Abramsky, Sasha

THE HOUSE OF TWENTY THOUSAND BOOKS

(New York Review Books, September 2015) (UK: Halban Publishers, June 2014)

Trade Paperback, 336 pages

This is the story of Sasha Abramsky's grandparents, Chimen and Miriam Abramsky, and of their unique home at 5 Hillway, around the corner from Hampstead Heath. In their semi-detached house, so deceptively ordinary from the outside, the Abramskys created a remarkable House of Books. It became the repository for Chimen's collection of thousands upon thousands of books, manuscripts and other printed, handwritten and painted documents, representing his journey through the great political, philosophical, religious and ethical debates that have shaped the western world.

Chimen Abramsky was barely a teenager when his father, a famous rabbi, was arrested by Stalin's secret police and sentenced to five years hard labour in Siberia, and fifteen when his family was exiled to London. Lacking a university degree, he nevertheless became a polymath, always obsessed with collecting ideas, with capturing the meanderings of the human soul through the world of great thoughts and thinkers. Rejecting his father's Orthodoxy, he became a Communist, made his living as a book-dealer and amassed a huge, and astonishingly rare, library of socialist literature and memorabilia. Disillusioned with Communism and belatedly recognising the barbarity at the core of Stalin's project, he transformed himself once more, this time into a liberal and a humanist. To his socialist library was added a vast trove of Jewish history volumes. Chimen ended his career as Professor of Hebrew and Jewish studies at UCL, London and rare manuscripts expert for Sotheby's.

With his wife Miriam, Chimen made their house a focal point for left-wing intellectual Jewish life: hundreds of the world's leading thinkers, from Isaiah Berlin to Eric Hobsbawm, dined at their table. THE HOUSE OF TWENTY THOUSAND BOOKS brings alive this latter-day salon by telling the story of Chimen Abramsky's love affair with ideas and with the world of books and of Miriam's obsession with being a hostess and with entertaining. Room by room, book by book, idea by idea, the world of these politically engaged intellectuals, autodidacts and dreamers is lovingly resurrected. In this extraordinary elegy to a lost world, Sasha Abramsky's passionate narrative brings to life once more not just the Hillway salon, but the ideas, the conflicts, the personalities and the human yearnings that animated it.

Sasha Abramsky was born in England, grew up in London, and attended Balliol College, Oxford, where he studied politics, philosophy, and economics. Abramsky is a journalist and author whose work has appeared in The Nation, American Prospect, The New Yorker online, and many other publications. His most recent book, The American Way of Poverty: How the Other Half Still Lives was listed by The New York Times as among the one hundred notable books of 2013. He is a Senior Fellow at Demos think tank, and teaches writing at University of California Davis. Abramsky lives in Sacramento, California with his wife and their two children.

Praise:

"This is a fierce and beautiful book. It burns with a passion for ideas, the value of history, the need for argument. As a memoir of a grandfather it is sui generis. I loved it."

—Edmund de Waal, bestselling author of The Hare with Amber Eyes

"If you finish this brilliant, realized book thinking you need to own more books, you're to be forgiven. A wonderful celebration of the mind, history, and love." —Kirkus, starred review

"[T]ransformative journeys were undertaken by more than a million Russian Jews between the 1890s and 1920s, expelled by successive waves of pogroms, revolution, civil war and persecution. Sasha Abramsky's tender, intelligent, many-layered memoir of his grandparents, The House of Twenty Thousand Books, is a version of this same story, at once epic and intimate, rooted in family life but encompassing the sweep of history. At its heart are loss and renewal, tradition and reinvention, schism and continuity." --Rebecca Abram, *Financial Times

MEET ME IN ATLANTIS: My Obsessive Quest to Find the Sunken City

(Dutton/Penguin, March 2015)

Hardcover (336 pages)

UK Commonwealth Rights sold to Text Publishing (via Penguin USA)

A New York Times bestseller!

New York Times* bestselling author Mark Adams pursues one of history's greatest unsolved mysteries: The Lost City of Atlantis.

A few years ago, Mark Adams made a strange discovery: Everything we know about the legendary lost city of Atlantis comes from the work of one man, the Greek philosopher Plato. Then he made a second, stranger discovery: Amateur explorers are still actively searching for this sunken city all around the world, based entirely on the clues Plato left behind.

Adams racks up frequent-flier miles tracking down these Atlantis obsessives, trying to determine why they believe it's possible to find the world's most famous lost city—and whether any of their theories could prove or disprove its existence. He visits scientists using cutting-edge technology to find legendary civilizations once thought to be fictional. He examines the numerical and musical codes hidden in Plato's writings, and with the help of some charismatic sleuths traces their roots back to Pythagoras, the sixth-century-BC mathematician. He learns how ancient societies transmitted accounts of cataclysmic events—and how one might dig out the “kernel of truth” in Plato's original tale.

MEET ME IN ATLANTIS is Adams' enthralling account of his quest to solve one of history's greatest mysteries; a travelogue that takes readers to fascinating locations to meet irresistible characters; and a deep, often humorous, look at the human longing to rediscover a lost world.

Mark Adams is the author of the acclaimed history Mr. America and the New York Times bestseller, Turn Right at Machu Picchu. He writes for many national magazines, including GQ, Men's Journal and New York. He lives near New York with his family.

Praise:

“Fun, enthusiastic exploration of the fabled lost city of Atlantis and the fascinating group of diverse personalities who have dedicated their lives to proving its existence...The collision between Adams' youthful zeal and journalistic sensibilities provide an arresting dichotomy to an absorbing search... Fact or fiction, Atlantis, as the author ably demonstrates, still has the power to enthrall inquiring minds.” —Kirkus Reviews

“Adams's... prose transform[s] an academic topic into a work of travelogue, investigative journalism, and serious philosophical examination.” —Publishers Weekly

“Few mythic places exert a more powerful pull on the imagination than Atlantis, and here the fabled lost city has found its perfect chronicler. Adventurous, inquisitive, and mirthful, Mark Adams gamely sifts through the eons of rumor, science, and lore to find a place that, in the end, seems startlingly real indeed—like a vivid dream surfacing from the weird and murky depths of human consciousness.” —Hampton Sides, author of *In the Kingdom of Ice

THE SCIENCE OF GROWTH: How Facebook Beat Friendster - and How Nine Other Startups Left the Rest in the Dust (St. Martin's Press, April 2016)

Manuscript due September 2015 (256 pages)

World English rights with St. Martin's Press

The lean entrepreneurship movement has captivated Silicon Valley and entrepreneurs across the country. It's provided an agile framework to develop the right product solution for a given target market, and is now used by almost every fledgling company to do just that.

The next challenge is growth - to achieve the financial returns and, more importantly, the impact they dreamed of when starting off on their adventure. Why do some companies realize the VC's goal of a 10x return on investment, while others flounder? What differentiates the companies that become part of the fabric of our lives and remain responsive, no matter how big they get from those that quickly fade? To find out, Ammirati looks at 20 different companies in pairs, who have achieved product-market fit at about the same point in history with the same general target customer-one of which has gone on to achieve real scale, while the other languished. As his research reveals, just a handful of choices-among them, who to partner with, how to finance growth, and how to use data-make all the difference in the world. With such intriguing examples as LinkedIn vs. Spoke, Facebook vs. Friendster, and McDonald's vs. White Castle, Ammirati shows the secret of "the science of growth" and how to cultivate it in any organization.

Sean Ammirati is a Partner at Birchmere Ventures, an early-stage venture capital firm based in Pittsburgh, PA, and Palo Alto, CA, and is an Adjunct Professor of Entrepreneurship at Carnegie Mellon University. Most recently, he was the COO of ReadWriteWeb, one of the most influential sites about the future of technology and innovation. Sean was previously co-founder and CEO of mSpoke, a big data SaaS company.

Hardcover (272 pages)

World English rights with HarperCollins

An Amazon Book of the Month! (February 2015)

The author of the Wall Street Journal bestseller 18 Minutes offers simple strategies to replace energy-wasting habits that derail our success with truly effective ones.

All too often our best efforts to accomplish the things we want most—to do our jobs well, to make meaningful contributions at home and at work, to have satisfying relationships with loved ones, friends, neighbors, and coworkers—are built on bad habits that sabotage us.

In FOUR SECONDS, Peter Bregman shows that the key to success in our fast-moving world is to pause for as few as four seconds—the length of a deep breath—to replace bad habits and reactions with more productive behaviors. In his trademark style of blending personal anecdotes with practical advice, Bregman reveals some of our most common counter-productive tendencies and describes counter-intuitive strategies for acting more intentionally, including:

- Why listening—not arguing—is the best strategy for changing someone’s mind
- Why setting goals can actually harm your performance
- How to use strategic disengagement to recover focus and willpower
- How taking responsibility for someone else’s failure can actually help you succeed

Drawn from Bregman’s hugely popular Harvard Business Review blog, this engaging and wise book will help anyone—from students to CEOs—create the results they want without the stress.

DESIGN TO GROW: How Coca-Cola Learned to Combine Scale and Agility (And How You Can Too) (Simon & Schuster, February 2015)

Hardcover (256 pages)

A 800-CEO-Read Bestseller!

Expert advice from Coca-Cola's vice president of Innovation and Entrepreneurship: Learn how Coca-Cola uses design to grow its business by combining the advantages of scale with the agility to respond to fast-changing market conditions.

In today's ever-changing marketplace, companies are facing new problems inside their industries and a new level of pressure around the competitive advantages they've developed over time. Large, established companies are in danger of not being able to adapt quickly enough, while 90% of even the most agile startups fail due to their inability to scale. Tomorrow's business winners will be the ones who know how to combine scale with agility to respond to fast-changing market conditions.

In DESIGN TO GROW, Coca-Cola's vice president of Innovation and Entrepreneurship shares the successes and failures of one of the world's largest companies as it learns to use design to create both scale and agility. In this rare and unprecedented behind-the-scenes look, David Butler and senior editor Linda Tischler use practical case studies to show how this works at Coca-Cola—and how other companies, regardless of size or industry, can use the same approach to grow their businesses. Clear and actionable, DESIGN TO GROW is a must-read for managers inside large corporations as well as for entrepreneurs just getting started.

David Butler is the vice president of Innovation and Entrepreneurship at The Coca-Cola Company, where he is responsible for managing the Coca-Cola Founders platform and early-stage startup portfolio. Butler joined Coca-Cola in 2004 to lead the company's vision and strategy for design. In 2009, he was named one of Fast Company's "Masters in Design" and in 2014, Forbes included Butler in its "Executive Dream Team."

Linda Tischler is an award-winning editor at Fast Company magazine, where she writes about the intersection of design and business. She was a founding editor of Fast Company's design website, FastCoDesign.com, which is now the web's largest design site. Prior to joining Fast Company, Tischler was an editor at Boston Magazine, where she initiated the New England Design Awards. She has also written for Metropolitan Home, The Boston Globe, and The Huffington Post.

Praise:

“What explains Coca-Cola’s worldwide market dominance? David Butler and Linda Tischler argue that it’s a result of attention to design details at every level of the organization, in every product line, in every country, by every employee. Whatever the size of your enterprise, you’ll find in this book a master class in problem-solving, in cross-cultural marketing, and in decision-making.” –Daniel H. Pink, author of *To Sell is Human and Drive

“In Design to Grow, David Butler and Linda Tischler provide a step-by-step guide on how to translate design principles into lasting value. And they do it as only good designers would: simply and with a compelling story.”
–Beth Comstock, CMO, General Electric

“Big and fast, complex and focused, large scale and agile. These seem like oxymorons in the world of business innovation. Using examples from the history of Coca-Cola, Butler and Tischler show how it is possible to embrace these tensions through the use of design. Reading Design to Grow has caused me to think differently about my company. I am confident it will do the same for how you think about yours.” –Tim Brown, CEO of IDEO

Chamandy, Ian and Ken Aber with Howard Lichtman
WHY SHOULD I CHOOSE YOU? Answering the Most Important Question in Business in Seven Words or Less
(Collins Canada, April 2015)
Hardcover (272 pages)

WHY SHOULD I CHOOSE YOU? shows how being able to answer this simple and powerful question—honestly and without jargon—is the real key to effective leadership and success

For the first time ever, business architects Ken Aber and Ian Chamandy demonstrate how to find and implement the Core Proposition™ that forms your company’s Blueprint. Drawing on their own experience, they show how dramatically the right analysis and planning can impact a business. “Opening sooner” helped a retail construction company energize employees, suppliers and clients, leading to greater sales. For an actuarial company, finding its core proposition led to new areas of growth and higher revenue too. And in the fiercely competitive retail environment, a grocery store chain brought every aspect of its business together, boosting both employee performance and market share.

Now more than ever, it’s vital to be able to answer the single most important question in business: “Why should I choose you?”

Ian Chamandy co-founded and spent fifteen years running YOUtv, a company that developed, sold and managed format licences and marketing programs for broadcasters around the world. In this capacity, Ian created branding, marketing and sales strategies for national broadcasters and local TV stations including CBS, Fox, Post-Newsweek and Meredith in the US; Flextech Television in the UK; Venevision in Venezuela; El Tiempo in Colombia; Jyrki in Finland; and Citytv, MuchMusic, CBC and YTV in Canada. He also designed and executed branding, marketing and communications programs for Procter & Gamble, Bell, Warner-Lambert, Labatt, Molson, Loblaws and The Lung Association in Canada; and Kroger and the New York State Department of Health in the US. He has a BA in social psychology from the University of Waterloo.

Ken Aber has spent his career creating innovative strategic partnerships and media programs for blue-chip companies, and he has led marketing and communications programs in the categories of beer, fast food (such as McDonalds), packaged goods, financial services, automotive and tourism (such as Ontario Tourism). Ken has a MBA from Harvard University.

Ken and Ian appear regularly on CTV News Channel and write a column for the Huffington Post.

Cialdini, Robert B.

PRE-SUASION

(Simon & Schuster, 2016)

Manuscript due March 2016

In PRE-SUASION, Robert Cialdini, the world’s leading authority on influence reveals that the best persuaders succeed not just because of what they present or how they present it, but because of what they do in the moment before delivering their message. To persuade optimally you must pre-suade optimally.

Based on his own original field research and his integration of 30 years of research from an array of behavioral sciences – psychology, anthropology, sociology, and economics – PRE-SUASION presents a groundbreaking approach that is scientifically rigorous, easily accessible, and immediately actionable.

Using Cialdini’s framework, readers will be able to ethically:

- give an idea exaggerated significance before an audience begins to examine it
- keep an audience focused on the favorable elements of a pitch or argument and raise the chances that it will go unchallenged by opposing points of view
- influence their own behavior, steering themselves in desired directions with the use of the right cues

In Influence, Cialdini explained the science and practice of persuasion. In his new book, he teaches what comes before persuasion: how to recognize opportune moments of influence; know how to tee-up a request, recommendation, or proposal; how certain types of content can be used to maximize the combination of pre-suasion and persuasion; and how to make influence last.

Robert B. Cialdini is the author of the classic bestseller, Influence, recommended by both Warren Buffet and Charles Munger as their top business books. According to the Harvard Business Review, Cialdini is “considered the leading social scientist in the field of influence.” The New York Times calls him “a foundational figure in the science of persuasion.” Inc. magazine names him in their global list of the Top 50 Leadership and Management Experts.

Advance Praise:

“If the President had to have one advisor with him at all times my nomination would be Bob Cialdini, the world’s most practical social psychologist, and the master of “influence.”” -- Richard Thaler

“Robert Cialdini is the Benjamin Franklin of research on influence—a keen observer of human nature, great writer, minter of pithy phrases, and clever experimenter who’s able to capture lightning in a jar.”

-- Chip Heath

“Tom Peters owns “excellence”, Malcolm Gladwell owns “tipping point”, Geoffrey Moore Owns “chasm”, and Robert Cialdini owns “persuasion”.” - Guy Kawasaki

Dean, Josh

TO HELL IN HIGH WATER

(Dutton/Penguin Random House, Fall 2017)

Proposal; Manuscript due March 2017

The incredible true story of the most outlandish and expensive American covert operation since the Manhattan Project

In late February of 1968, a Russian submarine, K-129, holding a battery of three ballistic missiles with enough nuclear material to create an explosion 50 times greater than Hiroshima, disappeared in the Pacific Ocean. Starting March 8th of that year, the Soviet Navy—using ships, subs, and planes—carried out an enormous search over 854,000 square miles of open ocean, in stormy seas, where the depth ranged up to 18,000 feet. They failed to locate the sub. They were looking in the wrong place.

The U.S. Navy, meanwhile, had been watching all of this transpire. Intelligence officials were aware that the sub had been lost within days and, as the Russians searched in vain, a secret American operation began to locate the missing sub first. And once they found it, they somehow needed to retrieve it from the ocean floor. Working with Global Marine, the country's foremost shipbuilder, as well as Hughes Tool and Lockheed, two other manufacturing companies, the CIA commissioned the most expensive ship ever built, a technological marvel that, as far as the public—and especially the Russians—were concerned, was built to mine rare minerals from the ocean floor. Because of the program's outlandish costs, and the incredible complexity of the ship and its tools, the CIA needed a believable cover story, and it found one in Howard Hughes, the reclusive billionaire, business tycoon, investor, aviator, aerospace engineer, inventor, filmmaker and philanthropist, who considered no challenge too big or expensive.

So began an incredible top-secret operation that took six years, cost nearly $600 million (many times that in current dollars) and would become the largest and most expensive covert operation in the history of the CIA. Its name: Project Azorian. Its objective: to retrieve the sunken submarine and its contents, lying at a depth of 16,800 feet, infinitely deeper than the deepest submarine salvage to that date.

Josh Dean's first book, Show Dog, was published by HarperCollins/IT Books in February of 2012, and more recently, his article/ebook, The Life And Times Of The Stopwatch Gang, was published by The Atavist. EMOTIONAL SUCCESS:

(Eamon Dolan Books/Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, Spring 2017)

Manuscript due September 2016

It's widely agreed that an ability to achieve one's goals (whether called self-control, grit, or something else)—even in the face of hardship—is perhaps the single best predictor of future prosperity and happiness.

DeSteno, a professor of psychology at Northeastern University, argues that we may be cultivating it in exactly the wrong way—by ignoring the “social” emotions of gratitude, compassion, pride and guilt. The book will explain how these emotions work, why they are beneficial in practical terms, and how we can make them work better in ourselves and those we care about.

David Desteno is a professor of psychology at Northeastern University, where he directs the Social Emotions Group. A fellow of the Association for Psychological Science and editor in chief of the American Psychological Association's journal Emotion, he is the author of The Truth About Trust and a co-author of Out Of Character. Yes, it's good to have "friends" who "like" you, or contacts that can help you get a new job. It quickly, efficiently and creatively helps individuals enlist helpers, analyze information and find solutions. Though engaging stories like a local amateur pumpkin grower who's helping solve the global food crisis and the determined mother who got "pink slime" out of our food products, readers will learn how businesses, individuals and communities working together on our greatest challenges can create a better world for everyone.

45: A PORTRAIT OF MY KNUCKLEHEAD BROTHER JEB

(Grand Central Publishing, November 2015)

Sampler (Final book will be 96 pages)

An irreverent take on the national bestseller 41: A Portrait of My Father by George W. Bush, 45 is a no-holds-barred tell-all written in the voice of former president George W. Bush as he stumps for his brother Jeb--perhaps doing more harm than good.

In 45: A Portrait of My Knucklehead Brother Jeb, “George W. Bush” takes readers on a journey through his “butt-faced kid brother's” life, detailing the experiences that forged his presidential character, and in his own plainspoken and sometimes even comprehensible style, showing us why the younger Bush should be the next leader of the free world. And while he definitely wants Jeb to be commander-in-chief, he just can't stop razzing him either. 45 is the most hilarious (and backhanded) presidential endorsement you've ever read--a true literary noogie from one brother to another.

Scott Dikkers is a #1 New York Times bestselling author who founded the world's first humor website, theonion.com. His work has won the Thurber Prize for American Humor, a Peabody, and over 30 Webby Awards.

Peter Hilleren is a former writer for The Onion and a public radio producer whose top-ten iTunes George W. Bush parody podcast "Weekly Radio Address" led to his partnering with Dikkers to create Destined for Destiny.

THE MASTER ALGORITHM: How the Quest for the Ultimate Learning Machine Will Remake Our World

(Basic Books, September 2015)

Galley (352 Pages)

Algorithms increasingly run our lives. They find books, movies, jobs, and dates for us, manage our investments, and discover new drugs. More and more, these algorithms work by learning from the trails of data we leave in our newly digital world. Like curious children, they observe us, imitate, and experiment. And in the world's top research labs and universities, the race is on to invent the ultimate learning algorithm: one capable of discovering any knowledge from data, and doing anything we want, before we even ask.

Machine learning is the automation of discovery—the scientific method on steroids—that enables intelligent robots and computers to program themselves. No field of science today is more important yet more shrouded in mystery. Pedro Domingos, one of the field's leading lights, lifts the veil for the first time to give us a peek inside the learning machines that power Google, Amazon, and your smartphone. He charts a course through machine learning's five major schools of thought, showing how they turn ideas from neuroscience, evolution, psychology, physics, and statistics into algorithms ready to serve you. Step by step, he assembles a blueprint for the future universal learner—the Master Algorithm—and discusses what it means for you, and for the future of business, science, and society.

If data-ism is today's rising philosophy, this book will be its bible. The quest for universal learning is one of the most significant, fascinating, and revolutionary intellectual developments of all time. A groundbreaking book, THE MASTER ALGORITHM is the essential guide for anyone and everyone wanting to understand not just how the revolution will happen, but how to be at its forefront.

Pedro Domingos is a professor of computer science at the University of Washington. He is a winner of the SIGKDD Innovation Award, the highest honor in data science. A fellow of the Association for the Advancement of Artificial Intelligence, he lives near Seattle.

Advance Praise:

"An exhilarating venture into groundbreaking computer science." —Booklist, starred review

"The holy grail of computer science is a machine that can teach itself, as we humans do, from experience. Machine learning could help us do everything from curing cancer to building humanoid robots. Pedro Domingos demystifies machine learning and shows how wondrous and exciting the future will be."

—Walter Isaacson, author of Steve Jobs and *The Innovators

"[An] enthusiastic but not dumbed-down introduction to machine learning... lucid and consistently informative... With wit, vision, and scholarship, Domingos describes how these scientists are creating programs that allow a computer to teach itself. Readers... will discover fascinating insights."

PRIMED TO PERFORM: How to Build the Highest Performing Cultures Through the Science of Total Motivation (HarperBusiness/HarperCollins, October 2015)

Galley (368 pages)

World English rights with HarperCollins

The revolutionary book that teaches you how to use the cutting edge of human psychology to build high-performing workplace cultures

Too often, great cultures feel like magic. While most leaders believe culture is critical to success, few know how to build one, or sustain it over time.

What if you knew the science behind the magic—a science so predictive and powerful that you could transform your organization? What if you could use cutting-edge psychology to unlock people’s innate desire to innovate, experiment, and adapt? In PRIMED TO PERFORM, Neel Doshi and Lindsay McGregor show you how to do just that. The result: higher sales, more loyal customers, and more passionate employees.

PRIMED TO PERFORM explains the counterintuitive science behind great cultures, building on more than a century of academic thinking. It shares the simple, highly predictive new measurement tool—the Total Motivation (ToMo) Factor—that enables you to measure the strength of your culture and track improvements over time. It explores the authors’ original research into how Total Motivation leads to higher performance in iconic companies, from Apple to Starbucks to Southwest Airlines. Most important, it teaches you to build great cultures using a systematic and sustainable approach.

High-performing cultures can’t be left to chance. Organizations must create systems that shape and maintain them. Whether you’re a five-person team, a start-up, a school, a nonprofit, or a mega-institution, PRIMED TO PERFORM shows you how.

Neel Doshi and Lindsay McGregor have a combined twenty years of practical experience transforming cultures at iconic institutions. They are the cofounders of Vega Factor, a company that helps organizations build high-performing, adaptive cultures through technology, learning programs, and coaching. Previously, Neel Doshi was a partner at McKinsey & Company, the premier management consulting firm in the world, as well as a founding member of a tech start-up and uninspired employee of several mega-institutions. Lindsay McGregor was a consultant at McKinsey & Company, where she led projects with Fortune 500 companies as well as school systems and nonprofits. Lindsay and Neel are married and live in New York City.

HOW TO BE DEPRESSED

(Knock Knock, 2016)

Layout due December 2015

World English, World French and World Dutch rights with Knock Knock

HOW TO BE DEPRESSED by stand-up comedian Dana Eagle will make you laugh-out-loud if you are one of the many, many people out there on the planet who have been sad before, really sad, or know someone who's been really sad.

All comedians are brave, but Dana Eagle is particularly so. A couple of years ago, she stepped out on a limb and decided that her clinical depression was worthy of going public. She wrote a comedy show called “Stones from Glass Houses,” which was featured at the HBO US Comedy Art Festival and followed it with a sequel, “Mood Disorders,” which premiered at the Los Angeles Theater Festival. Since then, she’s taken off, appearing on The Late, Late Show with Craig Ferguson (CBS), Comedy Central, The Tonight Show with Jay Leno (NBC), and Comics Unleashed, where she became a contributing writer.

But along with the laughs, came the phone calls—from actual institutions and health organizations—that wanted her to tell her jokes in front of patients, veterans, kids, and people seeking help for depression all along the spectrum.

As Dana continued building her act, she developed a funny pamphlet that accompanied her shows. HOW TO BE DEPRESSED is the result—a mix of jokes, funny trivia, fill-in-the blanks, puzzles, word play, etc.—a workbook that might make even a depressive smile in self-relief, and hopefully provide a bit of comfort for those who hope to move towards happier times.

Dana Eagle is a comedian, actress and writer, who has appeared on NBC’s Last Comic Standing. Her empowering self-deprecation has also been seen on Comedy Central, The Late, Late Show With Craig Ferguson (CBS), Comedy Central, The Tonight Show With Jay Leno (NBC), and Comics Unleashed, where she became a contributing writer. Eagle’s one-woman show Stones From Glass Houses was featured at the HBO US Comedy Art Festival and its sequel Mood Disorders: A Light-Hearted Romp Through Crippling Depression premiered at the Los Angeles Theater Festival. She lives in Los Angeles.

Eschliman, Dwight and Steve Ettlinger*INGREDIENTS: A Visual Exploration of 75 Additives & 25 Food Products

(Regan Arts, September 2015)

Manuscript (240 pages)World English rights with Regan Arts

In the bestselling tradition of The Elements and Salt Sugar Fat, an unprecedented visual exploration of what is really inside our food, setting the record straight on the controversial and fascinating science of chemical and synthetic additives in processed food—from Twinkies and McNuggets to “organic” protein bars and “healthy” shakes.

What’s really in your food?

We’ve all read the ingredients label on the back of a can, box, or bag from the grocery store. But what do all those mysterious chemicals and additives actually do—and are they really safe to eat?

Focusing on 75 of the most common (and controversial) food additives and 25 ordinary foods that contain them, acclaimed photographer Dwight Eschliman and science writer Steve Ettlinger demystify the problems of processed food. Together they reveal what each additive looks like, where it comes from, how and why it is used, where it is legally approved by the FDA (or illegal—and why it might be in your food anyway), and whether you ought to be worried about consuming it.

Essential for everyone who is concerned about the wholesomeness of their diet or merely curious about “polysorbate-60” or “tertiary butylhydroquinone,” INGREDIENTS is a visually stunning and a scientifically rigorous journey from ketchup and Cool Whip to vegetarian sausage and McNuggets.

You’ll be surprised at what you find.

Dwight Eschliman is a world-renowned photographer whose work spans subjects from bicycles to Legos, clean rooms to castles in Germany, the newest tech products to Twinkie ingredients. His editorial photography appears in The New York Times Magazine, Esquire, GQ, Outside Magazine, New York Magazine, San Francisco Magazine, Dwell, and Wired. Dwight’s advertising projects include Square, Absolut Vodka, Audi, Apple, Chevron, Clorox, Google, Scion, Microsoft, Nikon, Adidas, and Jawbone. Dwight lives near San Francisco with his wife and two sons.

Steve Ettlinger has been an author, editor, and book producer since 1985, and has helped create over forty books—with more than a million copies sold—that explain complex and daunting but common things like wine, artificial food ingredients, ethnic cuisines, beer, and DIY hardware. Ettlinger is the author of Twinkie, Deconstructed and is a former president of the American Book Producers Association and a graduate of Tufts University. He lives in New York City.

Advance Praise:

“...photographer Dwight Eschliman captured some of the most common ingredients included in supermarkets’ many, many processed foods... science writer Steve Ettlinger dissects those details, exploring each ingredient’s journey from raw material to highly refined ingredient to your plate.” –Katie M. Palmer, Wired.com

“Eschliman’s images put common ingredients like corn syrup, chlorophyll, MSG, caramel color, and folic acid in the spotlight for once, instead of relegating them to a behind-the-scenes role.” –Shaunacy Ferro, Mental Floss

“...a simple exploration of ingredients that most of us know nothing about, even if we’re eating them on a regular basis.” –Fast Company

Flanagan, Shalane and Elyse Kopecky

RUN FAST EAT SLOW

(Rodale, September 2016)

Proposal

Olympian and the #1 marathon runner in the US teams up with a whole-foods chef to help other runners and athletes avoid nutrition problems by presenting a nutrient-dense whole foods diet filled with good fat and satisfying flavor.

Shalane Flanagan runs over 100 miles a week. That kind of weekly mileage means she's constantly hungry for real nourishment. But, she's not counting calories or obsessing over macronutrients like so many other athletes. Instead, Shalane relies on a nutrient-dense whole foods diet, filled with good fat and satisfying flavor. And, not only does she believe her success depends on this unregimented "diet," she has watched dozens of teammates and competitors fall behind because of over-reliance on nutrient-challenged and inflammatory "convenience" foods.

Over dinner, a year ago, Flanagan got to talking to her old University of North Carolina roommate and teammate, Elyse Kopecky, about what she saw as the major pitfall in athletic nutrition these days. Elyse, a whole-foods chef and writer, was all ears. A sufferer of many of the common ailments caused by the toxic mix of poor nutrition and extreme athleticism (stress fractures and amenorrhea), Elyse had spent the last decade studying and healing her body with whole foods. What if, Shalane and Elyse said, they could help other runners and athletes – especially those just learning about food and the temptation of fad diets – avoid the nutrition problems they'd witnessed firsthand? What if they could write a cookbook filled with over 100 delicious, whole-food recipes and their shared wisdom? They began developing recipes and sharing them with fellow runners (who tested them and reported back). The responses were exclamatory: keep going, their comrades said. So they did. The result, recipes like Kale Radicchio Salad with Farro, High-Altitude Bison Meatballs, Wild Salmon Sweet Potato Cakes, and Teff Pumpkin Pancakes.

The timing for this book couldn't be better. There are currently more runners in the U.S. than ever before – 42 million strong. And the "general" fitness trend has been expanding through the UK and Europe and all over the world.

Shalane Flanagan is not a shy runner: she's appeared on the cover of and/or been featured in Runner's World, Women's Running, Running Times, Competitor Magazine and Track and Field News, and she's appeared on 60 Minutes, ESPN Outside the Lines and Oprah. It helps that Shalane runs her way around the world, talking to fans and media internationally between races. Her fan base has been looking for a cookbook from her for some time. What's more, books in the running/food category sell reliably well, upwards of 50,000 copies in recent cases.

Fogel, Susanna

YOUR DAD'S SIX-YEAR-OLD SON WITH HIS NEW WIFE DISCUSSES HIS SUPERIOR CHILDHOOD:

And Other Unconventional Family Letters

(Henry Holt Trade Paperback, Spring 2017)

Proposal

A funny collection of imagined family letters from TV writer Susanna Fogel

Spurred on by her own unusual family, Susanna has been collecting unconventional family stories for years. As a way to navigate some new familial terrain in her own life, Susanna imagined a letter from her young stepbrother (six years old and poised to take over the world) to her, describing how perfect his life was with her father now that he was happily remarried, medicated and retired. She has since been published twice in the New Yorker's Shouts & Murmurs to a great reception (including her dad, who heartily approved of the letter above) and soon realized she had tapped into something much bigger than her own personal experience.

So often the absurdity and humanity of our family situations isn't something we can face head on -- and with that in mind, she developed the idea for a collection of imagined epistolary family humor. You'll see missives from sibling to sibling, future children to parents-to-be and even from one wildly disgruntled family pet who had to have the last word.

This book should have huge appeal to people in their 20s to 40s: that first half of adulthood where you come to terms with the family hand you've been dealt. Or, as Susanna puts it, the years that you start therapy. Susanna's writing is effortlessly smart and funny, and such a pleasure to read—think somewhere between Simon Rich and Roz Chast. She writes with honesty and humor about the strangest, most awkward aspects of life and family life, but does so with a light touch and surprising amount of heart.

Susanna Fogel is an LA-based comedy writer, screenwriter and director. Her film LIFE PARTNERS (2014, Magnolia Pictures) received praise from several outlets including the New York Times and The New Yorker and was nominated for a GLAAD Award in 2015. Susanna is also the co-creator and Executive Producer of the television series "Chasing Life," which is currently entering its second season on ABC Family. She has a cache of unsent letters all ready for this book, with enough details changed to avoid lawsuits or confrontations at her next family reunion.

FROM SILK TO SILICON: How Ten Extraordinary People Unleashed the Forces of Globalization

(HarperCollins, March 2016)

Manuscript (448 pages)

The story of globalization, the most powerful force in history, as told through the life and times of ten people who changed the world by their singular, spectacular accomplishments

This is the first book to look at the history of globalization through the lens of individuals who did something transformative, as opposed to describing globalization through trends, policies, or particular industries. FROM SILK TO SILICON tells the story of who these men and women were, what they did, how they did it and how their achievements continue to shape our world today. They include:

- Genghis Khan, who united east and west by conquest and by opening new trade routes built on groundbreaking transportation, communications, and management innovations.
- Mayer Amschel Rothschild, who arose from the an oppressive Jewish ghetto to establish the most powerful bank the world has seen, and ushered in an era of global finance.
- Cyrus Field, who became the father of global communications by leading the effort to build the transatlantic telegraph, the forerunner to global radio, TV, and the worldwide Internet.
- Margaret Thatcher, whose controversial policies opened the gusher of substantially free markets that linked economies across borders.
- Andy Grove, a Hungarian refugee from the Nazis who built the company – Intel –that figured out how to manufacture complex computer chips on a mass, commercial scale and laid the foundation for Silicon Valley's computer revolution.

Through these stories Garten finds the common links between these figure and probes critical questions including: How much influence can any one person have in fundamentally changing the world? And how have past trends in globalization affected the present and how will they shape the future? FROM SILK TO SILICON is an essential book to understanding the past—and the future—of the most powerful force of our times.

Jeffrey E. Garten teaches courses on the global economy at the Yale School of Management, where he was formerly the dean. He has held senior positions in the Nixon, Ford, Carter and Clinton administrations and is the author of four previous books on the global economy. He lives with his wife in New York and Connecticut.

PARENTING IS EASY: You're Probably Just Doing It Wrong

(Workman Trade Paperback, October 2015)

Sampler (176 pages)

World English rights with Workman

Imagine a world where pregnant women are upbeat and glowing, newborns sleep on cue, toddlers love to have their teeth brushed, and teenagers gaze adoringly at their parents.

This world does not actually exist—although advertisers, marketers, and stock photo agencies would have us believe that it does. But when Sara Given, a real mother of a real toddler, saw a picture of a radiant new mom in a cute little sundress breastfeeding her newborn on a sunny day in the middle of a golf course, she did what any inherently funny person might do: added a hilarious caption and started a blog. An overnight sensation, her Tumblr is now visited daily by thousands of new parents looking for a pick-me-up, and has been covered by the likes of the Today show and The Huffington Post.

And what better way to deal with the stress and strain of parenthood than laughter? The perfect gift of cheer and solidarity, Parenting Is Easy makes every reader laugh out loud—and feel better, too, because we're in on the joke. Like the picture of a serenely composed mother spoon-feeding her serenely composed baby in a spotless living room: "If your baby is fussy at mealtime, try feeding him bib-free on a white couch." Or the happy blond family of four, straight out of a sporty American clothing catalog: "Hey, it's looking pretty overcast outside. Whaddya say we put on our wool sweaters and rain boots and play a quick game of soccer in the ocean?" Yeah, right.

Sara Given is a middle and high school music teacher who is a regular speaker at regional and national educator conferences (her last national presentation was entitled, "I Suppose You Think This is Funny: Using Humor in the Classroom," and was featured as a written piece in state and national industry professional publications). Her love for captioning photos comes from her experience as a sketch writer and stand-up comedian in college, where she performed at Gotham Comedy Club and as an opener for The Cleveland Improv. She is a first time mom to a 15-month-old girl and lives with her family in Columbus, Ohio.

MEET ME IN THE BATHROOM: Rebirth and Rock and Roll in New York City

(Dey Street Books/HarperCollins, April 2016)

Manuscript due September 2015 (400 pages)

In the tradition of Legs McNeil's Please Kill Me and Michael Azerrad's Our Band Could Be Your Life, Goodman's compelling oral history traces the last great music explosion to come out of New York, which went on to define the very concept of cool in the new millennium. Some of bands are household names (The Strokes, The White Stripes, The Killers), while others had huge cultural cachet and are currently influencing future generation of rock & roll stars (MGMT, Interpol, LCD Soundsystem, Grizzly Bear.)

The story of MEET ME IN THE BATHROOM goes beyond music: It's the soundtrack of New York (and America) as we stumbled out of 9/11 and found ourselves in two prolonged wars. It's also a playlist of the final days of the music industry; as these bands were coming into their own, the music business was coming to grips with the fact that music was now free.

Lizzy Goodman's writing has appeared in the New York Times, the New York Times Magazine, Rolling Stone, Spin, Nylon, Elle, and Interview. She came of age as a rock and roll journalist as this scene was emerging, and has close relationships with many of the major players. She will provide the backdrop and commentary, but the music makers and their circle will tell the story.

HOW WOMEN DECIDE: What's True, What's Not, and What Strategies Spark the Best Choices (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, May 2016)

Manuscript (256 pages)

UK Commonwealth rights sold to Oneworld by HMH

What's different for women making big decisions? Cognitive psychologist Therese Huston offers this definitive playbook for making stronger, wiser choices that thoughtfully addresses how the cultural landscape—and the research—defines how women decide.

The last decade has seen groundbreaking books published about decision-making. Kahneman, the Heaths, Ariely and others have profoundly shifted the way that we think about making choices. They've shown us that despite our best intentions, we often make decisions that don't serve our best interests. But when Therese Huston looks at the popular literature on decision making, she sees major gaps when it comes to understanding how women decide. With a Ph.D. in cognitive psychology and a post-doctorate in neuroscience, and as the Founding Director of the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning at Seattle University where she has spent the past decade helping smart people make better decisions, she is one of the rare female specialists writing for women.

Almost all of the popular books on how people make decisions are written by men. These books don't portray women badly; they just don't portray them at all. Books on women's leadership are having a major cultural moment, but they've mostly overlooked the question of how women make decisions. The research is making increasingly clear that when a man faces a hard decision, he needs to make a judgment; when a woman faces a hard decision, she needs to make a judgment and withstand being judged. The decision-making playing field, especially at work, is very different for women and men.

HOW WOMEN DECIDE is remarkable in that not only does it show how decision-making is different for women, but it uses the latest research to teach skills that actually improve how you make choices. Huston identifies the decision-making traps that we're not aware of, but fall into every day – at work, in our relationships, and beyond. For me, learning the skills in this book has allowed me to cut through the noise when making a tough choice, to be more confident and dare I say smarter. In many ways, I see this as a follow-up to books like Lean In and Daring Greatly – once you're sitting at the table, here's how to navigate your best decisions there.

Therese Huston, Ph.D., was the founding director of the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning at Seattle University and has spent the past fifteen years helping smart people make better decisions. She has written for the New York Times, and her first book, Teaching What You Don't Know, was published by Harvard University Press. She lives outside of Seattle with her husband and adorable but deaf dog.

Advance Praise:

“Even decision-making experts tend to overlook the obvious, and that failure is nowhere more apparent than in the stunning absence of business books written for women. None of the myriad decision-making bestsellers consider how their advice should differ for men and women. Therese Huston's How Women Decide promises to fill that glaring hole on the best-seller shelves by overthrowing the one-sex-fits-all recommendations that permeate popular business books.” –Dan Simons, author of *The Invisible Gorilla

EXPONENTIAL ORGANIZATIONS: Why New Organizations are Ten Times Better, Faster, Cheaper Than Yours (And What To Do About It)
 (Diversions Books, October 2014)
Foreword and Afterword by Peter H. Diamandis
Trade Paperback (281 pages)
World English rights with Diversions Books

An International Bestseller! (The Netherlands)
Frost & Sullivan's 2014 Growth, Innovation, and Leadership Book of the Year!

In business, performance is key. In performance, how you organize can be the key to growth.

In the past five years, the business world has seen the birth of a new breed of company—the Exponential Organization—that has revolutionized how a company can accelerate its growth by using technology. An ExO can eliminate the incremental, linear way traditional companies get bigger, leveraging things like community, big data, algorithms, and new technology into achieving performance benchmarks ten times better than its peers.

Three luminaries of the business world—Salim Ismail, Yuri van Geest, and Mike Malone—have researched this phenomenon and documented ten characteristics of Exponential Organizations. Here, in The Exponential Organization, they walk the reader through how any company, from a startup to a multi-national, can become an ExO, streamline its performance, and grow to the next level.

Salim Ismail is a sought-after speaker, strategist and entrepreneur based in Silicon Valley. He travels extensively, giving more than a hundred speeches each year addressing the future of business and society in an age of accelerating technologies. Formerly a VP at Yahoo, Ismail is the founding Executive Director of Singularity University, a benefit corporation that provides educational programs, innovative partnerships and a startup accelerator to help individuals, businesses, institutions, investors, NGOs and governments understand cutting-edge technologies, and how to utilize these technologies to positively impact billions of people. He currently serves as its Global Ambassador, has created relationships in over a dozen countries and leads most of their education programs.

Praise:

THE TEST: Why Our Schools are Obsessed with Standardized Testing—But You Don't Have to Be (Public Affairs, January 2015)
Hardcover (272 pages)
World English rights with Public Affairs

Your child is more than a score. But in the era of No Child Left Behind and the Common Core, America's schools are sacrificing learning in favor of testing. How do we preserve space for self-directed learning and development, especially when we still want our children to hit the mark?

THE TEST explores all sides of this problem—where these tests came from, their limitations and flaws, and ultimately what you as a parent, teacher, or concerned citizen can do. It recounts the shocking history and tempestuous politics of testing, and borrows strategies from fields as diverse as games, neuroscience, and ancient philosophy to help children cope. It presents the stories of families, teachers, and schools that are maneuvering within and beyond the existing educational system, playing and winning the testing game. With an expert's depth, a writer's flair, and a hacker's creativity, Anya Kamenetz has written an essential book for any parent who has wondered: what do I do about all these tests?

Anya Kamenetz is NPR's lead blogger on education. An author, journalist, and nationally sought-after speaker, she is a former senior writer for Fast Company, has a nationally syndicated column with Tribune Media, and her work has appeared in the New York Times, Washington Post, CNN.com, Slate, Newsweek, "O": The Oprah Magazine, and a wide variety of other publications. She is also the author of two books, Generation Debt and DIY U. She has won two national awards from the Education Writers Association and produced an ebook, The Edupunks' Guide to a DIY Credential, in partnership with the Gates Foundation. She lives in Brooklyn with her husband and daughter.

Praise:

"Thorough research and illuminating interviews... With abundant data assembled in an accessible format, the book is a must-read for anyone in the educational system or any parent who has a child old enough to enter preschool... An informative and enlightening appraisal of the regimented tests that American schoolchildren of all ages are subjected to taking on a regular basis."—Kirkus Review

The value of Anya Kamenetz's new book, "The Test," lies in her ability to avoid the soapbox style of too many books on education reform today. Her journalistic talents coupled with her role as a mother of a student on the brink of testing humanizes this book, making it a perfect entry for parents who are too deep in the muck of testing to have the clarity of distance.—Boston Globe

"Provocative, well-researched... With the Common Core upon us, this timely book should be required reading for anyone concerned with education today."—Library Journal, starred review

Trade Paperback, April 2015 (352 pages)

Winner of the 2015 International Book Award in Parenting & Family!

In this inspiring book, Harvard-trained child and adult psychiatrist and expert in human motivation Dr. Shimi Kang provides a guide to the art and science of inspiring children to develop their own internal drive and lifelong love of learning.

TEAM GENIUS: The New Science of High-Performing Organizations

(HarperBusiness, July 2015)

Hardcover (304 pages)

World English rights with HarperCollins

An Amazon Book of the Month! (July 2015)

A groundbreaking book that sheds new light on the vital importance of teams as the fundamental unit of organization and competition in the global economy.

Teams—we depend on them for both our professional success and our personal happiness. But isn't it odd how little scrutiny we give them? The teams that make up our lives are created mostly by luck, happenstance, or circumstance—but rarely by design. In trivial matters—say, a bowling team, the leadership of a neighborhood group, or a holiday party committee—success by serendipity is already risky enough. But when it comes to actions by fast-moving start-ups, major corporations, nonprofit institutions, and governments, leaving things to chance can be downright dangerous.

Offering vivid reports of the latest scientific research, compelling case studies, and great storytelling, Team Genius shows managers and executives that the planning, design, and management of great teams no longer have to be a black art. It explores solutions to essential questions that could spell the difference between success and obsolescence. Do you know how to reorganize your subpar teams to turn them into top performers? Can you identify which of the top-performing teams in your company are reaching the end of their life span? Do you have the courage to shut them down? Do you know how to create a replacement team that will be just as effective—without losing time or damaging morale? And, most important, are your teams the right size for the job?

Throughout, Rich Karlgaard and Michael S. Malone share insights and real-life examples gleaned from their careers as journalists, analysts, investors, and globetrotting entrepreneurs, meeting successful teams and team leaders to reveal some "new truths":

- The right team size is usually one fewer person than what managers think they need.
- The greatest question facing good teams is not how to succeed, but how to die.
- Good "chemistry" often makes for the least effective teams.
- Cognitive diversity yields the highest performance gains—but only if you understand what it is.
- How to find the "bliss point" in team intimacy—and become three times more productive.

- How to identify destructive team members before they do harm.
- Why small teams are 40 percent more likely to create a successful breakthrough than a solo genius is.
- Why groups of 7 (± 2), 150, and 1,500 are magic sizes for teams.

Eye-opening, grounded, and essential, TEAM GENIUS is the next big idea to revolutionize business.

Rich Karlgaard is the publisher of Forbes magazine, where he writes the biweekly column “Innovation Rules.” He is the author of the Wall Street Journal bestseller Life 2.0 and The Soft Edge, and is a regular panelist on Forbes on Fox, and a frequent speaker to companies around the world.

Michael S. Malone is one of the world’s best-known technology writers. Veteran newspaper reporter and columnist, magazine editor and entrepreneur, he is the author or coauthor of nearly twenty award-winning books, notably the bestselling The Virtual Corporation, Bill and Dave, and The Intel Trinity.

Praise:

"The power of the ideas presented here is staggering. Team Genius is a no-bull, first-order game changer."

—Tom Peters, bestselling author of *In Search of Excellence

"Today's exponential entrepreneur - anyone interested in going big, creating wealth, and impacting the world - must leverage the world's talent. TEAM GENIUS shows how." —Peter H. Diamandis, MD, Chairman and CEO, XPRIZE, Executive Chairman, Singularity University, NYT bestselling author of Abundance and *Bold

"Companies thrive when employees are empowered to do their best work every day. Inclusive teams that value diverse perspectives and have passion for new ideas encourage continuous learning. TEAM GENIUS offers a practical approach to fostering top-performing teams." —Satya Nadella, Chief Executive Officer, Microsoft

THE MIDDLEMAN ECONOMY: How Brokers, Agents, Dealers, and Everyday Matchmakers Create Value and Profit (Palgrave Macmillan Trade, September 2015)

Manuscript (240 pages)

World English Rights with Macmillan

With the rise of the Internet, many people predicted that middlemen would disappear. After all, who needs them when buyers and sellers can communicate directly? But far from killing them off, the Internet has generated a thriving new breed of middlemen, including middleman businesses such as Airbnb, SitterCity, TaskRabbit, and Uber.

In THE MIDDLEMAN ECONOMY, Silicon Valley-based reporter Marina Krakovsky explores the paradox that although most professions don’t see themselves as the middlemen, this role is increasingly important in businesses today. They are the millions of people in obvious middleman jobs such as sales reps, real estate agent or mortgage broker. But many jobs in our complex society have a not-so-obvious middleman component, from doctors to reporters.

Why are middlemen a persistent presence in our lives? What do they do, exactly? And how can good middlemen overcome our prejudices and distinguish themselves from their parasitic or two-faced namesakes? In THE MIDDLEMAN ECONOMY, Krakovsky identifies and elucidates the six key roles that middlemen play. Drawing on the eye-opening research from many fields—economics, sociology, psychology—and integrating it with profiles of some of the most admirable middlemen in the world, Krakovsky shows that the key to being an effective middleman is understanding each of the six roles and learning how to execute them for the benefit of buyers and sellers alike.

Marina Krakovsky writes about ideas in the social sciences, particularly new research in psychology, sociology, and economics. Her work has appeared in Discover, the New York Times Magazine, Scientific American Mind, O, The Oprah Magazine, Psychology Today, Slate, Stanford Magazine, the Washington Post, and Wired. She is also the co-author, with economist Kay-Yut Chen, of Secrets of the Moneylab: How Behavioral Economics Can Improve Your Business (Portfolio/Penguin, 2010). Krakovsky graduated from Stanford University with a degree in English and lives in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Advance Praise:

“We often think of a middleman as someone to avoid--the person who stands in the way, or does nothing at all. But the truth is that the person in the middle whether it’s a venture capitalist or a real estate broker can create great value: and the best middlemen are true partners who make you a lot of money. The Middleman Economy shows you how.” –Barbara Corcoran, Founder, The Corcoran Group

“In The Middleman Economy, Krakovsky has crafted a powerfully persuasive counterpoint to the notion that in today’s society, middlemen are obsolete, replaced by the ultimate middleman – the internet – in its capacity to facilitate frictionless transactions. Her captivating and well-researched narrative will convince you of just the opposite – that middlemen (regardless of their gender) are even more critical to today’s economic and social order, whether they function as bridgers, enforcers, certifiers, risk bearers, concierges, or insulators. And they...is us. --Margaret A. Neale, Professor of Management at the Stanford Graduate School of Business and co-author of *Getting (More of) What You Want

“Krakovsky reveals a riveting truth: we are all middlemen. Her captivating examples and precise typology capture the vast research and diversity of middlemen in every aspect of our lives.”

FAKE MISSED CONNECTIONS: Divorce, Dating and Other Failures, A Literary Memoir

(Soft Skull Press Trade Paperback, January 2016)

Manuscript (225 pages)

Your wife is having an affair with my husband. It has caused some trouble in my marriage and I thought you should know.

One phone call in December 2005 begins the compelling, unpredictable story of Fake Missed Connections. A child of divorce with an already fragile sense of trust, Lauer unravels at the betrayal, begins divorce proceedings, and moves back to Brooklyn where he spends too much time alone, fixated on the idea that a murderer from 1898 might be haunting his apartment. Eventually, as he starts to peruse online dating profiles, he becomes obsessed with “missed connections” precisely because they provide what online dating doesn’t: a story.

He begins writing phony missed connections to post on Craigslist and, though he feels a stab of guilt when he posts them, he is hopelessly intrigued by the responses he receives. Real documents illuminate Brett’s dating adventures, from love (and hate) letters and instant message conversations to Brett’s online dating profile and wedding announcement. Fake Missed Connections is an unconventional yet deeply moving look at the modern search for love, the ways in which we fail to communicate, and the quest for a genuine moment of connection.

Brett Fletcher Lauer is the deputy director of the Poetry Society of America and the poetry editor of A Public Space. His debut collection of poems, A Hotel in Belgium, was named a Top 40 Book of 2014 by Coldfront Magazine. He is the co-founder of Ships That Pass, an online art project of fake missed connections written by notables like Lena Dunham, Emma Straub, and Paul Legault, among others. The L Magazine named him one of five Brooklyn writers to watch. He is the Poetry co-chair for the Brooklyn Book Festival and lives in Brooklyn.

Lea, Sonya
WONDERING WHO YOU ARE: A Memoir
 (Tin House, July 2015)
 Trade Paperback (300 pages)

One of the BBC's Ten Books to Read in July! (2015)

When Sonya Lea's husband is felled by cancer of the appendix, he gets through the very new surgery that might eliminate the cancer forever. But, when he takes a bad turn and has a second round of surgery, he suffers total memory loss—he forgets his wife, his children, his work and even sex itself...

In the twenty-third year of their marriage, Sonya Lea's husband, Richard, went in for surgery to treat a rare appendix cancer. When he came out, he had no recollection of their life together: how they met, their wedding day, the births of their two children. All of it was gone, along with the rockier parts of their past—her drinking, his anger. Richard could now hardly speak, emote, or create memories from moment to moment. Who he'd been no longer was.

WONDERING WHO YOU ARE braids the story of Sonya and Richard's relationship, those memories that he could no longer conjure, with an account of the fateful days in the hospital—the internal bleeding, the near-death experience, and the eventual traumatic brain injury. It follows the couple through his recovery as they struggle with his treatment, and through a marriage no longer grounded on decades of shared experience. As they build a fresh life together, as Richard develops a new personality, Sonya is forced to question her own assumptions, beliefs, and desires, her place in the marriage and her way of being in the world. With radical candor, Sonya Lea has written a memoir that is both a powerful look at perseverance in the face of trauma and a surprising exploration into what lies beyond our fragile identities.

Sonya Lea writes for film, television and magazines, and has received screenwriting awards, including the Nicholl fellowship (QF). She has written for The Southern Review, Cold Mountain Review, Brevity, Tricycle, The Seattle Post-Intelligencer and various anthologies. Originally from Kentucky, Sonya lives in Seattle, Washington.

Praise:

"In this brave, inspiring memoir [Lea] recounts the losses, and what it took to rebuild." —People magazine

Levin, Adam
SWIPED: How to Protect Yourself in a World Full of Scammers, Phishers, and Identity Thieves
 (Public Affairs, November 2015)
 Manuscript (240 pages)
 World English rights with Public Affairs

Increasingly, identity theft is a fact of life. We might once have hoped to protect ourselves from hackers with airtight passwords and aggressive spam folders, and those are good ideas as far as they go. But the truth is, there are people out there -- a lot of them -- who treat stealing your identity as a full-time job.

One such company is a nameless firm located in Russia, which has a trove of over a billion internet passwords. Another set up a website full of live streams of hacked web cameras, showing everything from people's offices and lobbies to the feeds from baby monitors. Even purchases made in person are still logged by retailers like Target, who are famously vulnerable to hackers.

Adam Levin, a longtime consumer advocate and identity fraud expert, is your guide to this brave new world. By telling memorable stories and extracting the relevant lessons, he offers a strategy for dealing with these risks. You may not be able to prevent identity theft, but you certainly shouldn't wait until it happens to take action. Levin's approach is defined by the three M's: minimizing risk, monitoring your identity, and managing the damage. The book is also organized around the different problems caused by identity theft: financial, criminal, medical, familial, etc., enabling readers to dip into the sections most relevant to them.

SWIPED is a practical, lively book that is essential to surviving the ever-changing world of online security. It is invaluable not only for preventing problems but helping cope when they arrive.

Adam Levin is a consumer advocate with more than 30 years' experience in personal finance, privacy, real estate and government service. A former director of the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs, Levin is Chairman and founder of Identity Theft 911, Chairman and co-founder of Credit.com and serves as a spokesperson for both companies. An expert on personal finance, credit, identity management, fraud and privacy, he writes a weekly column which appears on Huffington Post and ABCNews.com. He is a frequent guest on television, and has appeared on Fox News, Fox Business News, Good Morning America, Fox & Friends, CBS Nightly News, ABC World News Tonight and scores of radio stations throughout the country. SMALL DATA: Adventures in Cracking the Code of Consumer Desires

(St. Martin's Press, February 2016)

Manuscript due September 2015 (256 pages)

The international bestselling author of Buyology aims to uncover people's hidden desires and to turn their secret needs into breakthrough products for the world's leading brands

Hired by the world's leading brands to find out what makes their customers tick, Martin Lindstrom spends 300 nights a year overseas, closely observing people in their homes. His goal: to uncover their hidden desires and turn them into breakthrough products for the world's leading brands. In a world besotted by the power of Big Data, he works like a modern-day Sherlock Holmes, accumulating small clues to help solve a stunningly diverse array of challenges. In Switzerland, a stuffed teddy bear in a teenage girl's bedroom helped revolutionize 1,000 stores, spread across twenty countries, for one of Europe's largest fashion retailers. In Dubai, a bracelet strung with pearls helped Jenny Craig offset its declining membership in the United States and increase loyalty by 159 percent in only a year. And in China, the look of a car dashboard led to the design of the Roomba vacuum - a great American success story. How? Lindstrom connects the dots in this globetrotting narrative that will fascinate not only marketers and brand managers, but anyone interested in the infinite variations of human behavior.

SMALL DATA combines armchair travel with forensic psychology into an interlocking series of international clue-gathering detective stories. It presents a rare behind-the-scenes look at what it takes to create global brands; and along the way, reveals surprising and counter-intuitive truths about what connects us all as humans.

Martin Lindstrom is a consultant to a Who's Who of brand leading companies. In 2009, Time Magazine recognized him as among the top 100 Most Influential People in The World. McCammon, Ross*WORKS WELL WITH OTHERS: An Outsider's Guide to Shaking Hands, Shutting Up, Handling Jerks, and Other Crucial Skills in Business That No One Ever Teaches You

(Dutton/Penguin Random House, October 2015)

Galley (288 pages)

Esquire* editor and Entrepreneur etiquette columnist Ross McCammon delivers a funny and authoritative guide that provides the advice you really need to be confident and authentic at work, even when you have no idea what's going on.

Ten years ago, before he got a job at Esquire magazine and way before he became the etiquette columnist at Entrepreneur magazine, Ross McCammon, editor at an in-flight magazine, was staring out a second-floor window at a parking lot in suburban Dallas wondering if it was five o'clock yet. Everything changed with one phone call from Esquire. Three weeks later, he was working in New York and wondering what the hell had just happened.

This is McCammon's honest, funny, and entertaining journey from impostor to authority, a story that begins with periods of debilitating workplace anxiety but leads to rich insights and practical advice from a guy who still remembers what it's like to feel ill-equipped for professional success. McCammon points out the workplace for what it is: an often absurd landscape of ego and fear guided by social rules that no one ever talks about. He offers a mix of enlightening and often self-deprecating personal stories about his experience and clear, practical advice on getting the small things right, including:

- How to talk to important people
- How to have a short meaningful conversation in an elevator
- Rules for emailing at work
- A list of small-talk topics for people who hate small talk
- How to drink with colleagues and when to stop
- How to not be a jerk but still get things done

Here is an inspirational, accessible guide for those of us who are smart, talented, and ambitious but who aren't "well-leveraged" and don't quite feel prepared for success . . . or know what to do once we've made it.

Ross McCammon has been an editor at Esquire magazine since 2005, where he's responsible for the magazine's coverage of film, TV, music, drinking, cars and etiquette. He has edited Esquire's "Dubious Achievement Awards" and the long-running annual feature "The Best Bars in America," writes the monthly feature "The Rules," and is a frequent contributor to the magazine's back-page humor section "This Way Out." For three years he has been the business etiquette columnist at Entrepreneur magazine. His humor has been collected in Created in Darkness by Troubled Americans: The Best of McSweeney's Humor Category, edited by Dave Eggers. He lives in Westchester County, New York, with his wife and son.

"My advice: Do not read this book at work. That's because it will make you snort with laughter, perhaps even giggle, and generally look unprofessional. On the other hand, DO read this book before or after work or any other time. Not only is it hilarious, but it's massively useful. This is my favorite business book in years."

INSANE MODE:

(Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, June 2016)

Proposal; Manuscript due March 2016

An insider's account of how Elon Musk is shaping the story of our future.

With every audacious announcement, interest in Elon Musk and Tesla increases. Just as there was huge demand for another book about Steve Jobs after Walter Isaacson's bestselling biography, so there will be demand for Insane Mode, even in the wake of Ashlee Vance's recent bestseller and Musk's own future-oriented book. Elon Musk, like Thomas Edison before him, has a keen understanding that his success will depend not just on his genius as an inventor, but also on his ability to form a commanding narrative: to craft, control, and compel people to believe in the story of a world that does not yet exist.

Hamish McKenzie is an international journalist and former lead writer for Tesla Motors. In recent years, he was also a reporter for the tech blog PandoDaily, where he covered tech media, politics, and international startups, and he is the author of Beta China: The Dawn of an Innovation Generation. Formerly, he was a freelancer writing features for the Listener, New Zealand's leading current affairs and arts magazine, and the South China Morning Post, Hong Kong's leading English-language newspaper. His work has also appeared in a wide range of publications in the UK, the US, Australia, and Canada, including the Guardian, Globe and Mail, and Toronto Star, and helped launch Time Out Hong Kong. He has reported from Asia, Australasia, North America, and Europe, and he has interviewed many leading figures from the worlds of tech, academia, and entertainment, including Sting, John Cleese, Robert Smith, Bret McKenzie, Billy Corgan, Wayne Coyne, Ndaba Mandela, and Cory Booker. Moby

PORCELAIN: A Memoir

(Penguin Press, May 2016)

Manuscript (416 pages)

From one of the most interesting and iconic musicians of our time, a piercingly tender, funny, and harrowing account of the path from suburban poverty and alienation to a life of beauty, squalor and unlikely success out of the NYC club scene of the late '80s and '90s.

There were many reasons Moby was never going to make it as a DJ and musician in the New York club scene of the late 80s and early 90s. This was the New York of Palladium, of Mars, Limelight, and Twilo, an era when dance music was still a largely underground phenomenon, popular chiefly among working class African Americans and Latinos. And then there was Moby—not just a poor, skinny white kid from deepest Connecticut, but a devout Christian, a vegan, and a teetotaler, in a scene that was known for its unchecked, drug-fueled hedonism. He would learn what it was to be spat on, literally and figuratively. And to live on almost nothing. But it was perhaps the last good time for an artist to live on nothing in New York City: the age of AIDS and crack but also of a defiantly festive cultural underworld. Not without drama, he found his way. But success was not uncomplicated; it led to wretched, if in hindsight sometimes hilarious, excess, and it proved all too fleeting. And so by the end of the decade, Moby contemplated the end of things, in his career and elsewhere in his life, and he put that emotion into what he assumed would be his swansong, his goodbye to all that, the album that would in fact be the beginning of an astonishing new phase in his life, the multi-million-selling Play.

At once big-hearted and remorseless in its excavation of a lost world and his own place within it, Porcelain is both a chronicle of a city and a time and a deeply intimate exploration of the most gloriously anxious period of anyone's life, when you're on your own and betting on yourself but you have no idea how the story ends, and you live with the honest dread that you're one false step from being thrown out on your face. Moby's voice resonates with honesty, wit, and above all, unshakable passion for his music, passion that steers him through some very rough seas.

Porcelain is about making it, losing it, loving it and hating it. It's about finding your people, and your place, thinking you've lost them both, and then, finally, somehow, when you think it's over, from a place of well-earned despair, creating a masterpiece. As a portrait of the young artist, Porcelain is a masterpiece in its own right, fit for the short shelf of musicians' memoirs that capture not just a scene but an age, and something timeless about the human condition. Push play.

Richard Melville Hall, known by his stage name Moby, is an American musician, DJ, and photographer.

Advance Praise:

"Ten years of Moby's life, mostly in the decrepit, dangerous, much-loved New York City of the 1990s, a life comically overcrowded, filthy, alcohol-fuelled, vegan, unbelievably noisy, full of spit and semen and some sort of Christianity; and often, suddenly, moving. The writing is terrific, enlivened by a bewildered deadpan humor that makes crazy sense of it all. His ancestor Herman Melville would, I think, be simultaneously revolted and proud."

Nesbit, Jeff

POISON TEA: How Big Oil and Big Tobacco Invented the Tea Party and Captured the GOP

(Thomas Dunne/St. Martin's Press, May 2016)

Manuscript (272 pages)

A former US Communications Director for the Vice President and a senior public affairs official for the US Senate unveils the real story of the founding of America's Tea Party – an event that occurred not four or five years ago as the party hit the public's awareness, but, in actuality, arguably two decades ago.

In fact, Nesbit was in the room in 1984 when Citizens for a Sound Economy (CSE), a conservative political group established by David and Charles Koch of Koch Industries whose self-described mission was "to fight for less government, lower taxes, and less regulation," first met with executives from Phillip Morris. In 2004, when CSE split into two factions, the beginnings of what would become the American Tea party were formed. The founding was not spontaneous, nor was it begun by a bevy of concerned ordinary citizens, terrified at what might happen to the American economy. No, it was financed by big tobacco and shaped down to the smallest detail by two of the wealthiest men in the country. Its aim – then and now – was to hijack American politics. And, according to Nesbit, they might yet succeed.

There have been many books and articles written about the Tea Party, but none has been as well-informed or alarming as this one. What political consultant and former journalist Nesbit uncovers will come as a startling surprise to most readers and the author's in-depth portrait of the Koch Brothers and their machinations—along with Nesbit's deep understanding of the two of them and the Tea Party's beginnings—will leave readers much better informed.

Jeff Nesbit was a senior public affairs official in the U.S. Senate and federal agencies such as the Food and Drug Administration; a national journalist with Knight-Ridder and others; head of a strategic communications consulting firm for more than a decade; director of communications for former Vice President Dan Quayle at the White house; and the director of legislative and public affairs at the National Science Foundation from 2006-2011. He has written several novels and writes a regular science and technology blog for U.S. News & World Report called "At the Edge."

THE COMEDIANS: Drunks, Thieves, Scoundrels, and the History of American Comedy
(Grove Press, November 2015)

Galley, 432 pages

World English rights with Grove/Atlantic

An expansive and endlessly entertaining history of stand-up comedy, spanning more than a century from vaudeville to the present.

Jokes change from one generation to another, but the experience of the stand-up comedian transcends the ages: the striving and struggles, the tragedy and triumph. From the Marx Brothers to Milton Berle, George Carlin to Eddie Murphy, Conan O'Brien to Louis CK—comedy historian Kliph Nesteroff presents a century of fascinating rebels, forgotten stars, and characters on the precipice of fame in this essential history of American comedy.

Starting with the vaudeville circuit at the turn of the last century, Nesteroff introduces the first stand-up comedian—an emcee who abandoned physical shtick for straight jokes. After the repeal of Prohibition, Mafia-run supper clubs replaced speakeasies, and mobsters replaced vaudeville impresarios as the comedian's primary employer. In the 1950s, the late-night talk show brought stand-up to a wide public, while Lenny Bruce, Mort Sahl, and Jonathan Winters attacked conformity and staged a comedy rebellion in coffeehouses. From comedy's part in the Civil Rights movement and the social upheaval of the late 1960s, to the first comedy clubs of the 1970s and the cocaine-fueled comedy boom of the 1980s, THE COMEDIANS culminates with a new era of media-driven celebrity in the twenty-first century.

Based on two hundred original interviews and extensive archival research, THE COMEDIANS is a sharply written and highly entertaining look at one hundred years of comedy.

Kliph Nesteroff is a former stand-up comic turned writer. Writing about the history of showbiz for WFMU, he has retained a cult following for years. Nesteroff's latest project is hosting the Classic Showbiz Talk Show, a live series in Los Angeles that has welcomed comedy luminaries like Mel Brooks, Fred Willard and Laugh-In creator George Schlatter.

Advance Praise:

"A lively, raucous, and immensely entertaining love letter to funny business." —Kirkus, starred review

"Comedy tends to disappear, either into the boozy corners of a nightclub or onto countless lost videotapes of TV variety shows that may never make it to Netflix. That's what makes The Comedians so essential. No one charts the connections between the Jewy Old Masters of the TV age of comedy to the gay woman telling jokes into your ear on a podcast right now quite like him." —John Hodgman

"Our favorite pop culture historian." —The Onion's A.V. Club

WOMEN OF WILL: Following the Feminine in Shakespeare's Plays

(Alfred A. Knopf, April 2015)

Hardcover (336 pages)

A New York Times Book Review Editor's Choice!

From one of the country's foremost experts on Shakespeare and theatre arts, a fierce, funny exploration--part master class, part brilliant analysis--of the women of Shakespeare's plays that illuminates for us his changing understanding of the feminine and reveals some of his deepest insights.

Beginning with Shakespeare's early work, including the early comedies (The Comedy of Errors, The Taming of the Shrew, Two Gentlemen of Verona, and Love's Labour's Lost) and early histories (Henry VI: Parts 1, 2, 3 and Richard III), Tina Packer writes of his journey becoming a playwright and actor, and the role of the theatre in Elizabethan England. She explores Romeo and Juliet as a foundation for Shakespeare's deeper understanding of the relationship between men and women as well as the continuation of the sexual/spiritual story of A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Merchant of Venice, Much Ado About Nothing and Troilus and Cressida, and which has its supreme manifestation in Antony and Cleopatra. She wrestles with Shakespeare's middle period: with Isabella in Measure for Measure, with Twelfth Night, Hamlet, As You Like It, and Othello, giving us a clear picture of the constraints put upon the women of these plays as they articulate the truth about what they see and feel . . . She asks--and answers--what happens when women want the same power as men, and examines Macbeth, Coriolanus, and King Lear.

Tina Packer is the founding artistic director of Shakespeare & Company in Lenox, Massachusetts. She has directed most of Shakespeare's plays (some of them several times), acted in seven of them, and taught the whole canon in various guises at thirty colleges, among them Harvard, MIT, and Columbia. Packer was an Associate Artist with the Royal Shakespeare Company in England, working at The Royal Court and the Aldwych Theatre in London, at Leicester, Glasgow, Edinburgh, and other regional theatres, as well as in television for the BBC and ITV, including David Copperfield with Ian McKellen. Packer travels around the country performing throughout the year in a staged production of Women of Will. She lives in Stockbridge, Massachusetts.

Praise:

"Tina Packer...brings myriad insights she has gained during four decades of directing Shakespeare... her knowledgeable tracing of connections among the plays and parallels among characters is never less than compelling." --Michiko Kakutani, *New York Times

CATEGORY KINGS: How Rebels and Innovators Create New Markets, Slay the Competition, and Run Off with All the Money (HarperBusiness, June 2016)

Manuscript due October 2015

Twenty-five years ago, Geoffrey Moore's classic Crossing the Chasm set the strategy for high-tech success: after luring early adopters, the goal was to cross the chasm into existing mainstream market categories. But Moore's book came out before this era of two billion connected devices globally, wireless network speeds faster than the T1 lines of the 1990s, social networks with one billion people interacting every day, not to mention big data, cloud computing and the emerging Internet of Things.

Chasm crossing is no longer the game. Today's companies must create new categories that destroy old ones. Uber created a new personal transportation category and destroyed taxis and limos. Salesforce.com created a new category of cloud-base sales automation, dethroning the old CRM industry. Airbnb, Workday, Tesla and Netflix are all winning by creating entirely new business categories that destabilize old ones.

The category is the new strategy.

The conclusion: If you want to build a legendary company, you need to design and build a legendary category at the same time, and dominate it over time. Your company needs to be a Category King. And if you don't design a Category King, you're creating a failure.

Drawing on examples from within and beyond our own practice, CATEGORY KINGS shows both entrepreneurs and established enterprises how to define, develop, and dominate a category over time.

Al Ramadan, Dave Peterson and Christopher Lochhead are the founders of Play Bigger, a consulting firm in Silicon Valley that is on a mission to position great technology companies to become Category Kings. They specialize in category design - the discipline of conditioning a market to generate market pull and market cap. Dave, Al and Christopher are former entrepreneurs and executives with twenty-five year careers in the technology business. Today they are players turned coaches.

Kevin Maney is a critically-acclaimed author and a veteran journalist. His 2011 book, The Two-Second Advantage, co-authored with TIBCO CEO Vivek Ranadive, made The New York Times bestseller list and Trade-Off: Why Some Things Catch On and Others Don't and The Maverick and His Machine: Thomas Watson Sr. and the Making of IBM won high praise from reviewers. Kevin wrote about technology for USA Today for 22 years, and left in 2007 to join Conde Nast Portfolio -- a start-up magazine that closed in 2009. He now writes for Newsweek.

PERSONAL STYLE: The Complete Guide

(Ten Speed Press, Fall 2016)

Proposal; Manuscript due Early 2016

Four color photography and infographics

World English Rights with Random House

The Berlin-based minimalist fashion blogger of Into Mind presents a practical and inspirational guide to building the perfect wardrobe with fewer but better things in order to realize your unique sense of style.

Each month, over 100,000 fashion-savvy young women look to Into-Mind.com for advice on how to escape the “fast fashion” cycle of bargains and seasonal must-haves to instead build a small but high-quality wardrobe that is 100% tailored to their unique personal style. The Into Mind philosophy is based on the premise that great personal style does not require an overflowing closet, adherence to typology-based rules or a steady stream of celebrity fashion inspiration. Without taking the creativity out of fashion, it offers young women an alternative, eco-friendly and, above all, individual approach to expressing their style and curating a wardrobe that makes them feel confident and inspired every day.

Part practical road map, part beautiful coffee table book, PERSONAL STYLE will be a hands-on, motivating, and visually-stunning resource, packed with easy-to-use techniques and tips on how to cultivate a strong sense of style and how to build a wardrobe of fewer but better things.

Anuschka Rees spent the better part of her late teens and early twenties dissecting every style book she could get her hands on. Feeling utterly dissatisfied by the consumerist, one-size-fits-all mentality of fashion magazines, she eventually started developing her own system of style-defining techniques. She launched her blog Into Mind in 2012, which currently attracts close to half a million hits each month. Rees holds a Master's degree in Social Psychology from the London School of Economics.

WHO GETS WHAT—AND WHY: The New Economics of Matchmaking and Market Design
(Eamon Dolan/Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, June 2015)

Hardcover (272 pages)

An Amazon Book of the Month! (June 2015)

A Nobel laureate reveals the often surprising rules that govern a vast array of activities — both mundane and life-changing — in which money may play little or no role.

If you've ever sought a job or hired someone, applied to college or guided your child into a good kindergarten, asked someone out on a date or been asked out, you've participated in a kind of market. Most of the study of economics deals with commodity markets, where the price of a good connects sellers and buyers. But what about other kinds of "goods," like a spot in the Yale freshman class or a position at Google? This is the territory of matching markets, where "sellers" and "buyers" must choose each other, and price isn't the only factor determining who gets what.

Alvin E. Roth is one of the world's leading experts on matching markets. He has even designed several of them, including the exchange that places medical students in residencies and the system that increases the number of kidney transplants by better matching donors to patients. In WHO GETS WHAT — AND WHY, Roth reveals the matching markets hidden around us and shows how to recognize a good match and make smarter, more confident decisions.

Alvin E. Roth, PhD, is the McCaw Professor of Economics at Stanford University, and is one of the world's leading experts in the fields of market design and game theory. He was the co-recipient of the 2012 Nobel Prize in Economics.

Praise:

"Who Gets What—and Why is a pleasure to read. It's also a pleasure to discover that rare species, a humble economist. Humble but useful." —The Wall Street Journal

"An exciting practical approach to economics that enables both individuals and institutions to achieve their goals without running afoul of the profit motive." —Kirkus, starred review

"In this fascinating, often surprising book, Alvin Roth guides us through the jungle of modern life, pointing to the many markets that are hidden in plain view all around us. He teaches us how markets work—and fail—and how we can build better ones." —Dan Ariely, author of Predictably Irrational and The Honest Truth About Dishonesty

STRIKING DISTANCE: Bruce Lee and the Dawn of Martial Arts in America

(University of Nebraska Press, Summer 2016)

Manuscript due September 2015

Much has been written about Bruce Lee, most of it amateurish and doe-eyed. STRIKING DISTANCE, by San Francisco writer Charles Russo, is something else entirely. The book covers a pivotal but little-known moment in martial arts/American history. In this span – 1959 to 1965 – martial arts, what it meant to be Asian-American, and Bruce Lee are forever changed.

Set on opposing shores – San Francisco and Oakland – the story introduces us to the old, formative practitioners/gunslingers of Kung Fu that Lee studied with and eventually broke from. That break-up is captured in the attached pages, culminating in a legendary fight. By the end of this six-year stretch, Lee and his rebel force have stolen a little bit from each martial arts faction (and there were many) and invented a brand new fighting form. Besides evoking an incredible sense of time and place, the gem of this proposal is Russo himself. He spent the last two years gaining access to and interviewing Bruce Lee’s inner circle of friends, colleagues, and foes. He has spoken with Bruce’s widow, traveled with masters to their former stomping grounds, toured Chinatown with old gangsters (retired and otherwise), and served as a demonstration dummy (painfully, at times) for more than a few of Bruce’s contemporaries.

Charles Russo is an award-winning journalist and photographer. His work has appeared in Rolling Stone, San Francisco Magazine, 7x7, the San Francisco Bay Guardian, Planet and Hobo Magazine. He is currently a staff member of the Half Moon Bay Review newspaper (covering the coast just south of San Francisco) and works regularly as a photographer for Stanford University. Charles has received awards and accolades from the San Francisco Bay Area Press Photographer’s Association, the California Newspaper Publishers’ Association and the Peninsula Press Club. He lives in San Francisco with his wife and three children.

AT YOUR SERVICE: How Companies Woo, Wow, and Win Customers with the New Practice of Service Design and Delivery (HarperBusiness, 2016/7)

Manuscript due March 2016

World English rights with HarperCollins

Two bestselling authors and industry veterans attempt to remedy the failure of customer service through a concept called service design—the idea that services should be designed with as much care as products are—by reimagining, recreating, and rethinking the execution of every stage and aspect of customer and company interaction

Great service is not just a consequence of good intentions, attentive management, and a supportive culture. In fact, cause and effect are reversed: Service needs to be laid into the company’s foundation, the way performance is built into a BMW or intuitiveness designed into an iPad. A company designed for service will naturally display the behaviors—the intentions, attention, and culture—good service requires. But if service isn’t built in, no amount of good will can deliver it reliably, and no effort can compensate for the lack of it. Trying to satisfy customers will be like canoeing into a headwind: The effort will eventually exhaust even the most determined team.

The surprising fact is most companies are not, actually, designed for service – to provide an experience that matches a customer’s expectations, and to be able to do it time and again. Addressing that problem is what this book is about. In the last few years, a handful of progressive thinkers, pioneering executives, and scholars have begun to develop ideas and experiments in service design. Their thesis and ours is simple: Services should be designed with as much care as products are. We’re including service delivery in the concept, too, because artistry without execution is meaningless, in business at least. Service design and delivery—what we are calling SD²—involve reimagining, recreating, and rethinking the execution of every stage and aspect of customer and company interaction, regardless of what is being sold and regardless of whether a transaction actually occurs, in order to satisfy that customer and advance your strategic goals.

Put another way, SD² is what a company does so that customers get the experience the company wants them to have—every time. Companies that embrace SD² are bringing new thinking, new actions, and new effectiveness to the task of running a business by applying design principles and sound strategy to services. At Your Service shows how. It is the first book written to explain the what, why, and how of service design and delivery, the principles that should guide it, and the results it can produce.

Thomas A. Stewart is well-known for a series of landmark articles in Fortune, which pioneered the field of intellectual capital. From that work came two bestselling books, Intellectual Capital: The New Wealth of Organizations, and The Wealth of Knowledge: Intellectual Capital and the 21st Century Organization, published by Doubleday in 1997 and 2001, respectively. He is also the former managing director of Harvard Business Review, an authority on intellectual capital and knowledge management, and an influential thought leader on global management issues and ideas. Less well-known is his new role as Executive Director of the National Center for the Middle Market of the Fisher College of Business at The Ohio State University, the nation's premier center for research into the practices and contributions of America's mid-size corporations.

Patricia O'Connell is a New York City-based writer and editor specializing in business, leadership, and strategy. She is the writer of the NY Times best-seller How Excellent Companies Avoid Dumb Things: Breaking the 8 Hidden Barriers that Plague Even the Best Businesses (with author Neil Smith) and is the former Management Editor at BloombergBusinessweek.com.

Strenger, Carlo

CIVILIZED DISDAIN: Guidelines for Defending Our Freedom

(Suhrkamp, March 2015)

Manuscript in German (104 pages)

World English, Scandinavian, Dutch, Eastern Europe, Russian and Greek rights with Suhrkamp

CIVILIZED DISDAIN is conceived as a pamphlet in the 19th century tradition: a short treatise of political philosophy with a polemical thesis—The Western Left has since 1945 progressively lost its ability to defend the West's core values and has outsourced the West's defense to the political right—with catastrophic consequences. Existential psychotherapist, philosopher, and public intellectual Carlo Strenger diagnoses the source of this malady as the ideology of political correctness and prescribes the attitude of “civilized disdain” as the cure that will allow the political center-left to take over the West's defense.

Strenger rejects the idea of political correctness as conceptually and psychologically incoherent—no human being can genuinely respect positions he or she considers to be irrational, incoherent, immoral or even inhuman. What turns a normal response—disdain—into civilized disdain is the ability to respect the humanity of those who hold such positions and it's an attitude that needs constant training. But once mastered, civilized disdain is a tool for coexistence as well as for the defense of the West's core values of liberty, rationality, and individual human rights and could become a battle cry for liberals to defend their views and values actively and effectively.

Carlo Strenger is Professor of Psychology and Philosophy at Tel Aviv University. He is senior research fellow at the Center for the Study of Terrorism at John Jay College, a member the Seminar of Existential Psychoanalysis in Zurich, and the on Scientific Board of the Sigmund Freud Foundation, Vienna in addition to maintaining a part-time practice in existential psychoanalysis. He is the author of several books, including The Designed Self and The Fear of Insignificance and is a columnist for Haaretz and Neue Zürcher Zeitung. His work has also appeared in the Huffington Post, The Guardian, Foreign Policy, and The New York Times.

FELINES OF NEW YORK: A Glimpse Into the Lives of New York's Feline Inhabitants

(Simon & Schuster, November 2015)

Manuscript (128 pages)

Featuring more than 100 photos and quotes from cats in America's most glamorous city, FELINES OF NEW YORK exposes the furry underbelly of New York City's most glamorous, self-important residents.

Where the humans of New York are accomplished, interesting, thoughtful, creative, and even sometimes tragic figures, the cats are simply cats. They do not stand in line for brunch, or have season tickets to the Met, or go indoor-rock climbing in Brooklyn. They do not shop at thrift stores or nibble finger sandwiches at the Russian Tea Room. And they certainly do not give a flying f*ck about the Yankees.

No, the felines of New York bathe, purr, bask languidly in the sun, and occasionally cast baleful glances at the humans who provide them food and shelter. They are proof that behind every New Yorker, there lays a cat just waiting to destroy their IKEA futon and then eat their faces off when they die.

Jim Tews made his stand-up television debut on Last Comic Standing and was featured in an episode of Louie in 2014. Previously he was one of 2011's New Faces at Just for Laughs Montreal and has performed in the Bridgetown Comedy Festival, the Eugene Mirman Comedy Festival, and SF Sketchfest. He recently created/cowrote and starred in The Undone Sweaters web series about a sociophobic Weezer cover band, which was featured on Funny or Die and Nerdist.com. He also created the HBO Labs's web series The Opener and recently directed a feature length documentary about Cleveland's independent comedy scene called Make Fun. Felines of New York is his first book, and perhaps his greatest achievement to date.

GETTING TO YES WITH YOURSELF: And Other Worthy Opponents

(HarperOne, January 2015) (Harper UK, January 2015)

Hardcover (256 pages)

William Ury, coauthor of the classic bestseller Getting to Yes, returns with another game-changing book, this time asking: how can we expect to get to yes with others if we haven't first gotten to yes with ourselves?

Renowned negotiation expert William Ury has taught tens of thousands of people from all walks of life—managers, salespeople, students, parents, lawyers, and diplomats—how to become better negotiators. Over the years, Ury has discovered that the greatest obstacle to successful agreements and satisfying relationships is not the other side, as difficult as they can be. The biggest obstacle is actually our own selves—our natural tendency to react in ways that do not serve our true interests.

But this obstacle can also become our biggest opportunity, Ury argues. If we learn to understand and influence ourselves first, we lay the groundwork for understanding and influencing others.

In this indispensable prequel to Getting to Yes, Ury draws deeply on his personal and professional experience negotiating conflicts around the world to present a practical method to help you get to yes with yourself first, dramatically improving your ability to get to yes with others.

Extraordinarily useful and elegantly simple, GETTING TO YES WITH YOURSELF is an essential guide to achieving the inner satisfaction that will, in turn, make your life better, your relationships healthier, your family happier, your work more productive, and the world around you more peaceful.

William Ury, co-founder of Harvard's Program on Negotiation, is one of the world's best-known and most influential experts on negotiation. Ury has served as a mediator boardroom battles, labor conflicts, and civil wars around the world. Ury is the co-author of Getting to Yes, the bestselling negotiation book in the world (which has sold more than 11 million copies and has been translated into over thirty languages) as well as seven other books, including two New York Times bestsellers, Getting Past No and The Power of a Positive No. He lives with his family in Boulder, Colorado.

Praise:

“Wise and realistic, noble and practical, brilliant and approachable, Ury has created a definitive body of work on how we can get to yes in our conflicted world. Here, in this book, he turns to the hardest negotiation of all: with ourselves. Yet again, Ury has done a tremendous service with his book.”

–Jim Collins, author Good to Great, co-author *Built to Last and Great by Choice

“We have met our enemy at the negotiating table -- and it is us. William Ury has written a much needed prequel to his classic Getting to Yes. If you adopt the winning strategies in this book, you'll come out ahead in business and in life.” — Daniel H. Pink, author of *To Sell is Human and Drive

“Ury untangles challenges that bedevil even the most experienced negotiators: how can I get what I want when I don't know what I want? How can I move from being my own worst enemy to my own best ally? Along with Getting to Yes, Ury's new book may be his most important contribution to the fields of negotiation and conflict management.” —Douglas Stone and Sheila Heen, authors of Difficult Conversations and *Thanks for the Feedback

CALM THE F*CK DOWN: The Only Parenting Technique You'll Ever Need

(Knock Knock, February 2015)

Trade Paperback (112 pages)

UK and French rights with Knock Knock

A potty-mouthed parenting method has finally arrived, and just in time for a collective anxiety attack!

CALM THE F*CK DOWN (or CTFD for those of us who don't have time to spell it out) is already a phrase rolling off the lips of more than half-a-million fans who liked/shared/tweeted Vienna's original post on the subject this summer. The Huffington Post, theAtlantic.com, Babble – these media outlets and many, many, individuals fanned the happy flames of CTFD, making it the guttural, red-headed step-child of Keep Calm & Carry On.

And yet, for all its maladjustment, it's just the thing. Parents these days have no opportunity to keep calm, not when every expert is telling them “you're doing it wrong.” Vienna feels we need to trust our instincts (unless your instinct involves a cat-o-nine) and just CTFD. And his book is a collection of approximately 50 real-life scenarios that all require a CTFD response. He's hired two level-headed psychologists to give his advice gravitas (but not too much).

A sampling of scenarios:

- No Poop For You: My baby hasn't had a bowel movement in a day and is therefore doomed to a life of constipation
- Bang, Bang, Shoot, Shoot: Everything becomes a gun in my kid's hands, so clearly he's a psychotic gunman that I'll see on the evening news some night.
- The Opposite Of The Dog Whisperer: My child acts aggressively with animals and he's either going to start treating people that way or get bitten by a dog, get rabies and die.
- What's Wrong With Me?: I love my child, but sometimes I don't like them and now I've ruined both our lives.

David Vienna is a playwright, who happens to be a dad (of twin boys), who happens to have a blog that happens to have a dedicated following. He's smart and fast and funny in an authentic "we're all tired" way.

TRANSPARENT: Taking Control of Our Lives by Letting Go of Our Privacy

(Basic Books, 2016)

Manuscript due September 2015

World English rights with Basic Books

Andreas Weigend's father was arrested by the Soviet occupying forces in 1949 and the Stasi started a file on the author himself in his early teenage years. So, you might think that circumstances would have converted Weigend into a zealot for privacy. However, as the chief scientist of Amazon, he was among the vanguard in a revolution that encouraged customers to communicate openly about products. Over the past decade, he continues to advocate for open sharing in his work with Walmart, MasterCard, AT&T, Goldman Sachs, United Healthcare, China's Alibaba, and many more top corporations around the world, ranging across industries that include major airlines and travel websites, financial services firms, dating apps, health insurance providers, and telecommunication companies.

TRANSPARENT argues that the amazing amount of social data we're creating shouldn't be seen primarily as a threat; instead it is an opportunity to discover ways to improve our decision-making and our lives. It is impossible to stop the flow of data. But you can gain more value from your data if you understand what it is, how it is being used, and how you can use it to make better decisions about what you buy, where you work, how you learn, and many other things.

Weigend makes the case for sharing data rather than hiding it, by exploring the extraordinary ways in which data is coming to bear in all areas of our lives. TRANSPARENT will explain, among other things:

- Why privacy is not the default setting of a democracy, just as it is not the default setting of human life.
- Why you should allow bricks-and-mortar stores to track your movements in the physical world just as Amazon track your movements online.
- Why you will be able to optimize your personal finances -- and your health -- by giving certain firms access to your Facebook feed and other data.

The social data revolution has changed how more than a billion of us make decisions. As we'll see, whether it's in the areas of commerce, work, health, learning, or governance, privacy restricts information, and transparency frees it up, allowing us make better decisions.

Andreas Weigend is one of the world's foremost experts on the future of big data, social-mobile technologies, and consumer behavior—the collision of which he calls the Social Data Revolution. Weigend teaches at Stanford University, the University of California-Berkeley, and Cheung Kong Graduate School of Business in China. He is founder and director of the Social Data Lab, a network of data scientists and thought leaders and was formerly Amazon's chief scientist, where he helped create the company's data strategy and customer-centric culture. Weigend speaks regularly to corporate and government audiences and his work has been profiled around the world by media including the New York Times Sunday Magazine, the San Francisco Chronicle, Bloomberg BusinessWeek, Business Insider, Fast Company, Harvard Business Review, MIT Technology Review, Adweek, GigaOm, Teradata, El Comercio (Sao Paulo), El Pais, and many others in Europe, Asia, Australia. When he is not traveling for speaking and consulting engagements, he splits his time between San Francisco and Shanghai.

FEELING SMART: Why Our Emotions Are More Rational Than We Think

(Public Affairs, January 2015)

Hardcover (288 pages)

World English rights with Public Affairs

Which is smarter—your head or your gut?

It's a familiar refrain: you're getting too emotional. Try and think rationally. But is it always good advice?

In this surprising book, Eyal Winter, asks a simple question: why do we have emotions? If they lead to such bad decisions, why hasn't evolution long since made emotions irrelevant? The answer is that, even though they may not behave in a purely logical manner, our emotions frequently lead us to better, safer, more optimal outcomes.

In fact, as Winter discovers, there is often logic in emotion, and emotion in logic. For instance, many mutually beneficial commitments—such as marriage, or being a member of a team—are only possible when underscored by emotion rather than deliberate thought. The difference between pleasurable music and bad noise is mathematically precise; yet it is also something we feel at an instinctive level. And even though people are usually overconfident—how can we all be above average?—we often benefit from our arrogance.

FEELING SMART brings together game theory, evolution, and behavioral science to produce a surprising and very persuasive defense of how we think, even when we don't.

Eyal Winter is professor of economics and director of the Center for the Study of Rationality at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, one of the world's leading institutions in the academic study of decision making. He served as chairman of the economics department at Hebrew University and was the 2011 recipient of the Humboldt Prize, awarded by the government of the Federal Republic of Germany. He has lectured at over 130 universities in 26 countries around the world, including Harvard University, Stanford University, Princeton University, the University of California at Berkeley and the University of Cambridge.

Praise:

"It is that rare book that a casual reader could open at a random page and expect to find something interesting...FEELING SMART is a fascinating romp through the positive ways that emotions can shape our actions. It is also a helpful balm for those who worry that their emotions occasionally over-run their 'higher faculties'." —The Financial Times

"Filled with fascinating studies and personal anecdotes...A lively, accessible work." —Kirkus Reviews

"Eyal Winter's book admirably draws together the important recent work on social and individual behavior and its implications for economic behavior. He shows clearly how the more traditional rational analysis remains an important part of explanation, but is by no means adequate. His exposition is breezily informal, yet rigorous; accounts from his family join seamlessly with citations on the literature, to which he himself has made significant contributions." —Kenneth Arrow, Nobel Laureate in Economics

THE NERUDA CASE/ El Caso Neruda (Grupo Editorial Norma, 2008)

Hardcover, 352 pages

UK rights with Souvenir Books (via Penguin)

Best Mystery of 2012! (Wall Street Journal)

Northern California Book Reviewers (NCBR) Award nominee for translated fiction!

Published for the first time in English, an atmospheric, brilliant novel from an internationally bestselling literary luminary.

Roberto Ampuero's novels starring the wonderfully roguish Cayetano Brulé are an international sensation. In THE NERUDA CASE, readers are introduced to Cayetano as he takes on his first case as a private eye. Set against the fraught political world of pre-Pinochet Chile, Castro's Cuba, and perilous behind-the-Wall East Berlin, this mystery spans countries, cultures, and political ideas, and features one of literature's most beloved figures—Pablo Neruda.

Cayetano meets the poet at a party in Chile in the 1970s. The dying Neruda recruits Cayetano to help him solve the last great mystery of his life. As Cayetano fumbles around his first case, finding it hard to embrace the new inspector identity foisted upon him, he begins to learn more about Neruda's hidden agenda. Neruda sends him on a whirlwind expedition around the world, ending back in Chile, where Pinochet's coup plays out against the final revelations of their journey.

Evocative, romantic, and full of intrigue, Ampuero’s novel is both a glimpse into the life of Pablo Neruda as death approaches and a political thriller that unfolds during the fiercely convulsive end of an era.

THE BOOST

(Tor Books, May 2014)

Mass Market, May 2015 (432 pages)

A fast-paced technothriller set in the near future, written by a technology expert

Ralf is a software prodigy. He works in the US government office that updates the software in the population's boosts--networked supercomputers contained in a chip implanted within the brains of 99 percent of the world's population. Invented by Chinese researchers in 2032, the boost is credited with leading humanity to its most significant cognitive leap since the discovery of fire.

Days before a national upgrade, Ralf notices that the update includes an open surveillance gate--meaning that Americans, who had negotiated high levels of privacy with the Chinese manufacturers, will now be subjected to the invasive Chinese standard. Ralf attempts to hack the boost, but is caught by agents working for Washington's preeminent lobbyist. His boost is ripped from his head, and Ralf barely escapes with his life.

Pursued by the lobbyist's mercenary cadre, Ralf flees to the US-Mexico border, where there are others like him--"wild" humans on the fringes of society, unenhanced by technology. It's a frightening and backward world controlled by powerful drug lords. Ralf's only hope is to somehow work with these wild bosses of the analog world--in hopes of winning back freedom in the digital one.

Stephen Baker was born in the Philadelphia area, graduated from the University of Wisconsin, and earned a master's in science from Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism. For ten years, Baker was a senior technology writer at BusinessWeek, based in Paris and New York. Before that, he was a correspondent in Pittsburgh, Mexico City, El Paso, Caracas, Madrid and elsewhere. Baker has written for The Wall Street Journal, Los Angeles Times, and The Boston Globe. He is the author of two nonfiction books, The Numerati and Final Jeopardy: Man vs. Machine and the Quest to Know Everything. Baker and his family live in Montclair, New Jersey.

Praise:

"Seductive, sophisticated, and authentic." --Steve Berry, NYT bestselling author of The King's Deception

"A true delight of a techno-thriller that has deep, dark roots in the present." --Kirkus Reviews

"Baker has put together an intriguing cast in which the secondary characters are almost more exciting than the leads, including an egomaniacal Paraguayan drug lord-turned-newspaper mogul, a beautiful but ditzzy Mata Hari, and the conflicted government hit man sent after Ralf who instead spends his time enjoying Juarez." --Library Journal

 (Minotaur Books/St. Martin's Press, June 2015)
Hardcover (288 pages)

In the next powerful novel from Julia Dahl, investigating the murder of a young Hasidic mother might bring journalist Rebekah Roberts face-to-face with her own mother, who abandoned her as a baby

Aviva Kagan was just a teenager when she left her Hasidic Jewish life in Brooklyn for a fling with a smiling college boy from Florida—and then disappeared. Twenty-three years later, the child she walked away from is a NYC tabloid reporter named Rebekah Roberts. And Rebekah isn't sure she wants her mother back in her life.

But when a man from the ultra-Orthodox enclave of Roseville, N.Y. contacts Rebekah about his young wife's mysterious death, she is drawn back into Aviva's world. Pessie Goldin's body was found in her bathtub, and while her parents want to believe it was an accident, her husband is certain she was murdered.

Once she starts poking around, Rebekah encounters a whole society of people who have wandered "off the path" of ultra-Orthodox Judaism—just like her mother. But some went with dark secrets, and rage at the insular community they left behind.

In the sequel to her Edgar Award finalist Invisible City, Julia Dahl has created a taut mystery that is both a window into a secretive culture and an exploration of the demons we inherit.

Julia Dahl is a journalist specializing in crime and criminal justice. Her first novel, Invisible City, was named one of the Boston Globe's Best Books of 2014 and was a finalist for the 2015 Edgar and Macavity Awards, among many others. She lives in Brooklyn, New York and writes for CBSNews.com.

THE BULLET

(Gallery Books/Simon & Schuster, March 2015)

Hardcover (368 pages)

From former NPR correspondent Mary Louise Kelly comes a heart-pounding story about fear, family secrets, and one woman’s hunt for answers about the murder of her parents.

Two words: The bullet. That’s all it takes to shatter her life.

Caroline Cashion is beautiful, intelligent, a professor of French literature. But in a split second, everything she’s known is proved to be a lie. A single bullet, gracefully tapered at one end, is found lodged at the base of her skull. Caroline is stunned. It makes no sense: she has never been shot. She has no entry wound. No scar. Then, over the course of one awful evening, she learns the truth: that she was adopted when she was three years old, after her real parents were murdered. Caroline was there the night they were attacked. She was wounded too, a gunshot to the neck. Surgeons had stitched up the traumatized little girl, with the bullet still there, nestled deep among vital nerves and blood vessels.

That was thirty-four years ago.

Now, Caroline has to find the truth of her past. Why were her parents killed? Why is she still alive? She returns to her hometown where she meets a cop who lets slip that the bullet in her neck is the same bullet that killed her mother. Full-metal jacket, .38 Special. It hit Caroline's mother and kept going, hurtling through the mother's chest and into the child hiding behind her.

She is horrified—and in danger. When a gun is fired it leaves markings on the bullet. Tiny grooves, almost as unique as a fingerprint. The bullet in her neck could finger a murderer. A frantic race is set in motion: Can Caroline unravel the clues to her past, before the killer tracks her down?

Mary Louise Kelly spent two decades traveling the world as a reporter for NPR and the BBC. Her assignments have taken her from grimy Belfast bars to the glittering ports of the Persian Gulf, and from mosques in Hamburg to the ruined deserts of Iraq. As an NPR correspondent covering the intelligence beat and the Pentagon, she reported on wars, terrorism, and rising nuclear powers. A Georgia native, her first job was working as a staff writer at The Atlanta Journal-Constitution. Kelly was educated at Harvard and at Cambridge University in England. She lives in Washington, DC, and Florence, Italy, with her husband and their two children.

Praise:

“[The] slow psychological build is riveting, and The Bullet is relentless in its twists and turns. And the psychological exploration of what resources we can find within us in moments of extreme stress feels so authentic as to leave us wondering what we ourselves might have within us, if we were ever pushed to reach for it.” —Shelf Awareness

“This is as much a portrait of metamorphosis as it is a thriller, and it owes less to the likes of Lee Child — or Alfred Hitchcock — than to Albert Camus. You’ll finish this book knowing whodunit and why but with a refreshingly unresolved sense of how Caroline’s own story will end.” —The Washington Post

“The Bullet makes a direct hit. Written with style and intelligence, the clever plot gains velocity until the final page.” —Valerie Plame, former CIA covert ops officer and author of *Burned

LaPlante, Alice
COMING OF AGE AT THE END OF DAYS
 (Atlantic Monthly Press, August 2015)
Hardcover (240 pages)
World English rights with Atlantic Monthly Press

From New York Times bestselling author Alice LaPlante, a mesmerizing novel about faith, grief, and obsession as a complicated, passionate young woman falls in with a doomsday cult

Alice LaPlante's acclaimed psychological thrillers are distinguished by their stunning synthesis of family drama and engrossing suspense. Her new novel, COMING OF AGE AT THE END OF DAYS, is a formidable foray deeper into the creases of family life—and the light-and-dark battle of faith—as LaPlante delves into the barbed psyche of a teenager whose misguided convictions bear irrevocable consequences.

Never one to conform, Anna always had trouble fitting in. Earnest and willful, as a young girl she quickly learned how to hide her quirks from her parents and friends. But when, at sixteen, a sudden melancholia takes hold of her life, Anna loses her sense of self and all purpose. Then the Goldschmidts move in next door. They're active members of a religious cult, and Anna is awestruck by both their son, Lars, and their fervent violent prophecies for the Tribulation at the End of Days. Within months, everything in Anna's life—her family, her home, her very identity—will undergo profound changes. But when her newfound beliefs threaten to push her over the edge, Anna must find the strength to come back to center with the help of unlikely friends: Jim, a childhood crush wading through a quarter-life crisis in his parents' basement, and Clara, her incisive chemistry teacher desperate for adventure.

An intimate story of destruction and renewal, LaPlante delivers a haunting exploration of family legacies, devotion, and tangled relationships. LaPlante once again brilliantly parses an altered mind on the brink, and considers the often perilous, always challenging journey to become the people we want to be at the end of our days.

Lourey, Jess*FEBRUARY FEVER: A Murder-By-Month Mystery (Book #10)

(Midnight Ink, February 2015)

Trade Paperback (288 pages)Lefty-Nominated Series!

Mira James's budding relationship with boyfriend Johnny is definitely warming up her winter. But when Johnny is offered an internship he can't pass up in Portland, Oregon, Mira lets Mrs. Berns talk her into a visit. On the plus side, Mira will be able to take the trip as a tax write-off by attending the International Private Investigator Conference that happens to be going on at the same time. The only drawback for airplane-averse Mira is that Mrs. Berns has booked them on the Valentine Train—a route designed to help singles meet and mingle. Relaxing into the experience with a few glasses of champagne and Mrs. Berns's encouragement, Mira begins to enjoy herself...until a fellow passenger is murdered.

Jess Lourey spent her formative years in Paynesville, Minnesota, a small town not unlike the Murder-by-Month series' Battle Lake. She is a member of Mystery Writers of America, Sisters in Crime, and The Loft, and a founding faculty member of the Mystery Writers of America's MWA University. Lourey resides in St. Cloud, Minn., where she is a professor of writing and sociology.

Lutz, Lisa*THE PASSENGER

(Simon & Schuster, March 2016)

Manuscript (330 pages)

Tanya DuBois doesn't exist. At least not after an accident leaves her husband dead and thrusts her into the uncomfortably familiar position of Suspect No. 1. She has only one choice: Run. In this breakout standalone thriller, New York Times-bestselling author Lisa Lutz weaves a restless, riveting story of lies, crimes, and the difference between the identity we are born with, the identity we choose, and the identity we can't leave behind, no matter how hard we try.

As "Tanya" watches her life recede in the rearview mirror, we realize she was never real to begin with. And neither is Amelia Keen, Debra Maze, Emma Lark, Sonia Lubovich, or a girl called only Jo. Or almost any of the things she tells us about herself, her past or where she is going next. She is "Amelia" when she meets Blue, another woman with a life she'd rather not discuss, and thinks she's found a kindred spirit. But their pasts and futures clash as the body count rises around them.

Shedding identities like snakeskins, it becomes impossible for the people in Tanya's life – and even herself – to know exactly who they're dealing with. It's only as she comes closer to facing her past that she can start to piece together the truth about not only who she was but who she can still be. THE PASSENGER inverts the traditional thriller, bypassing whodunit for the larger mysteries of who are you, and what is forgivable, and what is not?

Lisa Lutz is the author of the bestselling series, The Spellman Files, as well as the mystery Heads You Lose (with David Hayward) and the literary novel, How To Start a Fire. She has received numerous accolades for her work, including an Alex Award, and nominations for the Edgar, Barry, Anthony awards, among many others.

Advance Praise:

“At the outset of The Passenger, Lutz's narrator knows that her only chance of freedom is to lose herself, and thus, leaving one dead man behind, she hits the diamond lane of America—and storytelling—with a carload of identities, including the reader, who is carried along as both passenger and pursuer. This tenacious and resourceful heroine will keep you chasing, rooting, lip-biting, and above all reading until you reach the ending you never saw coming. My advice: buckle up.” –Tim Johnston, New York Times bestselling author of The Descent

"A sharp, clever, and utterly compelling thriller about a woman running from the mistakes and misfortunes of her past. Terrific." –Chris Pavone, international bestselling author of The Accident and The Expats

"With whip-smart writing and a breakneck pace, The Passenger's clever plot twists and sharp characters are sure to keep you guessing long into the night, hoping against hope that its complex protagonist isn't nearly as guilty as she seems." –Kimberly McCreight, New York Times bestselling author of Reconstructing Amelia

A Publishers Lunch 2015 Buzz Book!

From a bestselling writer, a story of unexpected friendship—three women thrown together in college who grow to adulthood united and divided by secrets, lies, and a single night that shaped all of them

When college roommates Anna and Kate find passed-out Georgiana Leoni on a lawn one night, they wheel her to their dorm in a shopping cart. Twenty years later, they gather around a campfire on the lawn of a New England mansion. What happens in between—the web of wild adventures, unspoken jealousies, and sudden tragedies that alter the course of their lives—is charted with sharp wit and aching sadness in this meticulously constructed novel.

Anna, the de facto leader, is fearless and restless—moving fast to stay one step ahead of her demons. Quirky, contemplative Kate is a natural sidekick but a terrible wingman ("If you go home with him, might I suggest breathing through your mouth"). And then there's George: the most desired woman in any room, and the one most likely to leave with the worst man.

Shot through with the crackling dialogue, irresistible characters, and propulsive narrative drive that make Lutz's books so beloved, HOW TO START A FIRE pulls us deep into Anna, Kate, and George's complicated bond and pays homage to the abiding, irrational love we share with the family we choose.

Lisa Lutz is the author of the The Spellman Files series and Heads You Lose (with David Hayward). She has won the Alex Award and has been nominated for the Edgar Award for Best Novel.

Praise:

“The characters are marvelous—each woman, despite having some over-the-top peculiarities about her, is relatable and fully dimensional... this is an absorbing tale that will satisfy Spellman fans as well as women’s fiction readers who like a good ensemble story.” –Booklist, starred review

“Lutz hits a home run in this glorious exploration of friendship... the author portrays three fully drawn, flawed, and compelling women with fresh insight into the mysterious terrain of female friendships—a mix of shared experiences, affection, empathy, jealousy, anger, and love.” –Publishers Weekly, starred review

“Few books have so expertly captured the intricacies and complexities of female friendship. Whip-smart and cunning, deeply funny and profoundly moving, Lisa Lutz’s How to Start a Fire is a knockout.”

FOR LOVE OR MAGIC (Book #3)
(St. Martin’s Press, December 2015)
Galley (304 pages)

Eliot Parker's good-for-nothing deceased husband has left her a new lease on life: a house in sleepy Nodaway Falls, New York. But his offer comes with a cost: his ghost...

As if being married to him wasn't hard enough! Nodaway Falls turns out to be a town with more than a little magic in the air. Eliot swore off using her own powers sixteen years ago, thanks to one catastrophic day when she lost the only people who ever mattered to her, and ran away from her spellbinding father and his reckless enchantments. Now, when a chance encounter with quiet, handsome Desmond Lamb results in a magical explosion that rocks Eliot to the core, she can't help but wonder: Has her heart fallen under some sort of spell? Or is this what true love really feels like? The real question, of course, is whether her husband will stop haunting her...and let Desmond give her a chance at happily ever after?

Lucy March is a New York Times and USA Today bestselling author. In 2010, she started writing her popular blog, A Year and Change, which documented the last fifteen months before her fortieth birthday. On her blog, Lucy worked through personal issues involving her divorce, her sense of self-worth, and her mother; she developed a following that eventually became the Betties, and occasionally opined on things like dieting, the writing process and vajazzling. Now, she is happily remarried and lives with her husband, her two young daughters and her best friend on a river in Southern Ohio, and life is pretty damn good. Her books include A Little Night Magic and That Touch of Magic.

Every man's fantasy—one man's obsession.

Maria Lantos is a postgrad Yale student researching illicit eighteenth-century literature. She's become exceptionally well-versed in the narratives of classic erotic fantasy. She's also Claudine, an in-demand escort specializing in sexual role play for an elite clientele. Anonymous. Satisfying. And discreet.

As her private nights bleed into day, Maria will discover the dangerous places that extend beyond the imagination and the secrets that are no longer consigned to the dark.

FINDING JAKE

(William Morrow/HarperCollins, February 2015)

Hardcover (272 pages)

A LibraryReads Top 10! (February 2015)

A heart-wrenching yet ultimately uplifting story of psychological suspense in which a parent is forced to confront what he does—and does not—know about his teenage son, in the vein of Reconstructing Amelia, Defending Jacob, and We Need to Talk About Kevin.

While his successful wife goes off to her law office each day, Simon Connolly takes care of their kids, Jake and Laney. Now that they are in high school, the angst-ridden father should feel more relaxed, but he doesn’t. He’s seen the statistics, read the headlines. And now, his darkest fear is coming true. There has been a shooting at school.

Simon races to the rendezvous point, where he’s forced to wait. Do they know who did it? How many victims were there? Why did this happen? One by one, parents are led out of the room to reunite with their children. Their numbers dwindle, until Simon is alone.

As his worst nightmare unfolds and Jake is the only child missing, Simon begins to obsess over the past, searching for answers, for hope, for the memory of the boy he raised, for mistakes he must have made, for the reason everything came to this. Where is Jake? What happened in those final moments? Is it possible he doesn’t really know his son? Or he knows him better than he thought?

Brilliantly paced, FINDING JAKE explores these questions in a tense and emotionally wrenching narrative. Harrowing and heartbreaking, surprisingly healing and redemptive, FINDING JAKE is a story of faith and conviction, strength, courage, and love that will leave readers questioning their own lives, and those they think they know.

Bryan Reardon is a freelance writer specializing in medical communications. He co-wrote Ready, Set, Play with retired NFL player and ESPN analyst Mark Schlereth and Cruel Harvest. Prior to becoming a full-time writer, Bryan worked for the State of Delaware for over a decade, starting in the Office of the Governor. He holds a BA in psychology from the University of Notre Dame and lives in West Chester, Pennsylvania, with his wife, kids, and rescue dog, Simon.

Praise:

“The suspense is killing, but it’s nothing compared with this father’s anguish as he tries to find his son—the real boy, not the one he thought he knew.” –The New York Times Book Review

"Reardon deftly builds suspense by setting his dual story lines on a collision course toward a shattering—and surprising—conclusion." —Publishers Weekly

"Finding Jake is compelling psychological suspense—but also so much more. A journey into the depths of a parent's worst nightmare, it is at turns heartbreaking, surprising, devastating, hopeful... I'll be thinking about this one for a long time to come." — Alison Gaylin, USA Today bestselling author of Stay with Me

SPOILED BRATS: Stories

(Little, Brown, October 2014)

Trade Paperback, May 2015 (224 pages)

UK rights sold to Serpent's Tail (via Hachette)

A Slate Best Book of 2014!

Finalist for the 2015 Gordon Burn Prize! (UK)

In his collection SPOILED BRATS, Simon Rich takes his absurd, culture-skewering style to new heights, marrying the literary polish of writers like Karen Russell and George Saunders with the humor of Steve Martin to deliver truly dazzling tales.

SPOILED BRATS is about the battles we fight with the ones who love us most: our parents. In "Family Business," a young chimpanzee offends his working class father by choosing to become a research animal instead of joining the family grub-hunting business. In "Proud Mom," a young mother is so besotted she doesn't realize her child is actually, truly a monster. And in "Animals," the fate of a terrified classroom hamster hangs in the balance when a notorious kid is picked for hamster care duty.

SPOILED BRATS confirms Rich as one of the most "adept, inarguably funny" (San Francisco Chronicle) young writers at work today.

Simon Rich is the author of The Last Girlfriend on Earth, What in God's Name, Ant Farm, Free-Range Chickens, and Elliot Allagash. His work, including one of these stories, has appeared in The New Yorker. He has written film scripts for Lorne Michaels and Judd Apatow, was a staff writer at Saturday Night Live, and has worked for Pixar. He lives in Brooklyn, NY.

Praise for Simon Rich:

"I can't recommend any Simon Rich book - especially this one - highly enough. From the hyper-competitive rituals of Scrabble players to the laments of a grieving, widowed hamster in an elementary school classroom, each story in Spoiled Brats opens with a brilliant comedic perspective that only gets funnier, more fascinating, more surprising, and more insightful from there. First-rate comedy with a heartbeat, this is one of my favorite books from one of my favorite authors." —B.J. Novak, author of One More Thing: Stories and Other Stories and star of "The Office"

"Simon Rich is a comedic shape shifter, adopting the plights of hamsters and hipsters alike, and Spoiled Brats is vividly hilarious in the way Woody Allen and Donald Barthelme are vividly hilarious."

—Sloane Crosley, author of I Was Told There'd Be Cake and How Did You Get This Number

"Laugh-out-loud funny. [Rich] can conjure authentic, from-the-abdomen laughter on almost every page. He stacks surrealism on top of slick satire on top of pure childish silliness in such a brilliant and condensed way, there are sometimes three laugh-out-loud moments within the same paragraph... This collection of stories isn't simply the funniest book of the year. It might just make us think about the spoiled brats we've become." —The Guardian (UK)

THE MEDEA COMPLEX
 (New American Library, June 2015)
Trade Paperback (368 pages)

A deep and riveting psychological thriller inspired by true events of the Victorian era, THE MEDEA COMPLEX explores the nature of the human psyche: what possesses us, what drives us, and how love, passion, and hope for the future can drive us to insanity.

1885. Anne Stanbury wakes up in a strange bed, having been kidnapped from her home. As the panic settles in, she realizes she has been committed to a lunatic asylum, deemed insane and therefore unfit to stand trial for an unspeakable crime. But all is not as it seems...

Edgar Stanbury, her husband as well as a grieving father, is torn between helping his confined wife recover her sanity and seeking revenge for his ruined life. But Anne’s future rests wholly in the hands of Dr. George Savage, chief medical officer of Bethlem Royal Hospital.

THE MEDEA COMPLEX is the darkly compelling story of a lunatic, a lie, and a shocking revelation that elucidates the difference between madness and evil...

Rachel Florence Roberts was born in Liverpool. She was inspired to write The Medea Complex after suffering with postnatal depression, following the birth of her son. The Medea Complex is inspired by true events that occurred towards the end of the 19th century, and is Rachel's first novel.

Praise:

"Roberts's debut is an absorbing, dark read, replete with details of the treatment of the mentally ill, the British legal system, and other facets of life in the late Victorian era. Her novel will definitely attract readers who love the Victorian time period and twisty plotting." —Library Journal

"A gripping tale from first page to last with an ending that left me reeling." —Deanna Raybourn, New York Times bestselling author of The Dark Enquiry

"A riveting debut novel filled with psychological suspense and dark, unexpected twists. In its chilling and compelling narrative, it manages to be both pull-no-punches historical fiction and a story so modern it could have happened yesterday." —Simone St. James, author of The Other Side of Midnight

Roosevelt, Kermit
ALLEGIANCE
 (Regan Arts, August 2015)
Trade Paperback (400 pages)

A sophisticated legal thriller that plunges readers into the debate within the US government surrounding the imprisonment of thousands of Japanese-Americans during World War II.

Following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, young law student Caswell "Cash" Harrison is rejected for military service but offered the opportunity of a lifetime: a chance to become a clerk to Supreme Justice Hugo Black. Washington, DC in wartime is a blur of activity, intrigue, and energy, and Cash finds himself chasing down a potential conspiracy that may be connected to the deliberations over one of the most troubling constitutional issues ever tackled by the court—the fate of tens of thousands of Japanese-Americans evacuated from the West Coast and held indefinitely in detention camps. When violence strikes deep within the court itself, Cash will learn that in wartime, everyone can be a suspect, and knowing where to place one's allegiance can be the most dangerous question of all.

Kermit Roosevelt's ALLEGIANCE is a riveting literary thriller, written with a flair reminiscent of F. Scott Fitzgerald, that brings the World War II home front alive as never before. Drawing upon the actual Supreme Court cases dealing with the Japanese-American internment, the novel poses questions about the federal government's power to strip away individual freedoms in the name of national security that still resonate deeply to this day.

Kermit Roosevelt is a professor of constitutional law at the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Born in Washington, DC, he attended Harvard University and Yale Law School. A former Supreme Court clerk, his first novel, In the Shadow of the Law (FSG, 2005), was a national campus bestseller, won the Philadelphia Athenaeum Literary Award, and was selected as a Christian Science Monitor Best Book of the Year. He is the great-great-grandson of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Praise:

"The perfect melding of the times of a young man and the times of a young country, as both struggle to delineate the parameters of justice during war... No one else but the immensely talented Kermit Roosevelt could have written Allegiance, and I cannot recommend it more highly." —Lisa Scottoline, author of *Betrayed and Keep Quiet

"Through cases handled by Cash as a clerk at the court and as a lawyer at the Justice Department, including post-New Deal cases affecting American business and cases about sending tens of thousands of Japanese-Americans to detention camps, Mr. Roosevelt skillfully limns some of the most pressing political issues of the period."

—The Wall Street Journal

“An insider’s view of a world at war, a rogue’s gallery with real-life rogues, an exploration of the limits of American idealism, Kermit Roosevelt’s Allegiance is also just a damn good yarn. It keeps you flipping pages even as it artfully and fruitfully complicates your understanding of the way we were. This is historical fiction as it should be.” —Louis Bayard, author of The Pale Blue Eye

THE LANGUAGE OF SILENCE
 (Gallery Books, September 2014)
Trade Paperback (336 pages)
World English Rights with Gallery Books

Hailed by Pat Conroy for her “astonishing” fiction, national bestselling author Peggy Webb stunningly portrays two women, generations apart but forever linked: a young wife trapped in a violent marriage, and her fabled grandmother who, some five decades before, fought off her own predators as a legendary tiger tamer in a renowned traveling show.

It's 1976, and Southern wives aspire to the perkiness of June Cleaver or the fortitude of Tammy Wynette. Ellen Blair tried both, but neither protected her from the monster within her husband. One of Tupelo's top businessmen, Wayne Blair could bloody her nose with a forceful backhand, send her careening into a kitchen wall, or leave her hospitalized after an unfortunate “accident.”

Her survival depends on first escaping to her Aunt Ruth's Ozark mountain home. For years, Ruth has shared tales of Lola Hall, Ellen's feisty grandmother, who fled her own domestic nightmare by disappearing inside the fantastical, oddball world of the circus...and emerging as a Big Top star circa 1929, the lady who commanded the mighty tiger with her magic touch.

But Ruth doesn't just tell stories of the past—she feels the future in powerful visions. With ominous awareness that Wayne is moving in on his runaway wife, Ruth accompanies her niece on her desperate drive to anywhere. And with Lola's spirit fueling her flight, Ellen soon finds herself on the trail of the circus, in search of her own tigers to protect her...

MISSION HILL (A Lucy Barnes Novel)

(Minotaur Books, May 2016)

Manuscript (272 pages)

A debut legal thriller based on the author's experiences as a homicide prosecutor in Boston.

Assistant District Attorney Tim Mooney impanels a jury for a murder trial, puts the finishing touches on his opening statement, tosses back a beer with friends, and heads home for the night. An hour later his dead body is discovered behind the wheel of his unmarked police car. Prosecutor Lucy Barnes arrives at the crime scene to discover the unimaginable — her colleague, friend and (secret) lover, has been executed.

Lucy fights through her grief and fear, and forges ahead with Tim's trial. Her witnesses begin to disappear, her life is threatened and her defendant escapes from lockup. Lucy's biggest challenge comes, however, when an FBI agent asks her to wear a wire and record conversations with her boss, District Attorney Max Lombardo. Lucy learns that there is a connection between her trial, Tim's murder and a political corruption scandal.

Pam Wechsler moved to Los Angeles after spending fifteen years prosecuting cases at the local, state and federal levels and now works as a legal consultant and staff writer for television and film. Her writing and consulting credits include Law and Order, Canterbury's Law, and The Judge—a movie starring Robert Downey Jr.

YOUNG ADULT & MIDDLE GRADEArcos, Carrie*NERUDA IN LOVE (Young Adult)

(Philomel/Penguin Random House, Summer 2016)

Manuscript due August 2015*World English rights with Penguin Random House*

National Book Award finalist Arcos introduces an unlucky-in-love boy with a penchant for poetry (but an inability to write his own) who falls harder than he ever thought possible for an elusive girl and wonders if his luck may finally be changing

Sixteen year-old Neruda Kim spends his days drawing, playing basketball, missing his father who recently moved away, corresponding with his incarcerated pen pal Ezra, and trying not to get into a fight with his arch enemy Luis. But mostly, Neruda falls in love. In fact, Neruda is addicted to falling in love. Mostly with the wrong girls. Named after Pablo Neruda, one of the most famous love poets, you'd think love would come easily. Not so much. One botched attempt after the next and it seems that Neruda is the unluckiest in love. But when Neruda is paired up on a class assignment with Callie, he falls harder than he ever thought possible and it looks like just maybe his luck could be about to change.

In the trademark beautiful prose that Carrie Arcos is beloved for, NERUDA IN LOVE is a coming of age love story from a refreshingly lovesick male point of view. But it will appeal to boys and girls alike. This book hits all the right notes when it comes to teens falling in love.

Carrie Arcos is the author of Out of Reach, a National Book Award finalist, and the critically acclaimed novel, There Will Come a Time. She lives in Los Angeles, California, with her family.

Dinan, KurtDON'T GET CAUGHT (Young Adult)

(Sourcebooks Fire, April 2016)

Manuscript (320 pages)World English rights with Sourcebooks

Max Cobb is a high school nobody who, through a series of increasingly inventive heists that turn into an all-out prank war, finds his people and his voice.

Seventeen-year-old Max Cobb is sick of being “Just Max”—predictable, agreeable, quiet, just... there. When presented with an opportunity to join the covert Chaos Club that has secretly been pulling off the best pranks at Ashville High School for decades, Max jumps at the chance to be, well... “Not Max.” Because while “Just Max” might be a high school nobody, he’s also perfect for the job because he’s a heist film expert who’s memorized their strategies, tactics, and cons.

But when it turns out that Max and four other random students have been set up by the Chaos Club and are framed for vandalizing the town water tower (and are subsequently labeled The Water Tower Five) they are left wondering who is behind it all and why. Tapping into his heist film knowledge, Max does what any budding mastermind with nothing to lose would do—he plots some serious payback.

With a fantastic cast of characters—Ellie, Max’s longtime crush who can fake cry her way into or out of anything; Kate, rock-climber/artist/overall badass who can rappel from any height; Wheeler, online genius/school flunky who creates web chaos; and Tim, the lacrosse goon with the strength of the Hulk—this novel will have you laughing out loud and turning the pages at a rapid pace.

Kurt Dinan has taught public high school English for the past twenty years, and while he's never pulled any of the pranks detailed in this novel, he was almost once arrested in college for blizzarding the campus with fliers promoting a fake concert. He's had a handful of short stories published including one in 2010's The Year's Best Dark Fantasy and Horror. He lives and works in the suburbs of Cincinnati with his wife and three young sons who he affectionately refers to as "The Crime Spree." Don't Get Caught is his first novel.

What if you discovered that not only is Kurt Cobain alive, but he might be your real father?

Nico Cavan has been adrift since her mother vanished when she was four—maternal abandonment isn't exactly something you can just get over. She copes by staying invisible at school. That and listening to alternative rock music and summoning spirits on the Ouija board with Obe, her best friend and co-conspirator in sarcasm. But when a chance discovery opens a window onto her mom's wild past, it plants an idea in her brain that takes root and won't let go.

On a ferry departing Seattle, Nico encounters a slight blond guy in a hooded jacket with piercing blue eyes. Something in Nico's heart tells her that this feeling she has might actually be the truth, and so she follows him to a remote cabin in the Pacific Northwest. THE GIANT SMUGGLERS (Upper Middle Grade)

(Feiwel & Friends/Macmillan, May 2016)

Manuscript (288 pages)

World English rights with Macmillan

Fourteen-year-old Charlie Lawson is living a mostly unexceptional life in middle America. “Mostly” because being the shortest kid in high school certainly stands out, as does having a father who disappeared years before, as does missing an older brother who left school to join the traveling carnival. No joke. On the plus side- he’s great at car racing (ok, virtual car racing), he’s medium-good at keeping the bullies at bay, and, given his height and his kind of lousy apartment, he’s made peace with himself.

And then, one day, he goes to feed his neighbor’s cat, and before he knows it, he’s found a new best friend—a thirty-foot-tall, stuttering, teenage giant. Charlie names him Bruce. Turns out, Bruce is the last of a small community of giants who are being moved secretly through the United States to a new home in Canada via an underground railroad of sort. One thing is clear—life in middle America will never be the same.

BECAUSE OF THE SUN

(Delacorte/Penguin Random House, 2017)

Manuscript

Inspired by Camus' The Stranger, BECAUSE OF THE SUN follows an emotionally detached teenager through ambiguous grief in the aftermath of a bear attack that kills her mother

After seventeen-year-old Dani Falls finds her abusive mother mauled to death by a bear while tanning by the pool of their Florida home, Dani is sent to live with an aunt named Shelly in rural New Mexico who she never knew existed. While Dani's stoic, non-reaction to her mother's death is not the one expected for someone in grief, internally, Dani is haunted by the bear. She sees him everywhere. In the desolate desert, at her new school, in her dreams. But as she learns more about her mother's past from Shelly, Dani and her aunt begin to form an unexpected bond. A bond that just might break the cycle of abuse that permeates the Falls family. And slowly but surely, the bear begins to fade. Once so detached and hopeless, Dani finds solace in the desert, in her new classmates, and in a neighbor named Paulo who rescues her (more than once) with orange soda. For the first time in her life, Dani begins to redefine what the word "home" might mean to her.

BECAUSE OF THE SUN so accurately captures the many grey areas of family abuse and the myriad feelings that a victim goes through, from coping mechanisms of detachment to feeling permanently inadequate. Jenny Torres Sanchez writes beautifully – Dani's imaginary world is distorted and muted, the nuanced characters come alive naturally, and the sparse dialogue sings. Dani is a surprising, layered, and unique protagonist. Her voice captures both her shock and her healing in the most vivid and visceral way.

Jenny Torres Sanchez holds a BA in English and taught high school English for several years. She has published two novels with Running Press Teen and she currently lives in Orlando. You can check out her website to learn more about her: <http://jennytorressanchez.com/>
