.

Sailing into danger, fog and ice on the Golden Hind, a lone woman among eighty men, Maria will be tested to the very limits of her endurance. It will take all her wits to survive – and courage to cut the ties that bind her to Drake to pursue her own journey.

How far will Maria go to be truly free?

Inspired by a true story, this is the tale of one woman's uncharted voyage of survival.

'Gripping tale of true feminine courage, strength and spirit of adventure... Marmery gives voice to a woman who, like so many others, has been written out of history.' Martine McDonagh

'A gripping adventure story... Marmery brings Maria vividly to life along with a tremendous crew of compelling and believable characters, including Drake himself.' Mandy Haggith

Orphaned young, H is sent to live with her doting aunt in London. H's life is a happy one until her lecherous cousin robs her of her innocence, and the plague takes away the city and the people she loves. H is cast out – friendless, pregnant and destitute – into the rapidly emptying streets of London under quarantine.

Forced to fend for herself, she is determined to gain back the life she lost. H will face a villain out for revenge, find love in the most unexpected places, and overcome a betrayal that she never could have foreseen. Weathering it all, can H charm, or scheme, her way to the life of freedom and independence that she longs for?

'I became interested in the position of women in Restoration society when researching my doctoral thesis. It quickly became apparent that the only economically and socially independent women in late seventeenth century society were widows, actresses and prostitutes. I wanted to write about a woman who falls outside the bounds of respectability but nevertheless is able to survive – and ultimately thrive.' Sarah Burton

Empowering female-led historical fiction

Key Selling Points:

- The rags-to-riches story of a sharp young woman who loses everything in the 1665 Great Plague of London and must build herself back up from nothing.
- Strong female characters.

Afaf Rahman, the daughter of Palestinian immigrants, is the principal of Nurrideon School for Girls, a Muslim school in the Chicago suburbs. One morning, a shooter—radicalized by the online alt-right—attacks the school.

As Afaf listens to his terrifying progress, we are swept back through her memories: the bigotry she faced as a child, her mother's dreams of returning to Palestine, and the devastating disappearance of her older sister that tore her family apart. Still, there is the sweetness of the music from her father's oud, and the hope and community Afaf finally finds in Islam.

The Beauty of Your Face is a profound and poignant exploration of one woman's life in a nation at odds with its ideals.

'The Beauty of Your Face is a gift to readers.' Laila Lalami, award-winning author of The Other Americans and The Moor's Account

'An insightful and beautifully-drawn study of the complexity of being an American Muslim immigrant' Rajia Hassib, author of In the Language of Miracles

'Mustafah writes with a grace and precision that shows a deep understanding for the ways trauma can distort a life... a richly empathetic work about the power of faith, family, and love.' Maurice Carlos Ruffin, author of We Cast a Shadow

'A striking and stirring debut' Rebecca Makkai, Pulitzer finalist for The Great Believers

As a sleepy town in rural Ireland starts to wake, a road subsides, trapping an early-morning bus and five passengers inside. Rescue teams struggle and as two are eventually saved, the bus falls deeper into the hole.

Under the watchful eyes of the media, the lives of three people are teetering on the edge. And for those on the outside, from Nina, the reporter covering the story, to rescue liaison, Tim, and Richie, the driver pulled from the wreckage, each are made to look at themselves under the glare of the spotlight.

When their world crumbles beneath their feet, they are forced to choose between what they cling to and what they must let go of.

THE COLOUR OF THUNDER 15 OCTOBER 2020

SUZANNE HARRISON

One small island, six troubled lives, and the storm of the century is on its way.

In one of the world's most vibrant international cities, present day Hong Kong, the lives of six people become irreversibly intertwined. The past is catching up with those running from it, while the futures of others hangs dangerously in the balance. But who knows the most? And what will they do to get it?

'Most people think of Hong Kong as simply high rises and a shopping mecca for cheap handbags. But there are loads of interesting characters, plenty of political intrigue, lovely locales to reveal, cultural crossroads - and I have tried to encompass all that in to this book. There have been some great books set in Hong Kong written in English, but I do think there could be many more. The city has a lot more going for it on the story telling front and I would like to get that out there to a wider audience.' Suzanne Harrison

A young woman living on the street has to keep her wits about her. Or her friends. But when the drugs kick in that can be hard.

Anton has been looking out for her. She was safe with him. But then Steve came along.

He had something over Anton. Must have. But he had a flat they could crash in. And gear in his pocket. And she can't stop thinking about it. A good hit makes everything all right.

But the flat smells weird.

There's a lock on Steve's bedroom door.
And the guy is intense.

The problem is, sometimes you just don't know you are in too deep, until you are drowning.

Kuba is a cocaine dealer in the dark, electric streets of Warsaw, believing he is smart enough to stay in control, unlike the top lawyers, doctors, TV personalities who are his client base.

However, after calling in the debt of a failing nightclub owner, breaking his own rules on other people's property and being caught in the consequences of his clients' actions, all control starts to slip from his grasp.

Now suffering under the glare of the spotlight and dragged into the dark underbelly of the drug world, Kuba must find a way through the middle of the whirlwind of violence and betrayal sweeping him away.

'Tough, knowing, high-octane crime fiction... Los Angeles has James Ellroy, Boston has Dennis Lehane, Oslo has Jo Nesbo. And Warsaw has its own two-fisted crime laureate in Jakub Żulczyk. Already a massive bestseller in Poland, this is brilliant stuff from a fresh new voice in crime fiction.' Tony Parsons

'Dark, dangerous, and seductive. A multi-layered story that – like his anti-hero's product – will assault your senses and leave you craving for more. This is post-Communist Warsaw, but it could be Moscow, New York, or London. A truly terrific piece of writing and I can't recommend it enough.' G.D. Abson

'A striking novel, brilliantly written - for the fans of the dark and gritty!' Robert Bryndza

Bestselling author, over half a million copies sold

Key Selling Points:

- Half a million copies now sold in Poland.
- The book has been made into a critically acclaimed HBO Europe TV series.
- Received a Polish Academy Award for Best Feature Series.
- High profile author, recently featured in Polish Vogue.

Summer, 1962. A scorching heat wave is suffocating L.A. PI John Keegan is offered a small fortune to find a beautiful woman from a set of photographs. He refuses; the job seems suspicious.

But the next day the same woman, Eve, turns up, unbidden, on his doorstep. Eve fears for her safety. She is being watched. Before Keegan knows it, someone has been killed with Keegan's own gun, and he gets sucked into a world of suspicion and betrayal where he's never quite sure where the truth lies. Before long he's the prime suspect in a murder he didn't commit, and all the evidence seems to point in his direction.

It's almost like someone planned it that way.

A stylish commercial thriller, the first in the PI John Keegan series

'A fabulous story, I was instantly transported to 1960's LA. Paul Buchanan is a gifted storyteller and I found myself lost in a world of Private investigators, murder and betrayal. I can't wait to read more.' Helen Phifer

Lizzie Burdett was eighteen when she vanished. Noah Carruso has never forgotten her: she was his first crush; his unrequited love. She was also his brother's girlfriend.

Tom Carruso hasn't been home in over a decade. He left soon after Lizzie disappeared, under a darkening cloud of suspicion. Now he's coming home for the inquest into Lizzie's death, intent on telling his side of the story for the first time.

As the inquest looms, Noah meets Alice Pryce while on holiday in Thailand. They fall in love fast and hard, but Noah can't bear to tell Alice his deepest fears. And Alice is equally stricken, for she carries a terrible secret of her own.

He's guarding a dark secret, but so is she.

Arabella Lane is found dead in the Thames on a frosty winter's morning after the office Christmas party. No one is sure whether she jumped or was pushed. The one person who may know the truth is the office temp, Eleanor.

Having travelled to London to escape the repercussions of her traumatic childhood in Australia, tragedy seems to follow Eleanor wherever she goes. To her horror, she has no memory of the crucial hours leading up to Arabella's death - memory that will either incriminate or absolve her.

Caught in a crossfire of accusations, Eleanor fears she can't even trust herself, let alone the people around her. And soon, she'll find herself in a race against time to find out just what happened that night - and discover just how deadly some secrets can be.

Many, whether completing education or looking for a change of career, will have started to consider entering the business world. Whether taking up a career in industry, starting up their own business or studying business, the first barrier to overcome may be complete or partial lack of knowledge of what business is actually all about; its basic concepts and terminology.

A Business Guide for Beginners addresses the needs of readers seeking to develop their practical knowledge of business: how it is organised and functions. This business primer also sets out to give those who decide to give business a go with ideas and, hopefully, motivations for approaching their ventures into the business world with recipes for success.

Part 1: Introduction to Business

What is Business? Business and the Economy, Some Key Success Concepts

Part 2: The Main Functional Areas of a Company

People Management, Marketing, Finance, Operations, Quality

Part 3: Practical Aspects of Starting a Business

Starting a Business, Business Strategy, Business Ethics

Part 4: The Success Recipe

Conclusions, How to Get Noticed in an Organisation

An essential guide to business

Key Selling Points:

- Covers the fundamentals of business through to supporting the drive to succeed.
- Offers the perfect bridge in the market between topic-specific or overly-complex titles and builds on the very basics with strong, concrete information and advice.

This book on wisdom is BIG not because of its length, but because it is about everything and for everyone.

Combining scientific findings with logical and intuitive reasoning, we are taken on a journey to look into our intellectual and spiritual experiences. Topics such as Capitalism, Education, Religion, Politics, Health, are explored and we look at the imbalance between our aims and values as well as the discovery of intersecting cosmic miracles of existence, life, consciousness, love and unity.

The Big Book of Wisdom is a guide on how to live a meaningful life, how to grow through adversity towards maturity, and making one's contribution, little by little, to a better, safer, cleaner, healthier, much happier world.

'This gem of a book' David Lorimer, Programme Director, Scientific and Medical Network

'A wise teacher whose wisdom needs to be heard' Dominic Walker OGS, former Bishop of Monmouth

Markets: World ex US and Canada
Translation rights: Yes

You will meet people in your lifetime who demand to have poems written about them. It's not something they say. It's something about their hands, the shape of their mouths, the way they look walking away from you.

Honeybee is an honest take on walking away and still feeling like you were walked away from. It's about cutting love loose like a kite string and praying the wind has the decency to carry it away from you. It's an ode to the back and forth, the process of letting something go but not knowing where to put it down. Honeybee is putting it down. It's small town girls and plane tickets, a taste of tenderness and honey, the bandage on the bee sting. It's a reminder that you are not defined by the people you walk away from or the people who walk away from you.

Consider Honeybee a memoir in verse, or at the very least, a story written by one of today's most confessional poets.

"There were nights we were so soft,
I could feel her growing next to me;
but just because you grow together
doesn't mean you're meant to stay.
People don't have roots for a reason.
The best thing about intertwining hands together is that you can stop when you need to."

This is the book of Y.O.U. (Your Own Universe) which is designed to track and compound your life's capital.

The reason for this book is to make you aware of your Spirituality and Consciousness. The analogy of currency to our basic life's capital is a representation of the wealth of our spirit and the height of our consciousness. The book will take you on a journey to explore your belief systems regarding a variety of topics including Trust, Gratitude, Acknowledgment, Relationships, Sex, Energy, Presence... You will find exercises which may assist you in evaluating your personal development and increasing and maintaining your spiritual performance.

The exercises are short, thought provoking and easy to complete. Feel free to rewrite and edit these sessions as your self-awareness grows. Unlike other academic exercises, there are no grades or wrong answers; so be candid and enjoy the revelations or what we like to call, "ah hah" moments. These moments of clarity and discovery will happen more frequently as your Spiritual Currency grows and Your Own Universe reveals itself.

Coffee Days, Whiskey Nights is a collection of poetry, prose, and aphorisms that juxtaposes the hopefulness a brand new day can bring with the lingering thoughts that keep us up into the late-night hours.

A lot can happen between the first sip of coffee and the last taste of whiskey, and this book takes a look at the way a single day can change our outlook on everything from relationships with others, to our relationships with ourselves, and everything in between.

Ultimately, it illustrates that no matter how hopeless we may feel at the end of a day, a new one is only a few hours away.

From a popular writer with strong poetry and LGBT community connections, comes an exploration of the optimism a cup of coffee can bring to the lingering whiskey-fuelled thoughts that keep us up late at night.

"Having everything does not stop the want, the need, the hunger, while we are in the process of imploding into ourselves.

A black hole doesn't care how many stars it's devoured.

All it knows is the need to consume."

China is challenging the mighty behemoths, Google and Facebook, and creating alternative New Media; 750 million people are on its Social Mediascape and there are a billion mobile phones deploying the innovative apps with which Chinese conduct their lives. Though late starters, already four of the world's leading New Media companies are Chinese.

China's old media – television, newspapers, radio – compete with the established powers, long thought unassailable, such as CNN and BBC. Produced in many languages on every continent, they are re-defining the agenda and telling the story China's way. News and documentary are being followed by entertainment. The world's biggest manufacturer of TV drama is now making its stories for export. China's Media tells you why and how; it investigates the Chinese media, their strengths and weaknesses, and how they are different. Abjuring the customary casual writing off of China's media as 'propaganda', this book takes them seriously.

"I can think of no one better qualified to tell us about a subject of ever-growing importance"

Children find face-to-face conversation 'too much effort' preferring to watch YouTube, an Ofcom Report (2019) claims. The media watchdog says that 4-16-year-olds would rather watch screens alone than meet up with friends or pursue sports and hobbies, as these are more effort than they feel like expending. Are you speechless! We should all be shocked, reflecting on the consequences for both the individual and society's mental and physical health as well as sense of well-being.

The book unpicks the issues surrounding educational problems that are continuing challenges in schools and colleges, suggesting that a different approach to assessing and teaching is needed to develop relevant learning and achievements.

"This book is an energised, wide-ranging, intelligent, humorous and human journey. It sweeps over time, history and a vast array of cultures, societies, studies and ideas in order to provide the reader with a rich but readable response to the challenges that educators, parents and young people face today and in the future."
