AN EXCITING AND VIVID

INNER LIFE

Paul Dalla Rosa

Debut Collection

Oscillating between elation and despair, An Exciting and Vivid Inner Life is the debut short story collection from Sunday Times Short Story Award finalist Paul Dalla Rosa.

Whether working in food service or in high-end retail, lit by a laptop in a sex chat or by the camera of an acclaimed film director, or sharing a dangerous flat in the city or a holiday rental in Mallorca, the protagonists of the ten stories comprising Paul Dalla Rosa's debut collection navigate the spaces between aspiration and delusion, ambition and aimlessness, the curated profile and the unreliable body.

By turns unsparing and tender, Dalla Rosa explores our lives in late-stage Capitalism, where globalization and its false promises of connectivity leave us further alienated and disenfranchised. Like the legendary Lucia Berlin and his contemporary Ottessa Mossfegh, Dalla Rosa is a masterful observer-and hilarious eviscerator-of our ugly, beautiful attempts at finding meaning in an ugly, beautiful world.

"I love these voyeuristically addictive, funny, and deceptively simple stories. Paul Dalla Rosa has perfectly articulated the bizarreness of human isolation and human behaviour."—Halle Butler, author of The New Me

Allen & Unwin // May 2022

Serpent's Tail (UK)

"The contemporary urgency of his stories is intoxicating.... This is such an exciting collection—writing this good is thrilling, exhilarating."
—Christos Tsiolkas, author of The Slap

Paul Dalla Rosa is a writer based in Melbourne, Australia. His stories have appeared in Granta, The Paris Review, McSweeney's, Meanjin and New York Tyrant. In 2019, his story 'Comme' was shortlisted for the Sunday Times Short Story Award. An Exciting and Vivid Inner Life is his debut collection.

JUST BY LOOKING AT HIM

Ryan O'Connell

Debut
Fiction

From the star of Peacock's upcoming Queer as Folk, comes a witty and touching novel about a gay TV writer with cerebral palsy as he faces addiction and longs to be seen in an ableist world.

Eliot appears to be living the dream as a successful TV writer with a doting boyfriend. But behind his Instagram-filtered life, he's struggling with a worsening alcohol dependency, he can't seem to stop cheating on his boyfriend with various sex workers, and his cerebral palsy is making him feel like a gay Shrek.

After falling into a cycle of sex, drinking, and Hollywood backstabbing, Eliot decides to limp his way towards redemption. But facing your demons is easier said than done.

Candid, biting, and refreshingly real, Just by Looking at Him is an incisive commentary on gay life, a heart-centered, laugh-out-loud exploration of self, and a rare insight into life as a person with disabilities who refuses to be invisible.

"I've loved Ryan O'Connell's voice in every iteration, but his turn to fiction is my favorite Ryan yet: sharp, bawdy, yet still deeply touching. It's shockingly elegant, and elegantly shocking."—Lena Dunham, author of Not That Kind of Girl

"A very funny novel about falling for a fantasy and finding love for one's own self... Ryan O'Connell explores the lessons that the vulnerable human body has to teach us, and he does so with humor, heart and heat."—Melissa Broder, author of The Pisces

Ryan O'Connell is the Emmy-nominated creator, writer, and star of Netflix's Special, which is based on his memoir, I'm Special: And Other Lies We Tell Ourselves. He's also written for other TV shows like Will & Grace, Awkward, and Peacock's Queer as Folk revival, which he also stars in. He lives, laughs, and loves in Los Angeles with his partner, Jonathan Parks-Ramage.

HAWK MOUNTAIN

Conner Habib

Debut
Fiction

An English teacher is gaslit by his charismatic high school bully in this tense story of deception, manipulation, and murder.

Single father Todd is relaxing at the beach with his son, Anthony, when he catches sight of a man approaching from the water's edge. As the man draws closer, Todd recognizes him as Jack, who bullied Todd relentlessly in their teenage years but now seems overjoyed to have "run into" his old friend. Jack suggests a meal to catch up. And can he spend the night?

What follows is a fast-paced story of obsession and cunning. As Jack invades Todd's life, pain and intimidation from the past unearth knife-edge suspense in the present. Set in a small town on the New England coast, Conner Habib's debut introduces characters trapped in isolation by the expansive woods and the encroaching ocean, their violence an expression of repressed desire and the damage it can inflict. Both gruesome and tender, Hawk Mountain offers a compelling look at how love and hate are indissoluble, intertwined until the last breath.

W. W. Norton // July 2022

Doubleday (UK)

"A deeply disturbing yet, somehow, soaring novel I won't soon forget. It plumbs the depths of traumatized characters trapped within our damaging culture. I couldn't look away, even when I was looking from between my fingers."—Paul Tremblay, author of A Head Full of Ghosts

"Conner Habib's debut novel is a bleak, dark adrenaline rush."—Clive Barker

Conner Habib is the host of the popular podcast Against Everyone with Conner Habib and is a writer, lecturer, and a sex workers' rights advocate. He lectures around the world about sexuality, spirituality, pornography, science, and art. His writing has appeared in such publications as The Stranger, Vice, Salon, Slate, and in several anthologies. For ten years, he was an award-winning gay adult performer.

BROTHER ALIVE

Zain Khalid

Debut
Fiction

An astonishing debut about family, sexuality, and capitalist systems of control

In 1990, three baby boys—Dayo, Iseul, and Youssef—are adopted and live atop a mosque in one of Staten Island’s most diverse and precarious neighborhoods. They are a conspicuous trio: Dayo is of Nigerian origin, Iseul is Korean, and Youssef Middle Eastern, but they are so close as to be inseparable. Nevertheless, Youssef is keeping a secret: he has an imaginary double, a shapeshifting creature he calls Brother. Brother is both a friend and a curse—he provides solace to Youssef but demands information in exchange.

The boys’ adoptive father, Imam Salim, is popular in the community, but at home he is a distant father who spends evenings in his study with whiskey-laced coffee, writing letters to former compatriots back in Saudi Arabia. Like Youssef, he too has secrets, including the cause of his failing health, the reason for his nighttime excursions, and the truth about what happened to the boys’ parents. When Imam Salim’s disappears to Saudi Arabia, the boys will follow. There they will be captivated by an opulent, almost futuristic world. A linear city that seems to offer a more sustainable modernity than that of the West, where they find traces of their parents’ stories. But they will have to change if they want to survive in this new world, and the arrival of a creature as powerful as Brother will not go unnoticed.

With stylistic brilliance and intellectual acuity, Zain Khalid brings characters to vivid life with a bold energy that matches the great themes of family, capital, power, sexuality, and the possibility of reunion for those who are broken.

"Brother Alive is a rigorously intelligent, wholly sensitive, and quietly rebellious work of art, with prose as profound as it is beautiful. What a gift to humanity this book is."—Robert Jones, Jr., New York Times-bestselling author of The Prophets

"Hallucinatory and electrifying, Brother Alive announces the arrival of a writer with an impassioned and fearless vision."—Maaza Mengiste, author of Booker Prize-shortlisted The Shadow King

Zain Khalid has been published in The New Yorker, The Believer, The Los Angeles Review of Books, McSweeney's Quarterly Concern, and elsewhere. He has also written for television. Brother Alive is his first novel. He lives in New York City.

THE MAN WHO COULD MOVE CLOUDS

Ingrid Rojas Contreras

Memoir

From the author of Fruit of the Drunken Tree comes a dazzling, kaleidoscopic memoir of her family's otherworldly legacy.

For Ingrid Rojas Contreras, magic is a family affair. In her childhood home in Colombia, “What did you dream?” was asked instead of “How are you?” Her grandfather, Nono, was a renowned curandero, a community healer with the ability to talk to the dead, treat the sick, and move the clouds. As a young girl, Ingrid spied on her mother’s fortune-telling business and waited eagerly for Mami to appear in two places at once via astral projection.

When Ingrid suffered a head injury in her twenties that left her with amnesia (an accident similar to the one that put her mother in a coma as a child and granted her the ability to see ghosts) the family assumes “the secrets” have been passed down to the next generation. But as Ingrid recovers her memories, she is consumed instead by a powerful urge to learn more about her family legacy.

With Mami as her unpredictable, stubborn and often hilarious guide, Ingrid traces her lineage back to her indigenous and Spanish roots, uncovering the repressive colonial narrative that would eventually break her family into two opposing sides: those who believe “the secrets” are a gift, and those who are convinced they are a curse.

Interweaving family stories more enchanting than any novel, resurrected Colombian history, and her own deeply personal reckonings with the bounds of reality, Rojas Contreras writes a luminous testament to the power of storytelling as a healing art and an invitation to embrace the extraordinary.

Doubleday // July 2022

"The Man Who Could Move Clouds is the work of a genius, a wildly moving, profound, groundbreaking, often hilarious book that I'll reread until I die."—R.O. Kwon, author of The Incendiaries

"The Man Who Could Move Clouds is a memoir like no other, mapping memory, myth, and the mysteries and magic of ancestry with stark tenderness and beauty. [She] has given us a glorious gift with these pages."—Patricia Engel, author of Infinite Country

Ingrid Rojas Contreras was born and raised in Bogotá, Colombia. Her debut novel Fruit of the Drunken Tree was the silver medal winner in First Fiction from the California Book Awards, and a New York Times Editors' choice. Her essays and short stories have appeared in the New York Times Magazine, Buzzfeed, Nylon, and Guernica, among others publications.

POMEGRANATE

Sarah Rose Etter

Literary
Fiction

If the odds of starting your life over in a new dimension were roughly equal with the possibility of being crushed into oblivion, would you take the risk for a second chance?

That is the question posed by Cassie after her first year with a cutthroat Silicon Valley startup. In a city where obscene wealth abuts abject suffering, she struggles to make sense of her increasingly surreal surroundings. Snow machines transform the company parking lot into a sledding party in plain view of unhoused people bathing in the bay. Cassie's boss forces her staff to share details of their personal traumas as a team-building exercise. Startup burnouts leap into the paths of commuter trains while San Francisco's most vulnerable are literally setting themselves on fire in the streets. Cassie can't look away, and she feels as if she's the only one paying attention.

Cassie may be isolated, but she is not alone. From her earliest memory, a miniature black hole has been her constant companion. The black hole feeds on her depression and anxiety, its size changing in relation to her distress. The black hole watches, but it is also waiting. Waiting for Cassie to surrender to its relentless pull.

When her CEO's demands cross the line from unethical to illegal and she experiences an unwanted pregnancy, Cassie must decide how much of herself she is willing to give up for success.

Pomegranate is by turns a funny, horrifying, sharp and vulnerable story of one woman's journey through our late-capitalist hellscape.

THE LIFE, DEATH AND RESURRECTION OF MADAME RESELL

Jennifer Ashley Wright

History/
Biography

The Life, Death and Resurrection of Madame Restell is a little bit You Never Forget Your First, a little bit The Knick, a dash of The Age of Innocence, and a sprinkle of The Shawshank Redemption.

This sharp, witty Gilded Age medical history stars Madame Restell, a glamorous women’s healthcare provider in Manhattan, who was a celebrity in her era and a Moira Rose-esque figure with a flair for high fashion and petty public beefs. The story of Restell’s struggle to care for New York’s unmarried women—providing abortions, birth control, and other assistance—in defiance of increasing persecution from powerful men, ends not in outright tragedy, but with a glorious, life-affirming, bittersweet twist.

That this book doubles as a history of women’s health—and the propaganda on which the “pro-life” movement was founded—makes it not just entertaining, but profoundly comforting for feminist readers. Few and far between are there books expanding our sense of hope, humor, and what’s possible for women’s rights in this politicized arena, one which augurs some real downer developments in the coming years. The Life, Death and Resurrection of Madame Restell does just that, and it does so in a sumptuous, character-driven, frequently funny package.

Hachette Books // Spring or Summer 2023

Jennifer Ashley Wright has written beloved pop history collections from It Ended Badly and Get Well Soon (Holt) to the forthcoming She Kills Me, an illustrated field guide to righteous women who have committed murder (Abrams Image). The Life, Death and Resurrection of Madame Restell is Wright's first work of single narrative history.

GIVE ME SPACE BUT DON'T GO FAR

Haley Weaver

Graphic
Memoir

An illustrated memoir of one woman's utterly relatable and life-affirming anxiety journey.

Through eleven illustrated essays, Give Me Space But Don't Go Far encourages readers to understand anxiety as a part of them, a neutral thing as unavoidable and intrinsic as any other part of their body. Anxiety isn't an obstacle, it's a roommate.

Or in Haley Weaver's case, her anxiety is represented by a wide-eyed tangle of string, Weaver reveals over the course of the book that it isn't an enemy to defeat or an obstacle to overcome. Anxiety just is, and it's never going away, but if we care for it with tender curiosity and attention, it has many gifts to offer.

With care, practice, and the friendship of some really great coping mechanisms, you can learn how to live with your anxiety roommate in a mutually respectful, affectionate, even meaningful way.

Give Me Space is more than just a memoir; it's a valentine to self-acceptance and forgiveness.

Please Miss: A Heartbreaking Work of Staggering Penis

Grace Lavery

Memoir

“The queer memoir you’ve been waiting for”

—Carmen Maria Machado

Grace Lavery is a reformed druggie, an unreformed omnisexual chaos Muppet, and 100 percent, all-natural, synthetic female hormone monster. As soon as she solves her “penis problem,” she begins receiving anonymous letters, seemingly sent by a cult of sinister clowns, and sets out on a magical mystery tour to find the source of these surreal missives. Misadventures abound: Grace performs in a David Lynch remake of Sunset Boulevard and is reprogrammed as a sixties femmebot; she writes a Juggalo Ghostbusters prequel and a socialist manifesto disguised as a porn parody of a quiz show. Or is it vice versa? As Grace fumbles toward a new trans identity, she tries on dozens of different voices, creating a coat of many colors.

With more dick jokes than a transsexual should be able to pull off, Please Miss gives us what we came for, then slaps us in the face and orders us to come again.

A Good Morning America Book Club Pick

A work-from-home comic tour de force for fans of Then We Came to the End and Severance. And anyone who has ever struggled to understand an emoticon.

Employee Gerald discovers that his consciousness has been uploaded into the company's Slack channel. Despite his posts for help, his colleagues assume it's a trick to work from home. Gerald enlists his co-worker Pradeep to care for his body while they figure out how to reintegrate his consciousness.

Plunging deeper into the Slack workspace—and becoming more productive by the day—Gerald relies on Slackbot, the messaging service's AI assistant, to navigate his new digital reality. But what happens when it discovers a world (and an empty body) outside the Slack app?

Meanwhile, can Gerald's colleagues contain the PR catastrophe that erupts after Bjärk-brand dog food poisons Pomeranians? Will their boss Doug discover that Tripp has been fucking Beverley on Doug's now-broken desk? Why does Lydia hear an incessant howling dog on a work-from-home day? Can love develop between two men when one is a disembodied consciousness? And what the hell does the :dusty-stick: emoji mean?

MRS. MARCH

Virginia Feito

Debut
Fiction

Soon to be a feature film from Blumhouse Productions and Elisabeth Moss, the team behind the hit movie The Invisible Man.

A twenty-first-century Highsmith, Virginia Feito conjures an unforgettable New York housewife whose life is shattered by her husband's new novel.

In this astonishing debut, the venerable but gossipy New York literary scene is twisted into a claustrophobic funhouse of paranoia, horror, and wickedly dark humor. George March's latest novel is a smash. No one is prouder than Mrs. March, his doting wife. But one morning, the shopkeeper of her favorite patisserie suggests that his protagonist is based on Mrs. March herself: "But...—isn't she..." Mrs. March leaned in and in almost a whisper said, "a whore?"

Clutching her ostrich-leather pocketbook, she flees, that one casual remark destroying her belief that she knew everything about her husband—as well as herself. Suddenly, Mrs. March is hurled into a harrowing journey that builds to near psychosis, one that merely begins within the pages of a book but may uncover both a killer and the long-buried secrets of her past.

DARRYL
Jackie Ess

Debut
Fiction

In active development for TV!

A wild exploration of desire and identity in the spirit of I Love Dick—with a kinky twist.

Darryl Cook is a man who seems to have everything: a quiet home in Western Oregon, a beautiful wife, and a lot of friends to fuck her while he watches. But as he explores the cuckolding lifestyle, he finds himself tugging at threads that threaten to unravel his marriage, his town, and himself.

With empathy and humor, debut author Jackie Ess crafts a kaleidoscopic meditation on marriage, manhood, dreams, basketball, sobriety, and the secret lives of Oregonians.

"Underneath the sharp satire and hilarious sexual irreverence this is a deadly serious book: a brilliant novel of a seeker, like The Pilgrim's Progress refracted by queer internet culture."—Torrey Peters, author of Detransition, Baby

A co-founder of the Bay Area Trans Writers Workshop, her work can be found in Heavy Feather Review, The Zahir, The New Inquiry, Vetch, and We Want it All: An Anthology of Radical Trans Poetics. Darryl is her first novel.

THE LONELIEST POLAR BEAR:

A True Story of Survival and Peril on the Edge of a Warming World

Environment/
Wildlife

Kale Williams

The heartbreaking yet hopeful story of an abandoned polar bear cub and the humans working to save her and her species.

Six days after giving birth, a polar bear at the Columbus Zoo abandoned her tiny cub. She was furless and blind, and with her temperature dropping, the zookeepers entrusted with her care had no choice: They would have to raise one of the most dangerous predators in the world themselves.

Three decades before Nora's birth, her father, Nanuq, was orphaned when an Inupiat hunter killed his mother. That hunter, Gene Agnaboogok, now faces some of the same threats as the bears near his Alaskan village. As sea ice diminishes and temperatures increase, Gene and the polar bears are being forced to adapt. Not all of them will succeed.

Sweeping and tender, The Loneliest Polar Bear explores the fraught relationship humans have with the natural world, and the exploitative and sinister causes of the environmental mess we all find ourselves in.

UNDER THE SKY WE MAKE: How to Be Human in a Warming World

Kimberly Nicholas, PhD

Climate
Science

The planet is warming. It's bad. But we can fix it.

After speaking to the world for close to fifteen years about sustainability, climate scientist Dr. Nicholas realized that people were getting the wrong message about the climate crisis. Yes, companies and governments are hugely responsible for the mess we're in. But individuals CAN effect real, significant, and lasting change to solve this problem. Nicholas explores finding purpose in a warming world, combining her expertise and her personal experience in a way that is fresh and deeply urgent: Agonizing over the climate costs of visiting loved ones overseas, how to find low-carbon love on Tinder, and even exploring her complicated family legacy of supermarket turkeys.

Nicholas does for climate science what Michael Pollan did for food: offering a hopeful, clear-eyed, and somehow hilarious guide to effecting real change. Saving ourselves from climate apocalypse will require radical shifts within each of us. But it can be done. Change requires, Dr. Nicholas argues, belief in our own agency and value, alongside a deep understanding that no one will ever hand us power—we're going to have to seize it for ourselves.

Putnam // March 2021

“This compelling book about climate change really packs a punch, because climate scientist Nicholas relentlessly brings things down to the personal level.... a realistic, accessible, and clarion call for change.”—Booklist (starred)

“A breezy field guide on how to align your lifestyle with your values that avoids being overly prescriptive.”—Mother Jones

Dr. Kimberly Nicholas is Associate Professor of Sustainability Science at Lund, Sweden's highest-ranked university. Raised on her family's vineyard in Sonoma, California, she studied the effect of climate change on the wine industry for her Ph.D. at Stanford. She has been published in leading peer-reviewed journals, and her research has been featured in outlets including The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Atlantic, USA Today, Buzzfeed, and more. She has also been profiled in Elle and The Guardian and gives appearances at around 50 lectures each year, such as the recent Climate Change Leadership summit.
