COURTNEY SHEINMEL

EDGEWATER

Abrams/Amulet
September, 2015

- Romance, political intrigue, and family secrets combine in this scandalous riches-to-rags novel

Lorrie lives between worlds. She appears to be yet another member of the Long Island elite but Edgewater, her family estate, has fallen into disrepair under the control of her manic aunt, her hippie sister, and the slew of feral cats that have overrun her home. But it isn't until Lorrie gets kicked out of camp for overdue payment and sent back to Long Island that she's forced to deal with the mounting pile of issues (and bills) that she's been avoiding for years.

As Lorrie unravels the mystery of her family's sudden lack of funds, she unearths the startling truth about the mother that abandoned her. She is also trying to restrain her feelings for Charlie Copeland while trying to keep the state of her family secret. But it seems Lorrie and Charlie's families may share more in common than either Lorrie or Charlie could anticipate.

"Textured, rich, and evocative. Courtney Sheinmel's Edgewater is a profound story of belonging and pretending, and of the ways that the past and present become mysteriously, and sometimes dangerously, intertwined."

—Lauren Oliver, New York Times bestselling author of Delirium and Before I Fall

"Edgewater is absolutely extraordinary. Teen readers will know Lorrie because they will know her pride, her frustration, and her heart-wrenching need to make right all that is so wrong and broken.

Lorrie's house; the neglect, the squalor, and most especially the disturbing wildcard presence of Aunt Gigi, all serve to convey an atmosphere of shame that is so immediate and resonate, and so masterfully told, you will not be able to put the book down."

—Adele Griffin, two-time National Book Award Finalist

Courtney Sheinmel is the author of Sincerely, All the Things You Are, and the Stella Batts series for young readers. Her books have received numerous awards, including the Sequoyah Award (Positively), a National Parenting Publication Awards honorable mention (the Stella Batts series), and have appeared on recommended lists, including the ABC Best Books for Children. THE SPY'S SON: How a Top CIA Officer Twice Betrayed Country and Kin for Russia

Grove/Atlantic
May, 2015

- A heartrending story of spying and a father/son relationship
- Film rights have been sold to Paramount, with Robert Deniro and Shia LeBeouf attached to star. A script is currently being written by Kario Salem.

Jim Nicholson is the highest ranking CIA official convicted of spying. He is also the only person twice convicted of spying.

Jim Nicholson was so good at his job at the CIA that he was nicknamed Batman. He was young and dynamic. But he also had a taste for the expensive. So he began spying for Russia, giving up the names of CIA secret operatives all over the world for cash. Then he was caught.

Jim's family was devastated, especially his youngest son, Nathan. At the lowest point in Nathan's life, a time when he had recently attempted suicide, Jim convinced Nathan to help him continue spying for Russia. Jim promised Nathan that Nathan would be doing nothing illegal, and Nathan was so desperate to believe his father, he pushed aside all reservations he might have had. Until he, too, was finally caught spying.

This is much more than a story about spying. This is a story of love and betrayal.

"In a stunning piece of reporting Bryan Denson has unraveled one of the strangest spy stories in American history and written a haunting book as fast paced and as exciting as the best spy novel. It will keep readers awake as he takes them deep into a world of international espionage populated by KGB and CIA agents, American spy catchers and a family they'll never forget-and it's all true."

--Robert Lindsey, author of The Falcon and the Snowman

Bryan Denson is a staff reporter for The Oregonian newspaper. He has won the George Polk Award and has been nominated for the Pulitzer Prize, among many other awards and recognitions.

SCOTT FARRIS

THE MOST DESIRABLE WOMAN IN THE WORLD: The Life of Inga Arvad

Lyons Press
Fall, 2016

The great love of President John F. Kennedy's life, Inga Arvad, was also a suspected Nazi spy, and in fact, Adolf Hitler's special guest at the 1936 Berlin Olympics. She was an actress, a journalist, and explorer, a screenwriter. In addition to her romance with Kennedy, Arvad married four times — including to an Egyptian prince, the brilliant filmmaker Paul Fejos (with whom she went to live with a tribe of headhunters in Indonesia), and the famed cowboy movie star Tim McCoy. She had affairs with Wall Street financier Bernard Baruch, the noted surgeon Dr. William Cahan, and Winston Churchill's right hand man, Baron Robert Boothby.

Yes, she was Miss Denmark in 1931, but by all accounts, these men loved Inga not for her physical beauty but for her joie de vivre. She was a genius with people, she was daring and adventurous, and she was their equal.

Like Isak Dinesen, Beryl Markham, and Claire Booth Luce, Inga Arvad led a life that both sheds light on and defies the stereotypes of women of her time. Inga's life took place among the European and American elite (the overlap of which is stunning); it took place during the rise of Hitler's Berlin and the outbreak of World War II; it took place where the gossip intersects with history, and demonstrates the powerful influence of the private life on public events.

Scott Farris is a former bureau chief for United Press International and a political communist. He is also the author of ALMOST PRESIDENT: The Men Who Lost the Race but Changed the Nation and KENNEDY AND REAGAN: Why Their Legacies Endure. He is the Director of Government Relations for TransCanada and lives with his family in Portland, Oregon.
