

THE LITTLE LIAR by Mitch Albom (HarperCollins, Nov. 7, 2023). ms. delivery May 2023

Eleven-year-old Nico Crispi never told a lie. When the Nazis invade his home in Salonika, Greece, the trustworthy boy is discovered by a German officer, who offers him a chance to save his family. All Nico has to do is convince his fellow Jewish residents to board trains heading towards “the east” where they are promised jobs and safety. Unaware that this is all a cruel ruse, the innocent boy goes to the station platform every day and reassures the passengers that the journey is safe. But when the final train is at the station, Nico sees his family being loaded into a large boxcar crowded with other neighbors. Only after it is too late does Nico discover that he helped send the people he loved—and all the others—to their doom at Auschwitz.

Nico never tells the truth again.

In The Little Liar, his first novel set during the Holocaust, Mitch Albom interweaves the stories of Nico, his brother Sebastian, and their schoolmate Fanni, who miraculously survive the death camps and spend years searching for Nico, who has become a pathological liar, and the Nazi officer who radically changed their lives. As the decades pass, Albom reveals the consequences of what they said, did, and endured.

A moving parable that explores honesty, survival, revenge and devotion, The Little Liar is Mitch Albom at his very best. Narrated by the voice of Truth itself, it is a timeless story about the harm we inflict with our deceits, and the power of love to ultimately redeem us.

THE STRANGER IN THE LIFEBOAT by Mitch Albom (HarperCollins, Nov. 2021). (Mitch’s backlist on page 70)
#1 New York Times bestseller

What would happen if we called on God for help and God actually appeared? In Mitch Albom’s profound new novel of hope and faith, a group of shipwrecked passengers pull a strange man from the sea. He claims to be “the Lord.” And he says he can only save them if they all believe in him. Adrift in a raft after a deadly ship explosion, nine people struggle for survival at sea. Three days pass. Short on water, food and hope, they spot a man floating in the waves. They pull him in.

“Thank the Lord we found you,” a passenger says.

“I am the Lord,” the man whispers.

So begins Mitch Albom’s most beguiling and inspiring novel yet.

Albom has written of heaven in the celebrated No. 1 bestsellers The Five People You Meet in Heaven and The First Phone Call from Heaven. Now, for the first time in his fiction, he ponders what we would do if, after crying out for divine help, God actually appeared before us? What might the Lord look, sound and act like?

In The Stranger in the Lifeboat, Albom keeps us guessing until the end: Is this strange and quiet man really who he claims to be? What actually happened to cause the explosion? Are the survivors already in heaven, or are they in hell?

The story is narrated by Benji, one of the passengers, who recounts the events in a notebook that is later discovered – a year later – when the empty liferaft washes up on the island of Montserrat. It falls to the island’s chief inspector, Jarty LeFleur, a man battling his own demons, to solve the mystery of what really happened.

A fast-paced, compelling novel that makes you ponder your deepest beliefs, The Stranger in the Lifeboat suggests that answers to our prayers may be found where we least expect them.

DEMON OF UNREST: A Saga of Hubris, Brinksmanship, and Heartbreak on the Road to Fort Sumter by Erik Larson (Crown, Spring 2024) ms. delivery June 2023 (*See Erik's backlist on p 73.)

Demon of Unrest is a hair-raising, heart-sinking, edge-of-the-seat portrayal of the four months from Abraham Lincoln's election on Nov. 6, 1860, to the shelling of Fort Sumter, April 12-13, 1861, and the start of the Civil War—a period which has strong resonance in the wake of the Jan. 6, 2021 insurrection. We all know that the attack on Fort Sumter started the Civil War, but Erik Larson manages to coax the reader into suspending that knowledge and feeling the heart-breaking tension as if they did not know the ending. This dread is all the more pronounced in light of today's political discord, which incredibly has led some benighted Americans to whisper of secession and civil war. Readers will know the importance of Sumter going in, but the conclusion comes as new, packed with “I didn't know that” moments and a potent emotional climax.

Larson's narrative will braid together the many disparate threads of action that led to the attack on the fort and the start of the war. The book will also address an overlooked question—how on earth did a single fort in South Carolina, still under construction and manned by only 70 soldiers (instead of the requisite 650), become imbued with such symbolic power that it became the fulcrum for America's greatest tragedy? As Lincoln himself told an aide later in the war: “of all the trials I have had since I came here, none begin to compare with those I had between the inauguration and the fall of Fort Sumter. They were so great that could I have anticipated them, I would not have believed it possible to survive them.”

THE SPLENDID AND THE VILE: A Saga of Churchill, Family, and Defiance During the Bombing of London by Erik Larson (Crown, Feb 25, 2020);

#1 New York Times bestseller

In that first cataclysmic year, Churchill defied ever-escalating aggression from Hitler to win England's first major victory of the war, one that rallied Britons everywhere and played an important role in persuading President Franklin Roosevelt to support him to the fullest extent possible. The narrative will begin with Churchill's appointment as prime minister on May 10, 1940, the day Hitler invaded Holland and Belgium; it will end one year later, on May 10, 1941, with the last and most ferocious night of the Blitz, a night filled with Vonnegutian violence and devastation, capped by the bizarre arrival on British soil, by parachute, of Hitler's closest deputy, Rudolf Hess.

Larson's acclaimed storytelling skills will bring to life one of the most important political figures of the 20th Century and will also be a narratively engrossing “Downton on Downing.” Set in locales ranging from the Prisoner Room at the prime ministerial country house, Chequers; to London's Dorchester Hotel, where Lady “Emerald” Cunard threw charismatic parties as shrapnel peppered the windows; and of course to 10 Downing Street and the Cabinet War Rooms, Larson's book will provide a vivid portrait of London in the darkest time imaginable, through the day-to-day experience of Churchill and his family—his wife, Clementine; their daughters, Sarah, Diana, Mary; and their son, Randolph—and the cadre of close advisers who comprised Churchill's “Secret Circle.” The book will draw upon a wealth of new sources, including recently declassified files as well as personal diaries that only now have become accessible to researchers. The Splendid and the Vile promises to take readers out of today's political dysfunction and back to a time of true leadership, when Churchill's eloquence, strategic brilliance, and perseverance bound a country together in the face of unrelenting horror.

WEST HEART KILL by Dann McDorman (Knopf, Fall 2023); ms. available

Spoiler alert: the detective dies.

When Detective Adam McAnnis first shows up at club West Heart in upstate New York, his motivations for being there are unclear. But when a dead body is found shortly after his arrival, everyone at the club is suspect. The complication? The folk of West Heart have their own language—the language of high society—and Detective McAnnis is an outsider. In order to solve the murder, McAnnis must not only sleuth for clues but infiltrate a tight-knit community that has no intention of ratting out one of their own.

As the investigation unfolds and another body is discovered, McAnnis finds himself in a race against time and a fight for justice in which he seems to be the sole champion of truth. The reader finds themselves dragged into the story, both as voyeur and accomplice, guided by an irreverent narrator with a flair for the dramatic. And when Detective McAnnis becomes the third body to drop in the small upstate New York community, it is up to the members themselves to step up to the challenge and find the person responsible.

West Heart Kill is Dann McDorman's debut novel, though it reads as a seasoned author's mystery. McDorman showcases for the first time his unmatched skill in building a narrative that actively weaves the reader into its threads. As the story progresses, the reader becomes more and more entrenched in the plot, eventually turning into a character in their own right as the plot unravels and the book radically changes form. West Heart Kill is a classic in the making, and readers are sure to walk away transformed.

BLUE HOTEL by Dann McDorman (Knopf, Spring 2025) ms. delivery December 2023

A man wakes up in a room with no idea where he is or how he got there. The room has no door nor windows. He has no way to tell the time. He has nothing to eat except for the endless cartons of Cup O' Noodles (Original flavor) with which he is tormented by his captors. The stubble on his chin doesn't grow. He loses his mind; he gets his back. Then one day, one hour, one minute, a vintage black typewriter appears on the desk, gleaming like a beetle. He warily taps out his name: J-O-H-N T-H-O-M-A-S. He sits down and begins to write...

Thus begins Blue Hotel, during which readers follow John Thomas as he tries to solve the mystery of his imprisonment. His surprising escape, and the discovery of what lies outside his room, launches an exploration during which readers will encounter a strange menagerie of characters: doomsday cultists, a Reality Studies professor, a Big Tech billionaire, an immortal chatbot, a woman who thought she could fly, and two sisters who speak to the dead — plus a few other, rather more surprising personalities...

Blue Hotel, Dann McDorman's follow-up to West Heart Kill, features his trademark mixture of plot twists and philosophical inquiry. It's a novel filled with bizarre facts and heretical histories, ranging from the origins of artificial intelligence to 19th century revolutionary politics in Canada. Blue Hotel's puzzle-like structure, in which each new section of the novel alters the reader's understanding of what came before, accompanies a deeply felt meditation on death, the nature of reality, and our reasons for being and non-being.

KING: A Life by Jonathan Eig (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, May 16, 2023). ms. available. See Eig's backlist on pg 68)

Martin Luther King Jr. was the courageous and brilliant leader of the American civil rights movement, but today many know nothing about him beyond four syllables: "I have a dream." When we turn heroes into superheroes, when we simplify the lives of great men and women in order to make their lessons easier to digest, we lose sight of their true greatness. We fail to honor them as real people with real accomplishments. Martin Luther King is fast approaching this predicament. The timing for a fresh look at his life could not be better, and the need for one is urgent: thousands of previously unseen documents have come to light, and many of King's friends, followers, and confidants are eager to talk. Those who can give firsthand accounts are nearing the point in their lives where, if they aren't heard soon, their stories will be lost for good.

In the thirty-six years since the last full biography of King was published, a plethora of new primary documents have become available, and our understanding of King the man has fundamentally changed. The new materials include the 102 interviews with King contemporaries conducted from 2010-2016 for the National Museum of African American History and Culture; more than 100 interview transcripts from the 1987 documentary EYES ON THE PRIZE; handwritten notes from James Baldwin; a 1964 interview with King himself taken by the poet and novelist Robert Penn Warren; as well as tens of thousands of newly released FBI documents.

Some of King's contemporaries, including Harry Belafonte and Andrew Young, have already given interviews for Jonathan Eig's book. Eig has been promised interviews with Rev. Jesse Jackson, Congressman John Lewis, and Diane Nash. This book will also incorporate recent research suggesting that King battled depression, drawing from thousands of newly archived personal correspondence, including letters from King to his first biographer, Lawrence Dunbar Reddick, in 1958. Jonathan Eig is the New York Times best-selling author of five critically acclaimed books. <http://jonathaneig.com>

YOU CAN MAKE THIS PLACE BEAUTIFUL: A Memoir by Maggie Smith (Atria/One Signal; April 4, 2023);

In her memoir You Could Make This Place Beautiful, poet Maggie Smith explores the disintegration of her marriage and her renewed commitment to herself in lyrical vignettes that shine, hard and clear as jewels. The book begins with one woman's personal, particular heartbreak, but its circles widen into a reckoning with contemporary womanhood, traditional gender roles, and the power dynamics that persist even in many progressive homes. With the spirit of self-inquiry and empathy she's known for, Smith interweaves snapshots of a life with meditations on secrets, anger, forgiveness, and narrative itself. The power of these pieces is cumulative: page after page, they build into a larger interrogation of family, work, and patriarchy.

You Could Make This Place Beautiful, like the work of Deborah Levy, Rachel Cusk, and Gina Frangello, is an unflinching look at what it means to live and write our own lives. It is a story about a mother's fierce and constant love for her children, and a woman's love and regard for herself. Above all, this memoir is an argument for possibility. With a poet's attention to language and an innovative approach to the genre, Smith reveals how, in the aftermath of loss, we can discover our power and make something new. Something beautiful.

THE CULTURE PLAYBOOK: 60 Highly Effective Actions to Help Your Group Succeed by Dan Coyle (PRH/Random House, May 2022); (Dan's backlist is on p. 75.)

What is great culture made of? How do you get more of it, or turn around a group that needs improving? In THE CULTURE PLAYBOOK, Daniel Coyle delivers a simple, clear, field-tested guide for building a strong, cohesive, high-performing group. Coyle, author of the New York Times bestselling The Culture Code, spent the last six years studying and consulting with some of the most successful groups on the planet — including IDEO, Pixar, the San Antonio Spurs, Navy SEALs Team 6, and others. Here, he distills his findings into 60 concise, actionable, scientifically proven tips for building safety, generating trust, and establishing purpose — plus a set of conversation-igniting exercises to help you assess and improve your current culture. The result is a book that will sharpen the skills of any leader and strengthen the cohesion of any team — because it demonstrates that great culture is not controlled by fate or luck; it's controlled by you. The book will have a bit more of a workbook feel — lots of questions for reflection, plus a short workshop at the end. We see people putting this thing to use.

Description TK

FOOLISH: Tales of Assimilation, Determination and Humiliation by Sarah Cooper (Dutton, delivery May 2023, publication October 2023) (See Sarah's backlist on p. 75)

As a Jamaican immigrant, Sarah believed the key to success was being as “American” as possible. So she became as American as possible, like any hard-working Jamaican would. She found a job at Google, got married, and planned to have kids, and forget her dreams. But luckily none of that worked out, which she celebrates in a piece for the book called, “Thank God for My Broken Uterus”.

Now, in her hilarious debut memoir, Sarah describes how assimilating made her feel lost but when she risked looking foolish, it led her to finding herself. From her brave 5th grade coming out story, “Mama? Papa? I Think I’m Black,” to her struggles with “The Immigrant to Basic Bitch Pipeline,” to how her life changed after playing the ultimate fool in those comical lip-synching videos of Donald Trump, Cooper’s first memoir shows you that sometimes, looking foolish is the smartest thing you can do.

Sarah Cooper is a comedian, author, and actress soon to be seen in Jerry Seinfeld’s upcoming Netflix comedy Unfrosted, co-starring Hugh Grant and Amy Schumer.

LET’S CATCH UP SOON: How I Won Friends and Influenced People Against My Will by Sarah Cooper (Audible Original; June 2022); *excludes audio.; foreign audio rights revert to author end of 2023.

A modern, comedic take on Dale Carnegie’s bestselling HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE, LET’S CATCH UP SOON is Sarah’s hilarious and heartfelt memoir about confronting your fears, truly loving yourself and forming deeper connections. With heart and vulnerability, Sarah turns her gift of observational humor on herself. Dale Carnegie cracked open a whole new way of interacting with the world: Sarah needed to learn how to be herself instead of being the person she thought everyone wanted her to be. Her whole life, Sarah treated people like they were transient and temporary. From childhood stories growing up as the youngest of four in a family of Jamaican immigrants, to working in the corporate world, to a marriage she was unhappy in, she digs deep into the roots of her fears and disconnection. Sarah learns to stop faking it, stop people-pleasing, stop living life as if she were on a stage. In doing so, she finds the secrets of connection. Sarah goes from “let’s catch up soon” (code for let’s catch up NEVER) to promising to stop letting people roll by in her life. In spite of Dale, she learned to smile and stay true to herself IRL even when growing closer with others.

TAKE THE LEAD: Hanging On, Letting Go, and Conquering Life's Hardest Climbs by Sasha DiGiulian (St. Martin's, September 26, 2023) [Translation only; excludes UK]; ms. available.

World champion climber Sasha DiGiulian tells her story—from coming of age under the scrutiny of social media, navigating a male-dominated sport, and tackling her most heart-stopping climbs—and shares the power of perseverance and positivity.

At age six, Sasha DiGiulian stepped into a climbing gym for the first time and was competing within a year. Decked out in all-pink gear and with her blonde hair tied into pigtails, Sasha knew from an early age what it was like to be a girl in a traditionally male-dominated sport, vowing to never sacrifice her femininity to fit in. With a fierce love for the climb and incredible natural talent, Sasha soon won her first National Sport Climbing Championship at only seventeen, and a year later took the title of World Champion.

To her fans, it looked like Sasha was on top of the world. But under the accolades, she was just another young woman learning how to handle the intense scrutiny of social media and dealing with body dysmorphia, all while quietly facing a potentially career-ending injury. In a relatable and inspiring voice, Take the Lead reflects on the highs and lows of Sasha’s illustrious life and career for the first time, bringing readers on her remarkable journey from novice climber to Columbia University graduate, adventurer, environmentalist, and entrepreneur, and one of the most recognizable faces in climbing.

For readers of Cheryl Strayed’s Wild and Megan Rapinoe’s One Life, Take the Lead ultimately emphasizes the power of perseverance, fearlessness and positivity in tackling some of the most daunting and fearsome climbs—on and off the wall.

THE SWORD AND THE SOPHOMORE by B.P. Sweany (Th3rd World Studios, delivery TBD) [Translation only; excludes UK]; ms. available.

The Sword and the Sophomore has the fantasy-as-metaphor vibe of Buffy the Vampire Slayer by way of The Mists of Avalon, in which a 16-year-old girl discovers she is the mystically “cursed” daughter of Guinevere and Lancelot, who have been banished to a 21st-century Maryland suburb as punishment for their affair.

TASTES LIKE SHAKKAR (Book 2 of The Shakespeare Aunty Trilogy) by Nisha Sharma (Avon, August 2023).

[Translation only; Excludes UK & Commonwealth.]

Bobbi Kaur is determined to plan a celebration to remember for her best friend's wedding. But she has two problems that are getting in her way:

1. The egotistical, and irritatingly sexy, chef Benjamin "Bunty" Padda is supposed to help her with the menu since he's the groom's best friend, and
2. Someone is trying to sabotage the wedding.

With aspirations of taking over her family's event planning business, Bobbi knows that one misstep in managing the Kareena Mann and Prem Verma (#Vermann) party, along with the other weddings on her plate, will only give her uncle another reason not to promote her. That means Kareena's big day and Bobbi's future career are on the line.

Bunty will do anything for his best friend, even though he has his hands full in finding a new location for his next restaurant while also playing mediator between his brother and father, the celebrated Naan King. When Prem asks Bunty to help with the wedding menu, he agrees, especially since it puts him in close proximity to the delicious Bobbi Kaur. When a mystery shaadi saboteur starts leaving threatening notes, and cancelling cake orders, Bunty and Bobbi have no choice but to call a truce and face the volatile attraction they have for each other.

Through masquerade fundraisers and a joint bachelor-bachelorette trip to Vegas, this chef and wedding planner explore their growing connection all while trying to plan a wedding at Messina Vineyards in a time crunch. But once the shaadi saboteur is caught and the wedding is over, will their love story have a happily ever after?

With the return of the meddling aunts (who are scary good at finding information) and a lot of hilarity and hijinks, Bobbi and Bunty's romance is an event you don't want to miss.

DATING DR. DIL (Book 1 of The Shakespeare Aunty Trilogy) by Nisha Sharma (Avon, January 2022). [Translation only; Excludes UK & Commonwealth.] (Previously titled IF SHAKESPEARE WAS AN AUNTY trilogy)

Nisha Sharma's hilarious new romantic comedy inspired by Taming of the Shrew features a love-phobic TV doctor who must convince a love-obsessed homebody they are destined to be together.

Kareena Mann prefers restoring her classic car to swiping right on dating apps. When her father announces he's selling her mother's home, Kareena makes a deal with him: he'll gift her the house if she can get engaged in four months. Now the only man in her life is the one she doesn't want. Dr. Prem Verma is dedicated to building a local community health center, but he needs to get donors with deep pockets. When Kareena's meddling aunts presented him with a solution: convince Kareena he's her soulmate and they'll fund his clinic. Even though they have conflicting views on love-matches and arranged-matches, the more time Prem spends with Kareena, the more he begins to believe she's the woman he wants to spend the rest of his life with. But for Prem and Kareena to find their happily ever after, they must admit that hate has turned into fate.

SHRED SISTERS by Betsy Lerner (Grove, 2024). ms. delivery summer 2023.

The Shred family is in denial. Olivia "Ollie" Shred has been out of control for a long time: stealing, disappearing, and leaving a trail of messes behind for her parents—and especially her younger sister—to clean up. Amy Shred lives in her big sister's shadow. She's a brilliant STEM student, dutiful to a fault, with a finely honed sense of the world's injustices: starting with her sister's enviable beauty, athletic prowess, and fearlessness. But the supposed perfection Amy sees in Ollie only masks a darker truth: she is driven by hypermania.

A reliable narrator to a fault, Amy believes in truth, rules, justice, and fairness. Unfortunately, the universe doesn't quite bend that way. Her unforgettable voice is funny, bittersweet, and desperate to figure out how others connect. She watches as her dream of a career in science flames out and every romantic relationship she attempts goes down in ash: from her first marriage to her affair with a married writer to her best friend taking his own life in rehab. If Ollie is larger than life, Amy feels smaller. And although it seems like they may never meet in the middle, something always brings them back.

Reminiscent of the first-person narrator in Salley Rooney's Conversations with Friends, Shred Sisters exemplifies the insecure protagonist in search of connection. The dysfunctional family is as enmeshed as Jonathan Tropper's This is Where I Leave You, and the sister knot at the center of the story taps into the ache of Brit Bennett's The Vanishing Half. Shred Sisters will leave the reader reevaluating their own families and taking stock of their truly meaningful relationships. As Lerner herself writes, "No one will love you more or hurt you more than a sister."

LIVING THE ARTIST’S WAY: An Intuitive Path to Creativity by Julia Cameron (St. Martin’s Essentials, January 2024); ms. available.

Living the Artist’s Way is a window into Julia’s life and her reliance on guidance at every juncture. It’s an invitation to use this tool to help navigate all areas of your life.

In previous books, Julia has written about the creative art of listening and prayer, and how we can be led through these practices and through our Morning Pages. In Living the Artist’s Way, Julia takes us one step further. We see how prayer sets the stage for guidance; how Morning Pages prime us for writing guidance. With guidance, we ask on the page and we receive answers on the page. Julia shows us how this practice has bolstered her life and art: Julia says “My guidance and art have become how I think...how I make sense of the world. I’m listening for guidance every step of the way.”

In Living the Artist’s Way, Julia reveals a personal, vulnerable side, writing about how she uses guidance to handle doubts in her life. Ultimately, she experiences faith. Indeed, writing guidance makes for a happier, lighter life. It’s reassuring; it grounds us and can quell our doubts, anxieties and fears. It leads to our inner wisdom and authentic selves.

WRITE FOR LIFE by Julia Cameron (St. Martin’s/Essentials, January 2023). (See Julia’s backlist on pg. 48 & 77)

A 6-week Artist’s Way program with practical lessons on the craft and spiritual practice of writing, encouraging writers to “set in motion a healthy sustainable process” that will guide them as they complete their projects. “Gentle, direct, helpful and inspiring”: In this gentle yet firm guide for writers, it’s Julia at her best, distilling decades of wisdom and experience in practical lessons on the craft and spiritual practice of writing.

WRITE FOR LIFE delivers a wonderful balance of firm and inspiring advice—honest and authentic, while being accessible in the 6 week program approach. Every writer needs this book—and I can see it in the pantheon of other classic books on writing (from Natalie Goldberg’s WRITING DOWN THE BONES, and Anne Lamott’s BIRD BY BIRD to Stephen King’s ON WRITING.)

FLOOR SAMPLE: A Creative Memoir by Julia Cameron (St. Martin’s/Essentials, August 2023); ms. available.

A memoir from the Queen of Change, Julia Cameron; originally published by TarcherPerigree in 2007

Julia Cameron has transformed the artistic lives of millions, showing them that creativity is their uniquely human birthright. But long before the tools of The Artist’s Way changed the conversation around creativity, Julia developed and used them in her own life.

Floor Sample is the story behind an artistic life—recounting Julia’s time in New York as a writer for Rolling Stone, her marriage to Martin Scorsese, and her painful struggle with alcohol, which ultimately led her to recovery and the methods that would form the backbone of The Artist’s Way.

The life Julia shares in her memoir is tempestuous, wandering restlessly across the country, falling in and out of love, wrestling with alcohol and mental health. Yet through all of it, always, her art is a fixed point and north star. Featuring a brand-new prologue from the author, Floor Sample is honest and unapologetic, a glimpse into the heart and mind behind The Artist’s Way.

ADULT BRACES: A Self-Help Book from a Self-in-Progress, or, How You Can Go from Being a Mess to Being a Way Happier Mess by Lindy West (Hachette Books; 2024): ms. delivery May 2023 (see Lindy's backlist on page 38)

Through Sbrill, the book and then the Hulu series, Lindy West became an inspiration. To this day she is stopped on the street and told she is a beacon of empowerment by women who felt they couldn't conform to the categories deemed acceptable—thin, straight, compliant—and felt bad about it. To them she modeled someone who had achieved self-actualization. But what if casting off society's pre-conceived notions was only the first part of the journey? What if all the progress that culminated in SHRILL—the actualized self—turned out not to be a destination but an overnight stay on the way to somewhere else even more fulfilling?

Modeled on the sturdy breed of self-esteem-builders like the Sinceros, Mansons, Hollises, and even The Artist's Way (which Lindy loves), Adult Braces: A Self-Help Book From A Self-In-Progress, Or, How I Went From Being A Mess To Being A Way Happier Mess uses Lindy's own, post-Sbrill emotional implosion to chart her way back to an evolving, non-static happiness and to the realization that the roads to self-actualization are infinite, unpredictable, and endlessly gratifying—and long as you don't pull over.

Adult Braces will provide exercises, thought experiments, and prescriptions that will help her reader map the fears that prevent her from becoming the attentive, active navigator of her own life. Lindy is channeling a combination of models (such as Julia Cameron, Jen Sincero, Mark Manson) to write the book that, like SHRILL, she herself would have wanted to have to help nourish her own self-awareness, confidence, and creative expression as a means of battling suffocating fear. She has absorbed those other books, but does it her way—not with the performative coarseness but with a newly joyful, typically hilarious, and fearless energy.

Adult Braces takes Lindy back to Sbrill yet leaps ahead to something entirely new. She is providing a guide out of indolence and fear. For her, as has been made quite public, it led to a complete reinvention of her marriage. It doesn't have to be precisely that for every reader, but that is the bold standard she sets. Whatever the particulars, she wants to help readers find what she has, a map to more love, more sex, more trust, more openness. And the courage to keep driving.

JUST LIKE YOUR MOTHER: A Memoir of Daughterhood, Addiction and Recovery by Ana Marie Cox (Random House/PRH, 2024) ms. delivery Dec. 2023

When Ana Marie Cox checked out of the Caron rehab facility in Pennsylvania—the same facility where her mother had been sent to dry out the year before—their paths diverged, finally and forever. Ana, an alcoholic, has been sober since she left Caron in March 2011. In April 2012, Shirley, her mother, died of complications due to cirrhosis of the liver.

JUST LIKE YOUR MOTHER is Mary Karr meets David Carr. Ana will write a personal and journalistic account of a mother and daughter's shared alcoholism—and how only one of them was able to make it out. Estranged from her mother's extended family, all the things Ana ever learned about Shirley's past came from Shirley. For this book, fully-mapped in this proposal, she will dive into either proving or debunking Shirley's Southern gothic origin story. We will also see Ana pushing through the pain of her own drinking career. An overachieving kid, Cox found herself reliving her mother's same self-defeating patterns as an adult, trying to find self-worth in perfectionism, in unhealthy relationships and, of course, in alcohol. Mother and daughter both spiraled into black-out drinking, psych ward visits, and broken marriages. But Ana grabbed onto the thin reed of recovery, resolve, and religion, in a way her mother couldn't. This book is about how alike they were—and tries to explain that one big difference.

WONDERWORLD: Mystery, Meaning, and the Quest for God by Rod Dreher (Sentinel/PRH; 2024). ms. end of 2023.
(See Rod's backlist on p. 34)

WONDERWORLD is as a manual for finding a specifically Christian magic in a material world bled of enchantment; it is a hopeful book. Weaving in his customary deep-dives into the literature of divinity, Dreher also brings in history, psychology, science, and, most poignantly, uses his personal searching as a guide for the reader.

The tale of how the West lost its “enchantment” – its belief in God, and that the material world is charged with meaning and purpose – is well known ... but what if it's not the end of the story? WONDERWORLD offers a Christian case for embracing enchantment as a flight into reality, tells real-life stories of miracles and wonder, and, drawing on the advice of scientists, artists, and mystic monks, shows readers how they can find meaning, purpose, and joy in a re-enchanted world.

In 2018, at the end of a speech Rod Dreher gave in Genoa, an artist gave him an engraving by his own hand. In broken English, the artist explained that he was in his studio that afternoon when the Holy Spirit told him that he should come hear Rod Dreher, and give him a particular drawing of an obscure medieval saint. None of this made sense to Dreher until two years later, lost in depression and confusion, the saint – a Tuscan hermit named Galgano – appeared in Dreher's life again under circumstances that did not at all seem coincidental, sending Dreher on a search for God's will for his life.

A lifetime of experiencing mystical events and collecting stories from others who have has solidified Dreher's Christian faith, and convinced him that God reveals himself to us all the time – but we in the modern West have lost our capacity to sense God's presence. How did this happen to us, but not to other peoples in the world? Can it be reversed? If so, how?

WONDERWORLD tells the story of how the West became “disenchanted,” and gives practical advice – based on history, cultural anthropology, and neuroscience, as well as the testimonies of monks of the ancient Church – on how to regain one's sense of wonder and awareness of the divine. WONDERWORLD is also filled with real-life stories of people who experienced miracles, visitations by saints and angels, and in some cases wrestled with demons. After you finish WONDERWORLD, you will realize that the material world is not all there is, and that God is not as silent and as elusive as you might think. You just need to learn how to see with clear eyes.

With his New York Times bestsellers THE BENEDICT OPTION and LIVE NOT BY LIES, Rod Dreher established himself as a leading voice among Christians public intellectuals addressing the survival of Christianity in a post-Christian age. In WONDERWORLD, he explores why contemporary Christianity seems so empty, and why so many young people are walking away from it. He hopes to convince them that the enchanted sacramental vision of the church of the first millennium is still true, only hidden, and that the experience of God is something that can happen to them – but they have to be willing to take risks.

THE BOOK OF PET LOVE & LOSS: Words of Comfort & Wisdom from Remarkable People by Sara Bader (Simon & Schuster, May 2023). ms. available. [UK rights only; excludes translation]

To many of us, the bond we have with our pets is unlike any other connection: deeply emotional and sacred. Pets are part of the family—they fill emotional roles with unconditional love, and when it's time for them to leave, the pain can be unbearable. Losing our companions and such a profound connection is devastating and disorienting; so many are unprepared by the depth of the sorrow and mourning when a beloved pet has died. THE BOOK OF PET LOVE & LOSS by Sara Bader is a poignant celebration of the intimate bond between humans and their animals. It is equal parts salve and guide, a heartfelt, comforting collection of quotations from those who have loved and lost an animal. This treasury of quotes will help the reader process the loss of a pet, through the stages of grief, from celebration of the bond to the last words of farewell. Readers will be comforted to discover that many of the world's finest writers, musicians, actors, philosophers, politicians and other luminaries have struggled to pick up the pieces after losing a close animal companion—from Emily Dickinson to Mary Oliver, Lord Byron to Oprah Winfrey, Charles Dickens to Anne Lamott. The collection articulates and dignifies the profound connection we share with our faithful friends, providing solace when we need it most; this book will offer profound, intimate words that can help us during the grieving process.

TIRED AS F*CK: Burnout at the hands of diet culture, self-help culture, and hustle culture, and why rest is the cure by Caroline Dooner (Previously titled TWO YEARS OF REST). (HarperWave, Feb 2022);

*Blending memoir and blistering social observations, the author of The F*ck It Diet looks back at her desperate attempts to heal her hunger, anxiety, and imperfections through extreme diets, culty self-help methods, and melodramatic bargains with the universe.*

Offering a frank and funny critique of the cultural forces that are driving us mad, Caroline Dooner examines how treating ourselves like never ending self-improvement projects is a recipe for burnout. We have become unknowingly complicit in perpetuating our own exhaustion because we are treating ourselves like machines. But even phones need to f*cking recharge.

*Tired As F*ck* will examine how our culture exhausts us. Caroline will look at years of desperate attempts to heal her health problems, undiagnosed anxiety, an eating disorder and dental trauma through extreme methods and through bargains with God. She takes a good hard look at the dark side of self-help, and explains how she eventually used a radical period of rest to push back against cultural expectations and reclaim some peace. *Tired As F*ck* empowers us to say no to the things that exhaust us. It inspires us to carve out time to slow down, feel okay about doing less, and honor our humanity.

This is not a self-help book, it's a cautionary tale. It's an honest look at the dogma of wellness and spiritual self-improvement culture and revels in the healing power of rest and letting shit go.

THE F*CK IT DIET: Eating Should Be Easy by Caroline Dooner (HarperWave, March 2019).

THE F*CK IT DIET is the anti-diet bible, a game-changer in the way we view dieting, weight and health. A comprehensive program for chronic dieters, this funny, edgy sourcebook teaches why—and how—to escape the plague of diet culture and regain the personal power we've lost to shitty beliefs about food, weight and worth.

When we diet and restrict, we put our bodies through a famine state, biologically in survival mode and fixated on food; our metabolism slows and our minds become obsessed with finding our next meal. By allowing foods and healing our metabolisms, by trusting ourselves and facing our fears, THE F*CK IT DIET gives the body what it needs. Designed for anyone who feels guilt or pain over eating, weight, or body image, THE F*CK IT DIET teaches readers to become easy and normal with food and their relationship to their body. THE F*CK IT DIET is the only diet that works because it tackles two things at once: the biological reality that dieting triggers a famine response in the body, and the mental, emotional and cultural reasons that we become obsessed with food in the first place.

THE F*CK IT DIET is a movement and can break millions of people free from the destructive cycle of dieting and self-hatred. As Caroline says: “In this brave new world, your hunger is your friend, so fucking eat.”

THE PORTFOLIO LIFE: Embrace Change, Future-Proof Your Career, and Craft a Life Worthy of You by Christina Wallace (Grand Central, April 2023)

While the frameworks and tools that our parents and professors have given us over the years for crafting our careers, building financial stability, and creating family and community are well-intentioned, they aren't particularly applicable to the professional and personal challenges we now face. To survive and thrive amidst these waves of change we need a new playbook for success. Enter THE PORTFOLIO LIFE.

Roughly, it acknowledges that you shouldn't put all of your eggs in one basket, but rather craft a mix of opportunities that together address your need. And that your needs will change and when that happens, you should adjust the mix. A portfolio life is built on the same ideas: you need more than any one opportunity can offer; diversification can help you navigate change and mitigate uncertainty; and when your needs change you can always rebalance your portfolio.

A self-described "human Venn diagram" Christina Wallace has crafted a career at the intersection of business, technology, and the arts. She is a Senior Lecturer at Harvard Business School and is the co-host of The Limit Does Not Exist, a podcast on the iHeartRadio network focused on crafting custom careers. A creative non-fiction and business writer, Christina co-authored New To Big: How Companies Can Create Like Entrepreneurs, Invest Like VCs, and Install a Permanent Operating System for Growth (April 2019, Crown).

BEFORE IT'S GONE by Jonathan Vigliotti (One Signal, Fall 2025); proposal available; ms. January 2024. [Translation only; Excludes UK & Commonwealth]

BEFORE IT'S GONE is an urgent, necessary look at climate change in the United States and how the effects of the warming planet will continue to impact the nation. As a national news correspondent, Vigliotti will be on the front lines of this crisis, engaging with the people that are impacted by these extreme weather events, and calling widespread attention to this issue with his substantial platform. Combining the straightforward research of DRAWDOWN with the travelogue approach of UNINHABITABLE EARTH and the call to action of FIELD NOTES FROM A CATASTROPHE, BEFORE IT'S GONE provides an up-close account of where we're at and where we're heading as a nation in the midst of a climate crisis. Jonathan Vigliotti is a CBS News correspondent based in Los Angeles where he covers extreme weather, climate change and other breaking news. He previously served as a foreign correspondent for the network's London bureau. His work appears across all CBS News broadcasts and platforms including the "CBS Evening News with Norah O'Donnell," "CBS This Morning," "Sunday Morning," "Face the Nation" and "48 Hours." Vigliotti's reporting has taken him to more than three dozen countries and territories across six continents. Prior to CBS, he has worked for WNBC-TV in New York City, Current TV, the New York Times Travel, Business, and Sports sections, WPLG-TV in Miami and KJCT-TV in Colorado. In his reporting career, Vigliotti has won the Edward R. Murrow award and one national and six regional Emmy awards.

GOOD GIRLS (previously titled HELLFIRE) by Leesa Gazi and translated by Shabnam Nadiya (Amazon Crossing; December 2023); ms. available.

A stunning literary novel of thrilling suspense by writer and filmmaker Gazi, and translated by Iowa Writers' Workshop graduate Nadiya.

For sisters Lovely and Beauty, home is a prison under the toxic watch of their controlling, abusive mother, Farida Khanam. The girls are each locked in their own rooms, their own gilded cages, and have never been allowed to leave the house by themselves. Good Girls opens and it's Lovely's 40th birthday, the day Farida will give Lovely the freedom to go to the Gausia Market alone. "Today was the day for everyone to be what they weren't, or perhaps be what they were." With a tragic foreboding, we know today is the day that will change everything.

Taking place over the span of a single day, Good Girls unfolds in page-turning slow-motion, as Lovely interacts with the outside world, as the secrets of their lives in captivity emerge, and as she battles the man inside her head. With masterful precision and lyrical prose, Gazi and Nadiya grab us from the opening pages with a sinister premise: what does a 40-year-old woman who has never been granted freedom for a few hours do? Farida's tautly constructed world begins to unravel as temptations, demons and the past come to haunt each of them. Good Girls explores the emotional violence of the matriarchy as well as the patriarchy's suffocating effort to keep women within four walls. Lovely and Beauty show us the cost of freedom.

Good Girls was originally published in Bengali in 2010 by Sucheepatra Publishers, under the title Hellfire. It was published in English in India by Eka/Westland Books (Sept 2020) and was shortlisted for the Kâpylä Translation Prize. Listed by Words Without Borders as One of the Best Translated Books of 2020.

Good Girls was included in The Guardian's list of 20 classic books by writers of color.

BEYOND THE SHORES: A History of African Americans Going and (Sometimes) Returning Home from Abroad By Tamara Walker (formerly titled THE GLOBAL GREEN BOOK) (Crown, June 2023).

Dr. Tamara Walker, Assistant Professor of History at the University of Toronto and founder of The Wandering Scholar, traces the long history of African Americans traveling and living abroad, offering a lens what it means to be black within a global context. Beyond the Shores will follow the exploits of well-known personages, such as Josephine Baker, Langston Hughes, James Baldwin, and those “hidden figures” who had an enormous influence on black travel.

Dr. Walker’s research has received support from the Ford Foundation, the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, and the Fulbright Scholars Program, among others. In 2017, Dr. Walker published her first book, Exquisite Slaves: Race, Clothing and Status in Colonial Lima (Cambridge University Press), which won the 2018 Harriet Tubman Prize awarded by the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture.

COUGARS ON THE CLIFF: One Man’s Pioneering Quest to Understand the Mythical Mountain Lion by Maurice Hornecker with David Johnson (Lyons Press, July 2023): ms available.

Believed to be indiscriminate killers, few creatures on this planet elicit the level of fear and fascination that the cougar does. For decades, they have been hunted for trophy, thrill, and bounty. In 1964, noted wildlife biologist and photographer Maurice Hornecker traveled deep into the Idaho Primitive Region to do what had never been attempted before: understand one of America’s most misunderstood animals, the mountain lion.

COUGARS ON THE CLIFF is an intimate memoir by the world’s foremost mountain lion expert, in which he recounts his first and controversial decade-long study on cougars in central Idaho. His groundbreaking research established the cougar’s importance in the ecosystem and spurred a range of conservation and image rehabilitation efforts for cougars within the American zeitgeist. Hornecker weaves stories of cougar tracking, avalanches, snowy isolation, and deep insights on the rhythms of the Idaho wilderness along with his account of going head-to-head with hunting rights activists. As his research progresses and he grows closer to the elusive mountain lion, Hornecker chronicles the deep bond of mutual understanding that forms between him and his almost equally enigmatic research partner, Wilbur, and between him and this mighty cat.

Maurice Hornecker, PhD, is a wildlife biologist and founder of the Hornecker Wildlife Institute in 1985 and the Selway Institute in 2005.

A wildlife expert’s warmly told story that combines the best of science writing, travel writing, and memoir, COUGARS ON THE CLIFF will appeal to readers of the nature classics THE SNOW LEOPARD by Peter Matthiessen and OF WOLVES AND MEN by Barry Lopez.

PEOPLE NOT THINGS: Love Poems and Paintings for Humanity by Genesis Be (Andrews McMeel, November 2023) ms. available [Translation only; excludes UK]

In People Not Things: Love Poems for Humanity, Genesis Be offers a strikingly honest yet hopeful snapshot of her journey as a queer Black woman in America fighting for the humanity of her community. Poignant and moving, this debut collection of poetry from Genesis Be bravely examines what it means to stay hopeful on the arduous journey to freedom. Drawing on her activism and antiracist work as covered by the New York Times and VICE, Be examines tools of division and challenges our notion of freedom in an effort to combat racism, sexism, homophobia, and transphobia. Equal parts delicate and unapologetic, People Not Things is a powerful debut that will speak to the hearts of readers from all walks of life. She is the subject of the documentary Mississippi Turning (unreleased) and continues the fight to improve race relations in her home state Mississippi. THE ENLIGHTENMENT CAMPAIGN: Fear, Propaganda and the True Story of the Nazi Plot to Steal the American Presidency by John Klima (Pantheon/PRH, 2023/2024); ms. available fall 2023. [Excludes UK; translation only]

The year: 1940. Joseph Goebbels, desperate for a favorable outcome to the US presidential election, deployed every media tool at his disposal. THE ENLIGHTENMENT CAMPAIGN: Fear, Propaganda and the True Story of the Nazi Plot to Steal the American Presidency, is the first book to prominently feature captured and declassified Nazi communiqués sent from Washington, D.C., to Berlin that show how the Nazis attempted to contaminate the American political system by meddling in the 1940 election. The protagonist: one of the farthest-reaching voices in American media of the time—the largely forgotten dynamo Dorothy Thompson. The first woman journalist to interview Hitler, in 1931, she came back from the experience aghast, and spent the next decade—the period of this book—sounding the alarm of the creeping threat of fascism coming to America. Through her syndicated columns and her regular radio addresses, her audience numbered 13 million. She was the first woman journalist to make the cover of TIME Magazine. Since her interview with Hitler—and drawing on her decades in Europe as a foreign correspondent—she saw the way insidious propaganda and the stoking of xenophobia could drive an economically vulnerable democracy into the arms of an anti-democratic despot.

In a fast-paced, informative, and reverberating narrative, John Klima recounts this battle for the hearts and minds of the American people.

PROFILES IN COURAGE by Patrick Kennedy and Stephen Fried (Dutton, Spring 2024) ms delivery June 2023 [Translation only; excludes UK]

America has never been more able to diagnose and treat mental illness and addiction: we have more useful medicines and psychotherapies, more useful devices, and more strategies for inpatient, part-day and outpatient care than ever before. Yet it is achingly clear that we have never felt less mentally healthy, as individuals, as families, as communities. Overdose rates have never been higher; rates of suicidal thoughts and actual completed suicides are rising even in groups where they were once considered insignificant. Some of this has been triggered by the unpredictable challenges of the global pandemic and its unique pressures on children, parents, grandparents, caregivers, and caregiving systems. But, in many cases, it has taken the pandemic to call new attention to more timeless issues: the resounding silence that can surround these illnesses, the isolation, the fear of exposure, and the fear of prejudice after exposure.

Over the years, Patrick J. Kennedy has learned both the power and risk of being open about mental health and the struggles of mental illness. Profiles In Courage was inspired by the many landmark events of 2020 and 2021, leading Kennedy and co-author Stephen Fried to interview a number of high-profile athletes, experts, and leaders across fields about their individual experiences with mental illness and treatment. The book uses these interviews to provide an open discussion about the mental health landscape, starting a necessary conversation about an issue that impacts us all. And our authors don't just focus on "recovered" people with mental illnesses—they speak to a range of people on various steps in their personal journeys, giving a well-rounded and realistic view of what mental illness can look like at different points to different people. The result is a book that will disrupt the status quo of which stories we share in regards to mental illness, making sure a plethora of voices are heard, and representing the mental illness community realistically in order to strip the stigma of shame and rejection.

THE BEAUTIFUL SOUTH by John T. Edge (Clarkson Potter, Spring 2024), ms fall 2023. (formerly titled LIGHT THROUGH DISTANT WINDOWS)

Food writer and founder of the Southern Foodways Alliance and Center for the Study of Southern Culture in Oxford in Mississippi, John T Edge returns to his roots to grapple with racism, restaurants, and the South he grew up in. Reading restaurants like texts, he brings a new perspective to the racial divisions of the food world in his hometown.

THE MURDER FARM by Earl Swift (HC, Summer 2024) ms. available [Translation only; excludes UK]

Earl Swift tells the forgotten story of the mass killing of African-American farmhands on a rural plantation in the spring of 1921, a crime that earned weeks of front-page coverage nationwide and threw light on the continued existence of quasi-slavery in Georgia and much of the American South. The killer? John S. Williams, a successful white plantation owner who was among the richest men in neighboring Jasper County, along with his Black foreman, Clyde Manning. Together,

Williams and Manning killed a total of 11 Black men in order to cover up Williams's use of indentured servants, known as peons, despite its federal abolition in 1917.

The Murder Farm details these “murder farm” killings, the fight to bring justice to the murderers, and the aftermath of the trials and convictions, including the story of an unlikely ally in the fight for justice: then-Governor of Georgia, Hugh M. Dorsey. The book explores what spurred John Williams to mass murder as well as what may have contributed to Governor Dorsey's reform from notorious racist and antisemite to an active fighter against the KKK, lynching, and economic crimes against Black people. The “murder farm” case, as it was known at the time, makes for a compelling tale that remains fresh and relevant a century later, as America continues to face seemingly intractable challenges in matters of race and justice. It may resonate now more than at any point in the last several decades, in fact: In the wake of George Floyd's murder, Brionna Taylor's death, and a succession of other recent incidents in which Blacks have died at the hands of whites in authority, the 1921 case demonstrates that the forces that so roil society today have been with us for generations. Though a century old, this is a modern tale, one that addresses the racism bolted deep inside the machinery of American justice.

DBNY by Daniel Boulud and Andrew Friedman (Grand Central, Fall 2024); ms delivery May 2023 .

Chef Daniel Boulud's career to date has spanned four decades, more than a dozen restaurants worldwide, and the mentorship of countless chefs, many of whom have become household names in their own right. THE PROGRESSIVE by Stephen Fried (Hachette, Spring 2025) ms. delivery January 2024

On February 25, 1908, William Gibbs McAdoo became the most famous person in New York City. The tall, engaging, handsome, 45-year-old transplanted southern lawyer debuted his stunning infrastructure masterpiece—an underwater train system between Manhattan and New Jersey, running through the first tunnels ever dug under the Hudson River. “New York is no longer an island,” the newspapers declared, after President Theodore Roosevelt pushed the button that started the first train. And “Mac”—who had overseen the multimillion-dollar fundraising and the daredevil engineering--was both an overnight hero, and a man of mystery. “Who is William G. McAdoo?” the New York World asked. “Five years ago not one man in every thousand in New York could tell you. Today everyone knows his name, but few know him.”

In The Progressive, award-winning journalist Stephen Fried explores the greatest political story that's never been told: the endlessly surprising saga of William Gibbs McAdoo, a man who shaped world politics as much as any president—but later failed in spectacular fashion, twice, to win the White House himself. McAdoo was considered the second coming of Alexander Hamilton: He was Woodrow Wilson's campaign manager, then his Secretary of the Treasury, started the Federal Reserve Bank, and saved the U.S. economy from monetary catastrophe at the start of WWI by closing the Stock Exchange for four months. When America joined the war, he signed what was then history's largest check to bail out Britain, and raised the entire $7 billion needed to finance the war through the implementation of Liberty Loans. In this fascinating biography, Stephen Fried details McAdoo's 30-year career in the Democratic Party, and one of the greatest forces in the Democratic Party of his generation.

STRANGERS IN THE LAND: The Purging of Chinese from America by Michael Luo (Doubleday, Summer 2025), ms delivery September 2024

In STRANGERS IN THE LAND, New Yorker journalist Michael Luo proposes to write a narrative history of a forgotten chapter in American history, when Chinese immigrants flocked the United States but were ultimately driven out of communities up and down the West Coast. America, in the middle of the 19th century, was engaged in an epic struggle over race. Largely forgotten in this defining period of American history, however, is the virulent racism Chinese immigrants endured on the other side of the country. The story of the Chinese in America—the first Asian Americans—spans the California gold rush, the construction of the transcontinental railroad, the enactment of the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882, the law's repeal in the 1940s, and ultimately the liberalization of America's immigration laws in 1965. Luo will trace the history of a people violently rebuffed at nearly every turn and their determination to resist.

Michael's 2016 New York Times piece "An Open Letter to the Woman Who Told My Family to Go Back to China" was read by over a million people. And a subsequent video generated 27 million views on Facebook alone.

MISSION ROAD by Jeff Hobbs (Scribner, Fall 2025) ms delivery June 2024

In Mission Road, Jeff Hobbs focuses on the efforts of a single mother to keep her children together and procure a basic education for them across nearly two shelterless years. The groundbreaking book jointly captures the layers of systemic failings and economic tides over a period of fifty-plus years that have led to the current landscape of endemic homelessness in America's second most populous city, Los Angeles. By weaving together a national crisis with a deeply personal narrative, Hobbs creates a connection of personal empathy between the reader and the roughly 750,000 Americans who experience homelessness in the span of a given year. Very few have the opportunity to see people who are homeless through any normative lens: mothers who work, kids who go to school, families with social lives and aspirations and societal competence. And yet, materially and psychologically, they are without anchor. MISSION ROAD highlights this particular population, estimated to number around 15,000 in Los Angeles County at present.

The title Mission Road comes from the street in Monterey Park (a working class neighborhood a few miles east of downtown LA) where the Romero family would park their car during the nights when they slept in the vehicle because the welfare system could not provide a shelter room. Jeff has spent about six months immersed in the work of the Los Angeles Housing Services Authority in city hall, the Union Rescue Mission in the center of Skid Row, the LAUSD homeless support division, School on Wheels, and many other branches of the city government and non-profit sector devoted to supporting people. He's spent time in medical treatment facilities, mobile medic vans, pop-up housing shelters, safe parking lots, long term shelters for women and children, and on certain streets where people live houseless for years. He's deep-dived into the history and is well versed in various theories regarding causation and attempts at resolution of houselessness. But Jeff wants to tell this story from the ground—with Janet Romero, her kids, and the hundreds of nights they spent sleeping on Mission Road.

It is a truth universally acknowledged that most US Senators in possession of a seat see it as a stepping stone to a possible presidential run. But even as a young man interning in Washington in the 1960s, Senator Mitch McConnell kept his eyes trained on a different prize. Now called the "most strategic politician alive" (though also the "most cynical," depending on who you talk to), his goal was always to influence policy, and thereby the daily lives of Americans, as Senate Majority Leader.

In The Price Of Power, veteran journalist Michael Tackett is the first researcher granted access to McConnell's archives, including a hitherto unknown 25-year oral history he's kept of his own career. In these thousands of pages of writings—letters, cards, speeches, medical records, and private journals—Tackett found an intensely calculated man who led and recorded a life with the intention of it being studied, an uncanny echo of the efforts put forth by the founding fathers to preserve their legacies. The book charts Senator Mitch McConnell's careful and calculated rise to power during a period that has Americans at war with one another. It also tells the story of the evolution of the Republican party under McConnell, and the resultant toxic polarity that has made it impossible for there to be a consensus on anything—from ideology to facts themselves. Regardless of where one resides on the political spectrum, it must be conceded that by almost any measure, Mitch McConnell is the most impactful Senate leader since Lyndon B. Johnson, the most consequential conservative since Ronald Reagan, and we are sure to see the ripples of his reign for many years to come.

UNTITLED MEMOIR / EATING IN CHINATOWN by Francis Lam (Penguin Press, Spring 2026) ms delivery April 2025

Every Asian American Francis Lam knows has a stinky lunch story. Most of them laugh about them now, assured in how wrong the kids in their schools, the coworkers in the break room, the neighbors knocking on their doors, were in giving them a hard time about the same stuff they scroll food blogs for now. But when Francis had her own stinky lunch experience, she didn't think the man was being rude or offensive. She was ashamed that her lunch offended him. She was ashamed of being Chinese in his presence. Francis isn't sure where this shameful feeling began. What she does know is that before and after her stinky lunch story, there were many other "stinky lunch moments"--moments where she was made to feel like her Chinese heritage was something to hide, to stuff deep inside until it all but disappeared.

In Eating In Chinatown, Francis Lam explores how exactly she learned through white society to feel ashamed of her Chinese identity. And within that, she explores the complexity of that experience--how at home she felt growing up going to work with her parents in Chinatown, how much she loved watching Hong Kong dramas growing up, how fun it was to buy fireworks in swaths of cloth on the sidewalk. The book is not only a memoir, however, but also an exploration of the common experiences of many Chinese Americans. She explores the stories of the people of Chinatown as well as the culinary universe of her community, looking to reclaim the parts of her identity that she was forced to hide in order to fit in with the white social constructs that surrounded her. And as she claws her way back to her authentic self, she takes us with her.

FORGETTING MARIA by Jeanna Smialek (Knopf, 2026) ms. delivery 2025

Maria Edgeworth was a pioneering Irish writer who out-earned Jane Austen in their day and who inspired a generation of great novelists—but more than that, she was arguably the world's first female economist. Her contributions were ignored because of her gender and because she expressed her findings in literature and letters rather than math and textbooks. Forgetting Maria will rectify that oversight, and in telling Maria's extraordinary story it will retell the origin story of economics as you have never heard it before: a tale that includes women.

Maria Edgeworth took the highly philosophical ideas recently developed by Adam Smith, Jeremy Bentham, and others, applying them to real-world problems she saw around her estate in Ireland. Her books are explorations of the politics of rent and the divisions of social class, and her letters show that she was heavily influenced by economic ideas as she contemplated the world around her, consciously incorporating utilitarian and laissez-faire principles into her literature. And through her correspondence and conversation, she at least helped to inform—and may have meaningfully shaped—the thinking of Ricardo, Malthus' successor Richard Jones, and other men who are recognized as instrumental in helping to formulate classical and later neoclassical economics. Forgetting Maria will reopen the story of how the world-shaping social science of modern economics came to be, giving it an update that is more than two centuries in the making.

LAVENDER HOUSE: Book 1 in the Evander Mills Series by Lev A.C. Rosen, Forge/Macmillan (October 18, 2022).

When you're a cop in 1952 and your colleagues bust you in a raid on a gay bar, your career options become extremely limited. Former San Francisco Police Inspector Evander Mills has decided on his own version of retirement: drink until his money is gone, and pitch himself into the bay to finish up.

But then Pearl sits down next to him and offers him a private gig – she's a widow, and she wants some answers about what happened. She's the perfectly polished sort of mourner that's always pinged him as a suspect, except for two things. Those widows don't tend to know where to find disgraced gay cops. And those widows aren't mourning their wife.

Persuaded to take the case, Mills accompanies Pearl to Lavender House, the family seat of Irene Lamontaine. After her husband's death, Irene took over the Lamontaine Soap empire, and took Pearl as her secret partner. Their ambitious son Henry is married to keep the family fortune respectable, though he seems to resent having taken his late mother's advice. Henry's boyfriend Cliff, a former dancer, lives in the house as his "social secretary" and takes his fun where he can get it. Henry's wife Margo understands her public role in preserving the family's legacy – though her girlfriend, nightclub owner Elsie Gold, might not. Margo's mother Alice certainly doesn't; she knows she's a charity case, and those don't make for happy house guests. (And Evander hasn't even met the butler yet.)

For a gay man half-dead just from loneliness, Lavender House is bewitching. But Evander immediately finds himself a pawn in a family game of old money, subterfuge, and jealousy – and Irene's death was only the beginning. The gates of Lavender House can't lock out the real world, and not even a soap empire can keep everyone clean. Seedy and delicious, Lavender House is Knives Out with a queer historical twist.

THE BELL IN THE FOG: Book 2 in the Evander Mills Series by Lev A.C. Rosen (Forge/Macmillan, October 10, 2023); ms. available.

San Francisco, 1952. Detective Evander “Andy” Mills has started a new life for himself as a private detective—but his business hasn't exactly taken off. It turns out that word spreads fast when you have a bad reputation, and no one in the queer community trusts him enough to ask an ex-cop for help.

When James, an old flame from the war who had mysteriously disappeared, arrives in his offices above the Ruby, Andy wants to kick him out. But the job seems to be a simple case of blackmail, and Andy's debts are piling up. He agrees to investigate, despite everything it stirs up.

The case will take him back to the shadowy, closeted world of the Navy, and then out into the gay bars of the city, where the past rises up to meet him, like the swell of the ocean under a warship. Missing people, violent strangers, and scandalous photos that could destroy lives are a whirlpool around him, and Andy better make sense of it all before someone pulls him under for good.

LION'S LEGACY by Lev Rosen (Union Square Press, May 2, 2023) [Translation only; excludes UK]

A queer YA take on classics like Indiana Jones and the National Treasure movies (not to mention the forthcoming National Treasure TV series), by way of a more mature Percy Jackson, L.C. Rosen's Lion's Legacy is filled with adventure, romance and drama while also exploring queer history, and why it's always vanishing.

Seventeen-year-old Tennessee Russo's life is imploding. When his father, whom he hasn't seen in two years, shows up unexpectedly and offers to take him on an adventure, he doesn't want to say no, despite their complex history. They're searching for rings of the Sacred Band of Thebes, an Ancient Greek army composed of one-hundred-fifty gay couples united in a ceremony at the temple of Iolau.

On a quest consisting of traps, puzzles, and a para-military organization, also looking for the rings, the core of the story is the reconciliation between Will Tennessee's dad let him do the right things with the Bands if they find them? And what is the right thing? Who does queer history belong to?

I KNOW WHERE YOU LIVE by Gregg Olsen (Thomas & Mercer, Nov. 15, 2022). (See Gregg's backlist on pg. 20 & 51)

Revenge, justice, or closure? Family crimes can't be hidden forever in this provocative novel of suspense by #1 New York Times bestselling author Gregg Olsen.

Violet knows that time is a futile healer. When she thinks of her happily married grandfather—a predator lovingly referred to as Papa—the feelings of rage and betrayal still swell. Her younger sister, Lily, just discovered the numbing truth about him. Their mother, Rose? She can't believe it. Not Papa. Leave it alone, Violet. Focus on the now.

When Papa suffers a sudden, and suspicious, fatal heart attack at Violet's wedding, she can barely conceal her joy. Maybe the fellow survivor at her support group is right: moving on is possible only when monsters are removed from society permanently. Violet is focusing on the now. Even if doing so calls for extremes.

For herself, and for the sake of other victims like her, Violet is reclaiming the power stolen from her as a child. Predator by predator, she's coming for them. It's intoxicating. It's liberating. But the secrets she now keeps, and the lies she must tell, come with a price.

BRIDES OF ROME by Debra Macleod (Blackstone Publishing; Oct 2020)

Book 1 in The Vesta Shadows Trilogy <https://debramaymacleod.com/>

Link to download the final pdf: <https://we.tl/t-nuAv1POsJt>

Their world was one of power and privilege. It was a world of war, secrets and sacred duty. It was the world of ancient Rome – and unless you know the story of the Vestal Virgins, you don't know the story of Rome at all. In The Vesta Shadows trilogy (Brides of Rome, To Be Wolves, Empire of Iron), Debra May Macleod dramatizes – for the first time – the brilliant, sometimes brutal role of the Vestal Virgins, all while immersing the reader in fast-paced, emotional storylines that blaze through the most captivating events in history, from the assassination of Julius Caesar and the Plague to the bedroom politics of Rome's elite and the desperate struggles of its slaves.

If George R. R. Martin, Robert Harris and Phillipa Gregory sat in a room for a year to write about the Vestal Virgins and ancient Rome, this is the book series they'd create. Dramatic rights have already been optioned, a pilot script – called Vestals – has been created, and the project is currently being considered by The History Channel.

They were The Brides of Rome: the esteemed Vestal Virgins, priestesses of Vesta, who protected the Eternal Flame that protected the Eternal City. Dedicated to a thirty-year vow of chaste service, Priestess Pomponia finds herself swept up in the intrigue and violence of Rome's powerful: Julius Caesar, Antony and Cleopatra, Octavian and his maneuvering wife Livia, all while guarding the secret affection she has in her heart. But when a charge of incestum – a broken vow of chastity – is made against the Vestal order, the ultimate punishment looms: being “buried alive” in the Evil Field. (Note: Can work as a standalone novel – completed manuscript, approx. 87, 000 words.)

Debra May Macleod has a Bachelor of Arts degree (English, Classics) as well as a Law degree. She is an authority on the Vesta tradition and serves as an expert resource for the media. She has spoken about Vesta on television and radio, online (i.e. The Huffington Post, Vox) and her work with the Flamma Vesta has been featured in Watkins Mind Body Spirit Magazine's “Most Spiritually Influential” edition.

TO BE WOLVES by Debra Macleod (Blackstone Publishing; Oct 26, 2021).

Book 2 in The Vesta Shadows Trilogy

In To Be Wolves, the second book in The Vesta Shadows series, all of Rome lives in fear of the contagion that is striking down strong and weak, rich and poor. Against this backdrop, Priestess Pomponia struggles to control the obsession the young Vestal Quintina has for a forbidden love. Most dangerous of all, she faces a threat from a ruthless man seeking vengeance for what may have been Pomponia's fatal mistake in judgment as Vestalis Maxima. In this sequel to Brides of Rome, the lives of Rome's ruling elite clash with Rome's powerless – the slave charioteer Scopus the Titan and the famous “Apollo's Pair” – to create a page-turning drama that once again brings the world of Ancient Rome to life in all its violent spectacle and gilded brilliance.)

EMPIRE OF IRON by Debra Macleod (Blackstone Publishing; March 2022). Ms. available June 2021.

Book 3 in The Vesta Shadows Trilogy

In Empire of Iron, the third and climactic novel in The Vesta Shadows trilogy, Priestess Pomponia must navigate the sexual deviances and self-serving politics of Tiberius – the man who will succeed Augustus as Caesar – to ensure the Vestal order maintains its power and privilege, even as she grooms Quintina to succeed her. All the while, she lives in near crippling fear of the frightening Soren's vengeance; however, she conspires with Scopus the Titan to exact their own vengeance. While she struggles with these personal threats, Pomponia helps Caesar Augustus uncover a dramatic assassination plot against his life, one that results in the creation of the politically-influential Praetorian guard, an order that Pomponia realizes the Vestal order must intimately align itself with.

THE STRANGER INSIDE by Laura Benedict (Little Brown/Mulholland, Feb 2019; paperback Feb 2020)

What if you came home to find a stranger living in your house? A chilling, suspenseful psychological drama in the tradition of Shari Lapena and Liane Moriarty, by the Edgar and ITW Thriller Award nominated author Laura Benedict.

One hot August night, Kimber Hannon returns from a trip to find the locks on her house changed, and a stranger living inside. When the police arrive, a man calling himself Lance Wilson produces a lease with Kimber's signature on it. Incensed, she impulsively attacks him, and as they grapple, he whispers something to her, something no one else knows. Shocked, she retreats. To her lawyer and friends, Kimber maintains that she knows nothing about the stranger, though privately she suspects he must be someone from her past. Someone who knew her before her sister's death, twenty-five years earlier, a death she was secretly responsible for. Why are all these things happening to her? And why now? In order to return peacefully to the home she loves, Kimber will have to reconcile her losses, and learn to forgive herself.

OPPO: A Novel by Tom Rosenstiel (Ecco/HarperCollins, December 2019).

A breathless and highly charged political thriller: the story of a senator who is offered the vice presidential slot by both parties' presidential nominees and then gets ominous threats

It's presidential primary season in Washington, DC, and both parties are on edge. At campaign rallies for all the candidates around the country, there are disturbing incidents of violence and protest and shocking acts of civil disobedience. Rena and Brooks are happy to sit it out.

Against this backdrop, Wendy Upton, the highly respected centrist senator, must make a choice: she's been offered the VP slot by both parties' leading candidates. When she receives an anonymous, unnerving threat that could destroy her promising career, she hires Peter Rena to investigate her past and figure out which side is threatening her and what they are threatening her with.

As Rena digs through the senator's seemingly squeaky-clean past, he must walk the tightrope between two parties at war with each other and with themselves, an electorate that is as restive as it has ever been, and a political culture that is as much driven by money as it is by ideology.

THE GOOD LIE by Tom Rosenstiel (Ecco/HarperCollins, Feb 2019); <http://www.tomrosenstiel.com/press/>

An intelligent and propulsive international political thriller in which political fixer Peter Rena is hired by the president to investigate the bombing of an American military base overseas

When a shadowy American diplomatic complex is attacked in North Africa, the White House is besieged by accusations of incompetence and wild conspiracy theories. Eager to learn the truth, the president and his staff turn to Peter Rena and his partner, Randi Brooks. The investigators dive headfirst into the furtive world of foreign intelligence and national security, hoping to do it quietly. That becomes impossible, though, when it blows up into an all-out public scandal: Congress opens hearings and a tireless national security reporter publishes a bombshell exposé.

Now, Rena and Brooks are caught in the middle. The White House wants to prevent debilitating fallout for the president, the military appears to be in shutdown mode, the press is hungry for another big story, and rival politicians are plotting their next move. Rena learns the hard way that secrets in Washington come with a very high price. With intelligence, style, and a breakneck pace, The Good Lie explores the contours of secrets, lies, and the dangers of a never-ending war.

SHINING CITY by Tom Rosenstiel (Ecco/HarperCollins, Feb 2017) <http://www.tomrosenstiel.com/press/>

Peter Rena is a “fixer.” He and his partner, Randi Brooks, earn their living making the problems of the powerful disappear. They get their biggest job yet when the White House hires them to vet the president's nominee for the Supreme Court. Judge Roland Madison is a legal giant, but he's a political maverick, with views that might make the already tricky confirmation process even more difficult. Rena and his team go full-bore to cover every inch of the judge's past, while the competing factions of Washington D.C. mobilize with frightening intensity: ambitious senators, garrulous journalists, and wily power players on both sides of the aisle. All of that becomes background when a string of seemingly random killings overlaps with Rena's investigation, with Judge Madison a possible target. Racing against the clock to keep his nominee safe, the President satisfied, and the political wolves at bay, Rena learns just how dangerous Washington's obsession with power—how to get it and how to keep it—can be.

SHINING CITY is a cross between Jack Reacher and SCANDAL, with an in-depth political insight that's more common in Washington biographies than in fiction. Tom Rosenstiel is ideally suited to write it. Currently the executive director of the American Press Institute, Tom is a senior fellow at the Brookings Institute and founder of the Project for Excellence in Journalism at the Pew Research Center. Former chief Congressional Correspondent for Newsweek as well as a national correspondent in Washington for the Los Angeles Times and press critic for MSNBC, Tom is fascinated by the point where politics converges with morality.

THE LIGHT IN THE WOODS: a novel by Jean Marie Pierson (Post Hill Press, Nov 2017);

Christmas 1944. Before a little man started a great big war, there was Santa Claus. And Raymond Kozak believed in him with his whole heart. But the magic of the holiday season lost its shine for this 10-year-old boy after his father is killed in battle. That was until a deer marked with star on its face wandered into his yard, unafraid of his presence. Until his mother made him work for Oscar Taglieber, the old clockmaker down the street. Until he saw that light in the woods. Together with his friend Olive, Ray is drawn to uncover the implausible. Is Santa real? Is there a heaven? Do angels hide in plain sight? In this small seaside town pillars of the Christmas season transcend death and folklore to help a boy deal with his insurmountable grief and instill hope that one day, he might just all that he thought was lost back.

With the intrigue and twists of THE BOOK THIEF and in the spirit of THE FIVE PEOPLE YOU MEET IN HEAVEN, this novel will ignite our faith in a world beyond perception and has the makings of a true Christmas classic.

CELESTIAL MECHANICS by William Least Heat-Moon (Three Rooms Press, April 2017)

William Least Heat-Moon's first book, bestselling BLUE HIGHWAYS, tells of a 13,000-mile journey around America on back roads. With his first novel Celestial Mechanics, he takes us on an even more powerful journey, one that is not just about finding your place in America but about what it means to exist in a universe we struggle to fathom. When Silas Fortunato applies for an editorial position for the “spirituality” section of a local newspaper, he is asked to fill in a bubble sheet to mark his religion. The problem is, his beliefs don't fall within any of the categories. Silas believes that selflessness enlarges vision and that what a person should strive for is to be overcome by the beyond. He believes in honoring otherness and in giving questions credence over certainty. He calls himself a Cosmoterian because his goal is to make himself worthy of the majesty of Cosmos. Silas is a man driven by big ideas, but it is the everyday smallness that perpetually both intrigues and eludes him. WILLIAM LEAST HEAT-MOON, pen name of William Trogdon, is of English, Irish, and Osage ancestry. He lives in Missouri on an old tobacco farm he's returning to forest.

DEPTH by Lev AC Rosen (Regan Arts, April 2015)

Depth follows private investigator Simone Pierce in a post-apocalyptic Manhattan submerged and surrounded by unforgiving ocean. A routine case turns into a deadly one as Simone finds herself in the middle of the city's most powerful factions vying for control of what remains beneath the deadly waters. Depth is where Phillip K. Dick meets Raymond Chandler—a post-apocalyptic noir of intrigue, betrayal, romance and violence.

Lev AC Rosen is the author of the critically acclaimed All Men Of Genius (Tor, 2011), Woundabout (Little Brown, June 2015), The Memory Wall (Knopf Books for Young Readers, September 2016), and the forthcoming young adult LGBTQ sex-positive book Jack Of Hearts (And Other Parts) (Little Brown, October 2018)

- Camila Morrone and Willem Dafoe To Star in Adaptation of 'Gonzo Girl' Directed by Patricia Arquette
- Details TK about movie release date and movie tie-in editions.

The barely masked roman à clef of author Cheryl Della Pietra who fictionalizes (just a bit) how fast and furious her 3pm-2am job working for Hunter S. Thompson truly was. Alley Russo, a recent college grad desperately trying to make it in the grueling world of NY publishing, hears the infamous Walker Reade is looking for an assistant to replace the eight others who have recently quit. Hungry for a chance to get her manuscript onto the desk of an experienced editor, Alley jumps at the opportunity to help Reade finish his latest novel. After surviving a three-day “trial period” involving a .44 magnum, purple-pyramid acid, violent verbal outbursts, brushes with fame and the law, a bevy of peacocks, and a whole lot of cocaine, Alley is invited to stay at the compound where Reade works. For months Alley attempts to coax the novel out of Walker page-by-page, all while battling his endless procrastination, vampiric schedule, Herculean substance abuse, mounting debt, and casual gunplay. As the job takes a toll on her psyche, Alley realizes she's alone in the Colorado Rockies at the mercy of a drug-addicted literary icon who may never produce another novel—and her fate may already be sealed.

LIMITLESS: The Federal Reserve Takes on a New Age of Crisis by Jeanna Smialek (Knopf, Feb 2023); (formerly titled THE END OF OMNIPOTENCE);

The Federal Reserve Bank has long enjoyed a degree of mystery. For anyone not on Capitol Hill or Wall Street, it's hard to conceive of what happens in those marble halls—and until recently, those who ran the show didn't feel any particular need to explain the role they held in the economy—setting everything from interest rates to bond prices—to the public. But, NYT financial journalist Jeanna Smialek, who began her career covering “the Fed” as a young reporter in 2013, has noticed a shift that belies what could be a massive sea change. Though the Fed was traditionally a nonpartisan organization formed by bankers to protect the interests of Wall Street, this book will trace how its current Chair, Jerome Powell, is guiding the Fed's evolution through its efforts to save the economy and ordinary people from pandemic recession.

The fundamental tension at the core of this book is the same conflict that has shaped the Fed's institutional history: it is an organization that is meant to serve the broader economy by first serving the banks. Where the Fed was once wholly invested in the needs of people that reflected their own ranks—businessmen, hedge fund managers, and the born-wealthy, mostly white, Ivy educated class—Powell, Quarles, Brainard, Mnuchin, and Kashkari all represent different approaches and ideologies for our economic survival. As their lives and stories intertwine, the threads of our society are woven together: the struggle between Wall Street and Main Street, politics and technocracy, hope and caution, and the looming threat of a pandemic that will collapse our society as we know it. *The New York Times, where Smialek has worked since 2013, has offered to support the book at the time of publication.

CHILDREN OF THE STATE by Jeff Hobbs (Simon & Schuster, Jan. 2023)_(Formerly titled JUVENILE JUSTICE).

HOW TO BEGIN WHEN YOUR WORLD IS ENDING: A Spiritual Field Guide to Joy Despite Everything by Molly Phinney Baskette (Broadleaf Books, November 15, 2022) [Translation only; excludes UK.]

An ideal read for anyone who longs to feel that “God is good, all the time” even if life is not, HOW TO BEGIN WHEN YOUR WORLD IS ENDING will appeal to readers of Lori Gottlieb's MAYBE YOU SHOULD TALK WITH SOMEONE and Kate Bowler's EVERYTHING HAPPENS FOR A REASON.

The truth is that not one of us will make it through this life unscathed. Suffering will come. Our resiliency in life comes not just from suffering, but from how we find meaning in it all. Many of us see belief in God and religion, generally, as about arranging the religious truths we "know" into a cohesive system, a blueprint, for understanding faith and meeting real-world challenges. Witty and thoughtful, Molly Baskette tosses aside that blueprint and pointedly asks us to explore our assumptions about our faith, our life, and our purpose. Weaving together her experience surviving cancer and the stories of those she has encountered in her life of faith as a pastor, Baskette helps us press a thumb against the bruise of the reality that this sweet, hard, wonderful gig of being human will someday come to an end and perhaps sooner than we expect. In doing so, she finds hope, banishes fear, and helps us--and herself--find our way back from despair. For more on Molly visit <http://www.mollybaskette.com/>.

INDEPENDENCE DAY: What I Learned About Retirement from Some Who've Done It and Some Who Never Will by Steve Lopez (Harper Horizon, November 2022);

Four-time Pulitzer Prize finalist & Los Angeles Times columnist Steve Lopez explores the meaning of work and how it defines us in this captivating book that combines memoir, investigatory interviews, and practical application.

Grappling with his own decision of whether to retire, Lopez uses his reporter skills not only to look inward but also to interview experts and peers to collect a variety of perspectives as he examines the true nature of a person's time, identity, and ultimate life satisfaction.

In Independence Day, Lopez talks to those who have chosen to extend their working life to its (il)logical extreme - - people like Mel Brooks, still working at 94 -- those who have happily retired and reinvented themselves outside of the constraints of work, and those who would like to retire but can't because of financial constraints. He also turns to professionals on the matter, like two aging scientists, a geriatric specialist, and a psychiatrist, to understand the research-based reasons to retire. With his trademark poignancy, wisdom, and humor, Lopez establishes a useful polemic for himself and others in planning ahead, as he also evaluates questions of identity, financial limitations, and ultimately what to do with your life when the obituary pages are no longer filled with strangers. <https://www.latimes.com/people/steve-lopez>

WHAT THE EYES CAN'T SEE: Ralph Northam, Black Resolve, and a Racial Reckoning in Virginia (University of South Carolina Press, November 2022) [Translation only; excludes UK]

Virginia Governor Ralph Northam's "blackface scandal" could have destroyed any politician. The photo of Governor Northam purportedly in blackface created a firestorm not only locally but also in every political sphere. What the Eyes Can't See details why Northam's career did not end with the scandal, and how it made him a better governor—and a better citizen.

In this book Margaret Edds draws on unprecedented access to the governor, his aides, and members of the Virginia Legislative Black Caucus, whose initial anger evolved into determination to mine good from an ugly episode. Both scolding and encouraging, they led Northam to a deeper understanding of the racism and pain the photograph symbolized. To Northam's credit, he listened, and more importantly learned the lessons of endemic, systemic racism and applied those lessons to his legislative agenda. Edds provides a revealing examination of race in the nation, how racism might be addressed and reckoned with, and how we all may find a measure of redemption in listening to one another.

EVERY GODDAMN DAY: A Highly Selective, Definitely Opinionated, and Alternatingly Humorous and Heartbreaking Historical Tour of Chicago by Neil Steinberg (University of Chicago Press, October 2022).

A historical calendar that captures the spirit of Chicago and illuminates daily life for Americans in the 19th and 20th centuries by Chicago Sun Times columnist Neil Steinberg.

Every day in Chicago is a day to remember. In a city so rich with history, every day is the anniversary of some storied historical or cultural moment, whether it's the dedication of the Pablo Picasso sculpture downtown on August 15, or the arrest of Rod Blagojevich at his Ravenswood home on December 9, or a fire that possibly involved a cow on October 8.

In Every Goddamn Day, acerbic Chicago Sun-Times columnist Neil Steinberg takes the story of the city, pares away the dull, eat-your-peas parts, and provides 366 captivating daily readings in what makes Chicago Chicago and America America. It calls upon a wide cast of characters, from Oscar Wilde to Muhammad Ali, from Emma Goldman to Teddy Roosevelt, and from Richard M. Daley to Fred Hampton, to create a compelling narrative that can be read at a sitting or in a yearlong series of daily doses. From New Year's Day to New Year's Eve, Steinberg takes us on a vivid and entertaining tour, illuminating the famous, obscure, tragic, and hilarious elements that make each day in Chicago memorable.

TED KENNEDY: A Life by John A. Farrell (Penguin Press, Oct. 25, 2022)

*LONGLISTED FOR THE 2022 NATIONAL BOOK AWARD FOR NONFICTION

An enthralling and ground-breaking new biography of one of modern America's most fascinating and consequential political figures, drawing on important new sources, by an award-winning biographer

John A. Farrell's magnificent biography of Edward M. Kennedy is the first single-volume life of the great figure since his death. Farrell's long acquaintance with the Kennedy universe and the acclaim accorded his previous books—including his New York Times bestselling biography of Richard Nixon, a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize—helped garner him access to a remarkable range of new sources, including segments of Kennedy's personal diary and his private confessions to members of his family in the days that followed the accident on Chappaquiddick.

As the fourth son of the close-knit but fiercely competitive Kennedy clan, Ted was the runt of the litter. Expelled from Harvard University for cheating, he was a fun-loving playboy who nevertheless served his brothers loyally and effectively. It was easy to take Ted lightly, and many did. But when he was elected to the United States Senate at the age of thirty to fill his brother Jack's seat, something unexpected happened: he found his home and his calling there. Over time, Ted Kennedy would build arguably the most significant senatorial career in American history.

His life was buffeted by heartbreak: the violent deaths of his three older brothers, his own terrible plane crash, his children's bouts with cancer, the self-inflicted wounds of Chappaquiddick and stretches of drinking and womanizing that caused irreparable damage to an already fragile first marriage. Those wounds scarred Ted deeply but also tempered his character, and, eventually, he embarked on a run as legislator, party elder, and paterfamilias of the Kennedy family that would change America for the better. Farrell brings us the man as he was, in strength and weakness, his profound but complicated inheritance and his vital legacy, as only a great biographer can do. Without the story this book tells, no understanding of modern America can be complete. <http://www.jafarrell.com/aboutjack.html>

THE WEST WING AND BEYOND by Pete Souza (Little Brown; Sept 2022). <http://www.petesouza.com>

Go behind the scenes of the West Wing—and into the Oval Office, the Situation Room, aboard Air Force One, and beyond—in intimate detail with #1 bestselling author and presidential photographer Pete Souza.

Pete Souza has spent more time in the Oval Office than any person in history, former two-term Presidents excluded. During the Obama administration alone, Souza estimates that he was "inside the presidential bubble" for more than 25,000 hours, with a unique view on how democracy actually works.

In THE WEST WING AND BEYOND, Souza brings the inner sanctum of the American Presidency to life and goes behind the scenes to share never-before-seen photographs and stories of life in the White House and traveling with the President across the country and around the world.

Focusing on the people, processes, and traditions that define our nation's highest office, this book will put you inside the Presidency, looking out—and deliver a new view of the Secret Service, the seriousness of the Situation Room, and even the waste-paper basketball games played in rare moments of downtime outside the Oval.

Told with Pete's distinctive voice and brimming with gorgeous photography, THE WEST WING AND BEYOND offers a one-of-a-kind look into the daily intrigues and fascinating minutiae that make up the foundation of the American Presidency.

NO POINT B: New rules for leading change when change doesn't stop coming by Caleb Gardner. (Matt Holt Books/BenBella; Aug. 2022)

Caleb Gardner was the lead digital strategist for Barack Obama's political advocacy group OFA and ran Obama's Twitter account @BarackObama. Drawing on real-life stories as well as experts in sociology, psychology and management, Gardner distills nine principles for mobilizing the next generation of effective change leaders. NO POINT B argues that we need new rules for managing change when our world never stops changing. Applying his vast experience in both business leadership and social activism, Gardner will show how the simple idea of giving up on ever being done with change, and instead embracing change as a core competency for living in an incredibly complex world, could revolutionize our relationship with modernity and transform our ability to lead.

RETHINKING SEX: A Provocation by Christine Emba (Sentinel/PRH, March 2022).

Part searing examination, part call to arms—a bold case against modern sexual ethics, from young Washington Post columnist Christine Emba.

Christine Emba's Rethinking Sex is an urgent response to the intimate gray area that has become most women's experience of #MeToo. She begins with the New Yorker short story “Cat Person” and the online account of a date with Aziz Ansari. They went wildly viral not because they were extraordinary tales of celebrity impropriety, but because women related to the everyday, pervasive, entirely ordinary bad sex that women routinely consent to but is also unwanted and often leads to unhappiness.

As an opinion columnist for The Washington Post who focuses on, among other things, feminism and Millennial culture, Emba intends Rethinking Sex to grapple with the role sex-positive feminism and a pornography-drenched popular culture plays in shaping women's and men's ideas of consent. Many women still feel an internal, social, or even political pressure to consent to sex. And many men don't realize to what degree this happens—or if they do, they're willing to ignore it.

What about when consent is not only not enthusiastically affirmative—but not consent at all? We don't have a coherent framework with which to evaluate these situations—and so they remain common enough to be epidemic and disappointing for women who are only just beginning to speak up about consented-to but unwanted bad sex. It's these gray areas that Rethinking Sex will address. Emba will talk to experts, ethicists, reach into philosophy, examine gender norms, etc., to sort out how women and men can stop both overvaluing and undervaluing sex at the same time. She outlines ways for women to rethink not only their relationship to men or consent or feminism—but their relationship to sex itself.

Reaching back to the wisdom of thinkers like Thomas Aquinas and Andrea Dworkin, and drawing from sociological studies, interviews with college students, and poignant examples from her own life, Emba calls for a more humane philosophy, one that starts with consent but accounts for the very real emotional, mental, social, and political implications of sex—even, she argues, if it means saying no to certain sexual practices or challenging societal expectations altogether.

* BIRD BROTHER: A Falconer's Journey and the Healing Power of Wildlife By Rodney Stotts with Kate Pipkin (Island Press, February 2022). Formerly titled LEARNING TO FLY [Translation rights only; Excludes UK/Commonwealth]

A powerful memoir by a former drug dealer turned master falconer, about the healing power of wildlife and nature---an urban HIS FOR HAWK.

To escape the tough streets of inner city Southeast Washington D.C. in the late 1980s, young Rodney Stotts would ride the metro to the Smithsonian National Zoo. There, the bald eagles and other birds of prey captured his imagination for the first time. In Bird Brother, Rodney shares his unlikely journey from dealing drugs to becoming a conservationist and one of America's few Black master falconers.

Rodney grew up during the crack epidemic, with guns, drugs, and the threat of incarceration an accepted part of daily life for nearly everyone he knew. To rent his own apartment, he needed a paycheck—something the money from dealing drugs didn't provide. For that, he took a position in 1992 with a new nonprofit, the Earth Conservation Corps. Gradually, Rodney fell in love with the work to restore and conserve the polluted Anacostia River that flows past D.C. As conditions along the river improved, he helped to reintroduce bald eagles to the region and befriended an injured Eurasian Eagle Owl named Mr. Hoots, the first of many birds whose respect he would work hard to earn.

That part of his life—along with the chance to be involved in his children's lives—was nearly lost when Rodney was arrested on drug charges in 2002. The jail sentence sharpened his resolve to get out of the hustling life. With the fierceness of the raptors he had admired for so long, he began to train to become a master falconer and pursue his dream to build an aviary and develop his own raptor education program and sanctuary. Rodney's son Mike, a D.C. firefighter, has also begun his journey to being a master falconer, with his own kids cheering him along the way. Eye-opening, witty, and moving, BIRD BROTHER is a love letter to the fierce raptors and humans who transformed what Rodney thought his life could be. It is an unflinching look at the uphill battle Black children face in pursuing stable, fulfilling lives, a testament to the healing power of wildlife, and a reminder that no matter how much heartbreak we've endured, we still have the capacity to give back to our communities and pursue our wildest dreams.

PEOPLE LOVE DEAD JEWS: Reports from a Haunted Present by Dara Horn (Norton; Sept 7, 2021): [Excludes UK; we control translation] (See Dara's backlist titles on pg 82)

A startling exploration of how Jewish history is exploited to comfort the living by acclaimed author Dara Horn.

After the feedback Dara Horn received for her Atlantic piece about the Downtown Manhattan Auschwitz attraction, and op-eds she wrote for the Times after the two mass synagogue shootings, she conceived of a book of essays centered on the implications evoked in her title: PEOPLE LOVE DEAD JEWS. The original and reworked pieces here collect her thoughts about a subject that she has strenuously avoided in her fiction: the fetishization of dead Jews. Dead Jews are lessons, symbols, metaphors, harbingers, icons, and examples.

Reflecting on subjects as far-flung as the international veneration of Anne Frank, the blockbuster travelling exhibition called "Auschwitz," the Jewish history of the Chinese city of Harbin, and the little known "righteous-gentile" Varian Fry, Dara Horn challenges us to confront the reasons why there might be so much fascination with Jewish deaths, as emblematic of the worst of evils the world has to offer, and so little respect for Jewish lives, as they continue to unfold in the present.

Horn draws on her own family life—trying to explain Shakespeare's Shylock to a curious ten-year-old, her anger when swastikas are drawn on desks in her children's school in New Jersey, the profound and essential perspective offered by traditional religious practice, prayer, and study—to assert the vitality, complexity, and depth of this life against an anti-Semitism that, far from being disarmed by the mantra of "Never forget," is on the rise.

People Love Dead Jews will stand alongside books by Rebecca Solnit's Men Explain Things to Me, Zadie Smith's Feel Free, even Ta-Nehi Coates's We Were Eight Years in Power, as a compilation of persuasive essays that nail down an otherwise evasive new brand of exploitation and betrayal.

CONTROLLING WOMEN: What We Must Do Now to Save Reproductive Freedom by Kathryn Kolbert and Julie F. Kay (Hachette Books, July 2021).

The definitive account of the battle for reproductive freedom and a bold new strategy to safeguard our rights, from two lawyers at the forefront of the movement.

While Roe v. Wade is a household name in America, few are aware of the impact of Planned Parenthood v. Casey, the Supreme Court's 1992 ruling that preserved but redefined and substantially limited abortion rights, especially for the most marginalized women. Casey rather than Roe has established the constitutional standards that today govern abortion in the U.S. When pundits talk about the reversal of Roe, they really mean the reversal of Casey. Within the next two years and likely far sooner, we are going to lose the protections of Roe and Casey. Through state legislation, the appointment of hundreds of anti-abortion federal judges, and the rapidly changing makeup of the Supreme Court, reproductive freedom has never been in more dire straits.

Legal titans Kathryn Kolbert and Julie F. Kay share the story of one of the most divisive issues in American politics through behind-the-scenes personal narratives of the stunning losses and hard-earned victories in landmark abortion rights cases. They chronicle how a convergence of Supreme Court appointments and the strategies of political movements on both sides of this contentious debate have led us to a make-or-break moment for legal abortion in the United States. Most urgently, they propose a bold new strategy for engaging a fresh generation and broadening the scope of abortion rights supporters.

Kathryn Kolbert made her second appearance before the Supreme Court in 1992, arguing Planned Parenthood v. Casey. She co-founded the Center for Reproductive Rights. She founded NPR's Justice Talking and the Athena Center for Leadership at Barnard College.

Julie F. Kay helped lay the groundwork for the legalization of abortion in Ireland through the first direct challenge to the country's absolute ban on abortion before the European Court of Human Rights. Julie began her legal career at the Center for Reproductive Rights and has spent the ensuing decades developing innovative legal and policy initiatives to advance gender equality and religious freedom.

ACROSS THE AIRLESS WILDS: The Lunar Rover and the Triumph of the Final Moon Landings by Earl Swift (Custom House/Morrow, July 2021) [Translation only; excludes UK]

In this follow-up to the acclaimed New York Times bestseller Chesapeake Requiem, Earl Swift rediscovers the final three Apollo Moon landings, arguing that these overlooked missions—distinguished by the use of the revolutionary Lunar Roving Vehicle—were the pinnacle of human exploration.

The most enduring tire tracks in the universe lie not on any highway, remote desert trail, or indeed anywhere on Earth. They are found on the Moon, where fifty-six miles of car tracks lie nearly perfectly preserved, etched into the lunar landscape almost exactly as they were left nearly a half-century ago. The ends of these trails mark the farthest extremes to which mankind has ventured, the limits of a species that was born to wander.

The tracks were left by crews of the last three manned missions to the Moon—Apollos 15, 16, and 17. Over the decades since, the achievements of these astronauts have dimmed in the shadow cast by the first Moon landing, Apollo 11. But as Earl Swift brilliantly uncovers, in so many ways the earlier missions were but a prelude for the final acts; for while Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin trod a chunk of flat lunar plain smaller than a football field, the final three Apollos each commanded a mountainous area the size of Manhattan—traveling miles across the broken, desolate lunar surface, conducting experiments, and collecting more than a quarter-ton of prized geologic samples. Often treated as little more than historical footnotes, they were the true explorers of the Moon. And they succeeded for one very American reason: they drove.

So-called “Moon cars” had been the stuff of science fiction since before the Wright brothers flew. But it was only after World War II that engineers and scientists took up the challenge of how to move astronauts and equipment across extraterrestrial landscapes. The result was the Lunar Roving Vehicle—a true engineering marvel that was developed piecemeal through the late 1950s and 1960s, deployed on the final three Apollo missions, and revolutionized the exploration of the moon. In this fast-moving exploration of the lunar rover and the scientific discoveries it enabled, Swift puts the reader alongside the men who dreamed of the rover, designed it, troubleshooted its flaws, and drove it on the lunar surface. Finally shining a deserved spotlight on these overlooked yet crucial missions and the fascinating characters involved in them, Across the Airless Wilds is a celebration of human genius, perseverance, and daring. (See CHESAPEAKE REQUIEM on p. 46.)

THE PROFESSION: A Memoir of Community, Race, and the Arc of Policing in America by Bill Bratton and Peter Knobler (Penguin Press; June 2021)

A memoir about the epic, transformative career of Bill Bratton, legendary police commissioner and police reformer, in Boston, Los Angeles, and New York.

When Bill Bratton became a Boston street cop after his return from serving in Vietnam, he was dismayed by the corrupt old guard, and it is fair to say the old guard was dismayed by him, too. But his success fighting crime could not be denied. Propelled by extraordinary results, Bratton had a dazzling rise, and ultimately a dazzling career, becoming the most famous police commissioner of modern times. The Profession is the story of that career in full.

Everywhere he went, Bratton slashed crime rates and professionalized the vocation of the cop. He and his team created the revolutionary program CompStat, the Big Bang of modern data-driven policing. But his career has not been without controversy, and central to the reckoning of The Profession is the fundamental crisis of relations between the Black community and law enforcement; a crisis he now believes has been inflamed by the unforeseen consequences of some well-intentioned policies. Building trust between a police force and the community it is sworn to protect is in many ways, Bratton argues, the first task--without genuine trust in law enforcement to do what's right, little else is possible.

The Profession is both a searching examination of the path of policing over the past fifty years, for good and also for ill, and a master class in transformative leadership. Bill Bratton was never brought into a police department to maintain the status quo; wherever he went--from Boston in the '80s to the New York Police Department in the '90s to Los Angeles after the beating of Rodney King to New York again in the era of unchecked stop-and-frisk--root-and-branch reinvention was the order of the day and he met the challenge. There are few other positions on Earth in which life-and-death stakes combine with intense public scrutiny and turbulent political crosswinds as they do for the police chief of a major American city, even more so after counterterrorism entered the mix in the twenty-first century. Now more than ever, when the role of the police in society is under a microscope like never before, Bill Bratton's authority on the subject of improving law enforcement is profoundly useful. A riveting combination of cop stories and community involvement, The Profession presents not only a fascinating and colorful life at the heights of law-enforcement leadership, but the vision for the future of American policing that we sorely need.

DO SOMETHING FOR NOTHING by Joshua Coombes (Akashic Books, May 2021).

Four years ago, Joshua Coombes first shared a cup of coffee with a homeless man and asked if he could cut his hair. Coombes didn't know it at the time, but that one small act would soon lead to something greater than he ever could have believed was possible. Encouraged to get to know those whom he had rarely acknowledged, Coombes cut the hair of homeless people whenever he had free time, hearing their stories and placing his hands on them, even though it had been ages since many of them had been touched. The BBC shot a video of Josh and called him "Hairdresser for the Homeless"—that video went viral, now having been viewed nearly 30 million times.

Coombes has traveled to a dozen countries, and across the US, cutting hair and hearing stories. He recently filmed a documentary with Morgan Freeman and has partnered with the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, LUSH cosmetics, and TOM'S shoes, among others. Do Something for Nothing will consist of 200 high-res photos, including 80 before-and-after photos of some of the homeless people Coombes has come to know. Do Something for Nothing hopes to inspire readers to humanize those they barely see; it reminds us of the goodness that is in the world & of our power to make a difference.

From The New York Times best-selling author of The Essential Scratch & Sniff Guide to Becoming a Wine Expert, everything you need to know about America's favorite recreational plant

Who better to guide you through the distinctive scents of cannabis than Richard Betts, a Master Sommelier (one of fewer than 200 in the world) with an unrivaled nose and the author of three scratch-and-sniff books? In this novel book, Betts demystifies the differences between cannabis and hemp, indica and sativa, and describes how each strain will make you feel and more, aided by scents to truly allow readers to understand the distinction between Train Wreck and Sour Diesel. With a short history lesson on where Mary Jane came from and how it became humanity's beloved pastime, plus a guide to the most popular strains, this handbook is a fact-filled and fun guide to all things cannabis. And if you don't live in a state that has legalized marijuana, this book is the closest thing you'll have to toking up!

RACE AGAINST TIME: A Reporter Reopens the Unsolved Murder Cases of the Civil Rights Era by Jerry Mitchell, (Simon & Schuster; Feb, 2021).

On June 21, 1964, more than twenty Klansmen murdered three civil rights workers. The killings, in what would become known as the "Mississippi Burning" case, were among the most brazen acts of violence during the civil rights movement. And even though the killers' identities, including the sheriff's deputy, were an open secret, no one was charged with murder in the months and years that followed.

It took forty-one years before the mastermind was brought to trial and finally convicted for the three innocent lives he took. If there is one man who helped pave the way for justice, it is investigative reporter Jerry Mitchell.

In Race Against Time, Mitchell takes readers on the twisting, pulse-racing road that led to the reopening of four of the most infamous killings from the days of the civil rights movement, decades after the fact. His work played a central role in bringing killers to justice for the assassination of Medgar Evers, the firebombing of Vernon Dahmer, the 16th Street Church bombing in Birmingham and the Mississippi Burning case. Mitchell reveals how he unearthed secret documents, found long-lost suspects and witnesses, building up evidence strong enough to take on the Klan. He takes us into every harrowing scene along the way, as when Mitchell goes into the lion's den, meeting one-on-one with the very murderers he is seeking to catch. His efforts have put four leading Klansmen behind bars, years after they thought they had gotten away with murder.

Race Against Time is an astonishing, courageous story capturing a historic race for justice, as the past is uncovered, clue by clue, and long-ignored evils are brought into the light. This is a landmark book and essential reading for all Americans.

THE INTELLECTUAL DEVOTIONAL SERIES by David S. Kidder and Noah Oppenheim (Rodale, May 2006-May 2010) ; updated pb. edition January 2021

Now updated to reflect current events, this daily digest of intellectual challenge and learning will arouse curiosity, refresh knowledge, expand horizons, and keep the mind sharp.

Millions of Americans keep bedside books of prayer and meditative reflection--collections of daily passages to stimulate spiritual thought and advancement. The Intellectual Devotional is a secular version of the same--a collection of 365 short lessons to inspire and invigorate every day of the year. Each daily digest of wisdom is drawn from one of seven fields of knowledge: history, literature, philosophy, mathematics and science, religion, fine arts, and music.

Impress your friends by explaining Plato's Cave Allegory, memorize Sonnet 18, and unlock the mystery of how batteries work. Daily readings range from important passages in literature to basic principles of physics, from pivotal events in history to images of famous paintings with accompanying analysis. The book's goal is to refresh knowledge we've forgotten, make new discoveries, and exercise modes of thinking that are ordinarily neglected once our school days are behind us.

Offering an escape from the daily grind to contemplate higher things, The Intellectual Devotional is a great way to awaken in the morning or to revitalize the mind before retiring in the evening.

The original THE INTELLECTUAL DEVOTIONAL, an instant New York Times Bestseller over a decade ago, is now an instant 2018 bestseller in Japan! Each installment in the The Intellectual Devotional series offers a year's worth of knowledge in single page entries for each day of the week. PAPPYLAND: A Story of Family, Fine Bourbon, and the Things that Last by Wright Thompson (Penguin Press, Nov 10, 2020).

New York Times Bestseller

The story of how Julian Van Winkle III, the caretaker of the most coveted cult Kentucky Bourbon whiskey in the world, fought to protect his family's heritage and preserve the taste of his forebears, in a world where authenticity, like his product, is in very short supply.

Americans have always made bourbon. It's said that George Washington himself is responsible for its proliferation, driving disgruntled distillers further out west to avoid taxation, to what was then called "Bourbon County," Kentucky. Bourbon inspired America's signature cocktails: the Sazerac, the Old Fashioned, the Manhattan. There are more barrels of bourbon in Kentucky than there are people. And yet for years, bourbon had a reputation of being your father's or worse, your grandfather's drink. The idea of a high-end bourbon was so discordant with public perception that you couldn't even buy a single-barrel bottle—there was simply no market for it. But what there was and wasn't a market for never much mattered to Pappy van Winkle. PAPPYLAND is an ode to bourbon, about the man who makes the best bourbon in the world. It's the tale of a family—and a business—that helped build the foundation for bourbon's rise. The power of Wright's voice, combined with Julian's story will ensure that PAPPYLAND is more than just a great read but a salve for all of those who will never be lucky enough to taste Pappy for themselves.

UNDAUNTED: My Fight Against America's Enemies, at Home and Abroad by John Brennan (Celadon/Macmillan; October 6, 2020). [Translation only; excludes UK]

A powerful and revelatory memoir from former CIA director John Brennan, spanning his more than thirty years in government.

Friday, January 6, 2017: On that day, as always, John Brennan's alarm clock was set to go off at 4:15 a.m. But nothing else about that day would be routine. That day marked his first and only security briefing with President-elect Donald Trump. And it was also the day John Brennan said his final farewell to Owen Brennan, his father, the man who had taught him the lessons of goodness, integrity, and honor that had shaped the course of an unparalleled career serving his country from within the intelligence community.

In this brutally honest memoir, Brennan, the son of an Irish immigrant who settled in New Jersey, describes the life that took him from being a young CIA recruit enamored with the mystique of spy work, secretly defiant enough to drive a motorcycle and sport a diamond earring, and invigorated by his travels in the Middle East to being the most powerful individual in American intelligence. He details his experiences with very different presidents and what it's been like to bear responsibility for some of the nation's most crucial and polarizing national security decisions.

He pulls back the curtain on the inner workings of the Agency, describing the selfless, patriotic, and invisible work of the women and men involved in national security. He also examines the insularity, arrogance, and myopia that have, at times, undermined its reputation in the eyes of the American people and of members of other branches of government. Through topics ranging from George W. Bush's intervention in Iraq to his thoughts on the CIA's controversial use of enhanced interrogation techniques to his eye-opening account of the planning of the raid that resulted in Bin Ladin's death to his realization that Russia had interfered with the 2016 election, Brennan brings the reader behind the scenes of some of the most crucial moments in recent U.S. history. He also candidly discusses the times he has failed to live up to his own high standards and the very public fallouts that have resulted. With its behind-the-scenes look at how major U.S. national security policies and actions unfolded during his long and distinguished career—especially during his eight years in the Obama administration—John Brennan's memoir is a work of history with strong implications for the future of America and our country's relationships with other world powers.

UNDAUNTED offers a rare and insightful look at the often-observed world of national security, the intelligence profession, and Washington's chaotic political environment. But more than that, it is a portrait of a man striving for integrity; for himself, for the CIA, and for his country.

SHIT, ACTUALLY: The Definitive, 100% Objective Guide to Modern Cinema by bestselling author Lindy West. (Hachette Books; October 20, 2020).

Your Favorite Movies, Re-Watched

New York Times opinion writer and bestselling author Lindy West was once the in-house movie critic for Seattle's alternative newsweekly The Stranger, where she covered film with brutal honesty and giddy irreverence. In Shit, Actually, Lindy returns to those roots, re-examining beloved and iconic movies from the past 40 years with an eye toward the big questions of our time: Is Twilight the horniest movie in history? Why do the zebras in The Lion King trust Mufasa-WHO IS A LION-to look out for their best interests? Why did anyone bother making any more movies after The Fugitive achieved perfection? And, my god, why don't any of the women in Love, Actually ever fucking talk!?!

From Forrest Gump, Honey I Shrunk the Kids, and Bad Boys II, to Face/Off, Top Gun, and The Notebook, Lindy combines her razor-sharp wit and trademark humor with a genuine adoration for nostalgic trash to shed new critical light on some of our defining cultural touchstones—the stories we've long been telling ourselves about who we are. At once outrageously funny and piercingly incisive, Shit, Actually reminds us to pause and ask, "How does this movie hold up?", all while teaching us how to laugh at the things we love without ever letting them or ourselves off the hook.

Shit, Actually is a love letter and a break-up note all in one: to the films that shaped us and the ones that ruined us. More often than not, Lindy finds, they're one and the same.

LIVE NOT BY LIES: A Manual for Christian Dissidents by Rod Dreher (Sentinel/PRH, Sept 29, 2020);

New York Times bestseller

The New York Times bestselling author of The Benedict Option draws on the wisdom of Christian survivors of Soviet persecution to warn American Christians of approaching dangers.

For years, émigrés from the former Soviet bloc have been telling Rod Dreher they see telltale signs of "soft" totalitarianism cropping up in America—something more Brave New World than Nineteen Eighty-Four. Identity politics are beginning to encroach on every aspect of life. Civil liberties are increasingly seen as a threat to "safety." Progressives marginalize conservative, traditional Christians, and other dissenters. Technology and consumerism hasten the possibility of a corporate surveillance state. And the pandemic, having put millions out of work, leaves our country especially vulnerable to demagogic manipulation. In Live Not By Lies, Dreher amplifies the alarm sounded by the brave men and women who fought totalitarianism. He explains how the totalitarianism facing us today is based less on overt violence and more on psychological manipulation. He tells the stories of modern-day dissidents—clergy, laity, martyrs, and confessors from the Soviet Union and the captive nations of Europe—who offer practical advice for how to identify and resist totalitarianism in our time. Following the model offered by a prophetic World War II-era pastor who prepared believers in his Eastern European to endure the coming of communism, Live Not By Lies teaches American Christians a method for resistance:

SEE: Acknowledge the reality of the situation.; JUDGE: Assess reality in the light of what we as Christians know to be true; ACT: Take action to protect truth.

Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn famously said that one of the biggest mistakes people make is assuming totalitarianism can't happen in their country. Many American Christians are making that mistake today, sleepwalking through the erosion of our freedoms. Live Not By Lies will wake them and equip them for the long resistance.

THE BENEDICT OPTION: A Strategy for Christians in a Post-Christian Nation by Rod Dreher (Sentinel/PRH; March 2017); <http://www.theamericanconservative.com/dreher/>

New York Times best-selling author Rod Dreher, a columnist and blogger for The American Conservative who draws over 900,000 page views monthly, has been stirring up a storm since he began writing on his blog about what he has coined the “Benedict Option.” Dreher calls on traditional Christians to learn from the example of St. Benedict of Nursia, a sixth-century monk who turned from the chaos and decadence of the collapsing Roman Empire, and found a new way to live out the faith in community. With the goal of turning the energies formerly spent trying to change the larger culture to strengthen the internal bonds of the Christian community, THE BENEDICT OPTION launches a model for traditionalist Christian life to survive in this new era.

THE KIDNAP YEARS: The Astonishing True History of the Forgotten Kidnapping Epidemic that Shook Depression-Era America by David Stout. (Sourcebooks, Sept. 2020) [Translation only; excludes UK & Commonwealth]

The economic depression years of 1929 through the 1930s were a time of incomparable financial desperation in America. Lawlessness and corruption proliferated in the decimating poverty of that era. But little known are the countless serial dramas that played out in homes and hide-outs, courtrooms and newsrooms across the country. In a time of panic, legal lethargy, corruption and incompetence, there was one sure means to make money: kidnapping.

David Stout, an Edgar Award-winning true crime author, novelist, and New York Times editor and criminal justice reporter, embarked upon THE KIDNAP YEARS while researching the “Lindbergh Law.” “When the Lindbergh toddler was taken, kidnapping was not even a felony in New Jersey; it was a misdemeanor.” Before the “Lindbergh Law,” there was no coordination among law enforcement between states. Congress passed the law just weeks after the abduction and murder of the namesake aviation hero’s infant son—when this crime had already reached epidemic proportions in the United States. THE KIDNAP YEARS moves with a gritty, propulsive pace, reanimating the sepia-tone silent era, exhuming bygone primary sources and interweaving interviews with relatives of survivors. Local bankers were despised and were prime targets; families of brewers, doctors, furriers, merchants, grocers and clothiers were targets, too. Newspapers had trouble simply keeping up with the abductions—dozens more victims every year—and at a certain point, simply stopped trying. Nationwide revulsion—at last—lifted the languishing legislation. Some kidnapers were professional criminals branching out from gambling and bootlegging. Amateurs tried their hands, driven by desperate joblessness: a victim’s release after a ransom payment put meals on the kidnapper’s table. But sometimes their unskilled fevered strategies led to the death of the hostage. Hunger and hopelessness as gnawing motivation, are, if not forgivable, excruciatingly poignant.

THE KIDNAP YEARS tells stories long forgotten or that haven’t been told at all. The stories lay bare why each one of those distant lives and deaths matters, not just in haunting individual humanity, but also historically, collectively, for what their sacrifices contributed toward the “Lindbergh Law” itself and the birth of psychiatric profiling, fingerprinting, improved news-gathering standards, law enforcement accountability, and legal protocols.

OUR LADY OF PERPETUAL HUNGER: A Memoir by Lisa Donovan (Penguin Press, August 2020)

Renown Southern pastry chef Lisa Donovan's memoir of cooking, survival, and the incredible power in reclaiming the stories of women. Donovan’s experiences as a woman in some of the most intense and successful restaurants in America brought her to a reckoning and, ultimately, a revolutionary decision to reclaim a spirit of generosity in the often toxic restaurant industry. Inspired by her viral call-to-arms essay for Food & Wine.

Noted chef and James Beard Award-winning essayist Lisa Donovan helped establish some of the South's most important kitchens, and her pastry work is at the forefront of a resurgence in traditional desserts. Yet Donovan struggled to make a living in an industry where male chefs built successful careers on the stories, recipes, and culinary heritage passed down from generations of female cooks and cooks of color. At one of her career peaks, she made the perfect dessert at a celebration for food-world goddess Diana Kennedy. When Kennedy asked why she had not heard of her, Donovan said she did not know. "I do," Kennedy said, "Stop letting men tell your story."

OUR LADY OF PERPETUAL HUNGER is Donovan's searing, beautiful, and searching chronicle of reclaiming her own story and the narrative of the women who came before her. Her family's matriarchs found strength and passion through food, and they inspired Donovan's accomplished career. Donovan's love language is hospitality, and she wants to welcome everyone to the table of good food and fairness. Donovan herself had been told at every juncture that she wasn't enough: she came from a struggling southern family that felt ashamed of its own mixed race heritage and whose elders diminished their women. She survived abuse and assault as a young mother. But Donovan's salvations were food, self-reliance, and the network of women in food who stood by her. In the school of the late John Egerton, OUR LADY OF PERPETUAL HUNGER is an unforgettable Southern journey of class, gender, and race as told at table.

SHOW THEM YOU'RE GOOD: A Portrait of Boys in the City of Angels the Year Before College by Jeff Hobbs (Scribner, June 2020)

The bestselling, critically acclaimed, award-winning author of The Short and Tragic Life of Robert Peace presents a brilliant and transcendent work that closely follows four Los Angeles high school boys with vastly different backgrounds and resources as they apply to college.

Four teenage boys are high school seniors at two very different schools within the city of Los Angeles, the second largest school district in the nation with nearly 700,000 students. Author Jeff Hobbs, writing with heart, sensitivity, and insight, stunningly captures the challenges and triumphs of being a young person confronting the future—both their own and the cultures in which they live—in contemporary America.

Combining complex social issues with the compelling experience of the individual, Hobbs takes us deep inside these boys' worlds. The foursome includes Tiofilo, a nonchalant skateboarder harboring serious ambitions to attend an elite college despite a father who doesn't believe in him; Carlos, son of undocumented delivery workers, who aims to follow in his older brother's footsteps and attend Yale; Owen, ambivalent about high school in general but still yearning to fulfill the expectations of his successful and loving parents; and Sam, devoted member of the academic decathlon team who lives in a tiny cramped apartment with his Chinese mother and Jewish father and cannot wait to have some independence.

Filled with portraits of secondary characters including friends, peers, parents, teachers, and girlfriends, this masterwork of immersive journalism is both intimate and profound and destined to ignite conversations about class, race, expectations, cultural divides, and even the concept of fate. Hobbs's portrayal of these young men is not only revelatory and relevant, but also moving, eloquent, and indelibly powerful.

WHAT BIRDS EAT: How to Preserve the Natural Diet and Behavior of North American Birds by Kim Long. (Mountaineers Books, Sept. 2020);

Of the nearly 1,200 species of native bird species in North America (including Mexico), 37 percent are now declared to be in need of urgent conservation. Human forces have decimated populations of insects, a prime direct and indirect bird food, to about half their levels worldwide over the past 40 years. Many millions of acres of forest, grassland, pastures and wetlands are lost each year. As natural habitats shrivel, sources of seeds, foliage, fruits, pollen, nectar, insects, fish, rodents, carrion and other prime avian nutritional reserves suffer.

Why should we care about the diverse and often very narrow and specific menus for birds? What does it matter how and for what tasks they manicure talons or sharpen their beaks? What is the ecological impact globally of these dietary stresses? The quest for necessary and digestible nutrients leaves birds to often desperate adaptations, including altered breeding cycles and seasonal migration patterns.

This popular wildlife author provides a unique new lens focused specifically on idiosyncratic bird anatomy and digestion for understanding the crisis posed for birds by urbanization, deforestation, pesticides, herbicides and climate change.

Grassroots awareness of a symbiotic social contract between birds and humans seems apparent. For many people, birds are cherished as dearly as are dogs and cats. Market research shows that bird food sections in gardening, grocery and home supply stores have grown exponentially, while birds have seized upon the hospitality hinted by a world of backyards, birdbaths, feeders and windowsills. But these tweaks in the natural order are not nearly enough. Breadcrumbs, landfills and garbage cans are hardly a worthy buffet.

WHAT BIRDS EAT explores the complex disruptions that imperil the eco-framework connecting birds and their natural independent foraging of food sources. It features rich photography, detailed illustrations, and approachable resources for general readers as well as avid birders. Awareness and information, says this author, lead to more sustained and effective, sensitive and enlightened engagement with the creatures who provide us with soaring beauty, glorious song and lively spirit.

MAKERS: PARIS The Artists, Artisans and Iconoclasts Shaping the City, By Kate Van Den Boogert with Photographs by Carrie Solomon, (Prestel, April 14, 2020) [Excludes UK; translation only.]

Meet the extraordinary community of artisans and creative entrepreneurs making their mark on Paris today.

This inspirational guide introduces you to the locals behind thirty-five of Paris's unique shops, studios, and more. Through beautifully illustrated spreads, immerse yourself in the daily practices of diverse creatives including fashion designer Isabel Marant; baker Apollonia Poilâne, whose sourdough loaves are the toast of the city; fourth-generation art supplier Sophie Sennelier; Palais-Royal shoe designer Pierre Hardy; jet-setting street artist and hotelier André Saraiva; bookseller Sylvia Whitman who continues her father's literary heritage with flair; French cocktail expert Franck Audoux; the duo behind ecological sneaker brand Véja; the inventor of the bistronomy movement Yves Camdeborde; plus a host of chocolatiers, florists, cheesemakers, pâtisseries, stationers, and more. HACKING PLANET EARTH: How Controlling Nature and Geoengineering the Future Can Save the World by Tom Kostigen (Tarcher Perigee/PRH; March 24, 2020)

[UK rights only; excludes translation] (previously titled FRANKENPLANET);

There is no going back. We are now past the point of irreversible global warming. That means that in the future, where we live, how we live, and the air we breathe are going to be radically altered. In order to survive, we will have to artificially modify nature. NYT bestselling author Tom Kostigen's HACKING PLANET EARTH is a narrative portrait of how we'll set a new course for our future world. Can we make a better Earth? Or might we unleash unforeseen consequences that will bring about mass extinction?

HACKING PLANET EARTH takes us on gripping adventures to underground, off-the-grid, and prototype facilities the world over, where science is exploring the next step in the environmental movement: geoengineering, or artificially modifying nature. Readers will dive into the waters surrounding the Great Barrier Reef, climb to top of mountains deep in the Panamanian jungle, trek through the Sahara Desert, and tunnel underground in Japan and Brazil, to join scientists on the front lines of geoengineering.

VOYAGE OF MERCY: The USS Jamestown, the Irish Famine, and the Remarkable Story of America's First Humanitarian Mission by Stephen Puleo (St. Martin's, March 2020);

More than 5,000 ships left Ireland during the great potato famine in the late 1840s, transporting the starving and the destitute away from their stricken homeland. The first vessel to sail in the other direction, to help the millions unable to escape, was the USS Jamestown, a converted warship, which left Boston in March 1847 loaded with precious food for Ireland. VOYAGE OF MERCY tells the incredible story of Captain Robert Bennet Forbes and the crew of the USS Jamestown as they embarked on a voyage that began a massive eighteen-month demonstration of soaring international goodwill against the backdrop of unfathomable despair—one nation's struggle to survive, and another's effort to provide a lifeline.

NOBODY'S CHILD: A Tragedy, a Trial, and a History of the Insanity Defense by Susan Nordin Vinocour (WW Norton, March 2020).

Dr. Susan Vinocour, a forensic psychologist and former Assistant Prosecutor, provides a ground-level view of the legal treatment of the mentally ill, revealing the deficiencies of not only a flawed justice system but also a world deeply conflicted about the criminally insane. NOBODY'S CHILD tells the story of the legal and cultural history of the Insanity Defense through the lens of a single case: a mentally ill woman named Dorothy Dunn who was charged with second degree murder in the death of her grandchild. Dr. Vinocour, who has worked all her life as an advocate for abused children, was hired to evaluate Mrs. Dunn. Though she swore to herself she would never empower an oppressor, her findings compelled her to a role of unexpected advocate, even though it cost her dearly. NOBODY'S CHILD was shortlisted for the J. Anthony Lukas Work-in-Progress Award.

THE LAST NEGROES AT HARVARD by Kent Garrett and Jeanne Ellsworth (HMH, Feb 2020).

In 1959, Kent Garrett was admitted to Harvard along with seventeen other black freshmen, the largest group of African Americans ever to be admitted at one time. THE LAST NEGROES AT HARVARD is the story of the pioneering black men of the Harvard class of 1963. It awarded its first degree to a black man in 1870, but the class of 1963, with eighteen men, was the first to allow blacks to feel a collective identity. They were a diverse group. They came from farms, prep schools, the Caribbean, and housing projects. They had different skin colors and different ways of coping with the balance of assimilation into a rigid white hierarchy and maintaining—or, for themselves, inventing—the idea of what it means to be black. THE LAST NEGROES AT HARVARD will contextualize the volatile rise of identity politics that has become such an enormous part of contemporary campus experience at Harvard, at Yale, Amherst, Mizzou, Pomona, and countless other places where self-defined groups demand to set their own terms for social engagement. This book takes you into the lives of the men and women in Cambridge on the cusp of the greatest tumult of the Civil Rights Movement to see just how such a collective identity crystallized.

WOULD I LIE TO YOU? The Amazing Power of Being Honest in a World That Lies by Judi Ketteler [formerly titled HONEST LIFE, HAPPY LIFE] (Kensington Books, Dec. 31, 2019) ms. available

What would it mean to commit to unconditional honesty and what impact might that have on our lives? If you've had a conversation consisting of more than a few words with someone today, chances are you've told a lie according to a study that found that people lie at least once every ten minutes. Love may curb the habit slightly (another researcher found that married people lie in one out of every ten conversations with each other). As someone who has struggled with candor, Judi Ketteler decided to start paying attention to how often she lied. Last year Ketteler chronicled the experience of keeping an honesty journal in her New York Times piece "How Honesty Could Make You Happier."

Ketteler expands her investigation in a smart, poignant, at times irreverent narrative, WOULD I LIE TO YOU? She'll delve into the field of research about the study of honesty, interviewing social scientists, psychologists, and behavioral economists in her quest to discover whether there is any such thing as a truly honest life; the difference between honesty that is difficult but necessary, and honesty that is destructive; whether the same approach to honesty works in both our public lives and our private lives; and, interrogates why living an honest life leads to a happier life. An award-winning journalist, Ketteler has written for The New York Times, Better Homes & Gardens, Good Housekeeping, Runner's World, Self, Women's Health, and many others. She's also a regular columnist for Cincinnati Magazine, where she writes pieces about the weirdness of midlife. www.judiketteler.com.

THE SUSPECT: A Deadly Olympic Bombing, the FBI, the Media, and the Man in the Middle by Kent Alexander and Kevin Salwen (Abrams, November 2019).

A contributing source for the Warner Bros.' film Richard Jewell starring Sam Rockwell, Kathy Bates, Jon Hamm, Olivia Wilde, and Paul Walter Hauser, directed by Clint Eastwood.

A gripping insider account of the terrorist bombing at the 1996 Olympic Games that captured the world's attention, and the heroic security guard-turned-suspect at the heart of it all

On July 27, 1996, a hapless former cop turned hypervigilant security guard named Richard Jewell spotted a suspicious bag in Atlanta's Centennial Olympic Park, the town square of the 1996 Summer Games. Inside was a bomb, the largest of its kind in FBI and ATF history. Minutes later, the bomb detonated amid a crowd of fifty thousand people. But thanks to Jewell, it only wounded 111 and killed two, not the untold scores who would have otherwise died. With the eyes of the world on Atlanta, the Games continued. But the pressure to find the bomber was intense. Within seventy-two hours, Jewell went from the hero to the FBI's main suspect. The news leaked and the intense focus on the guard forever changed his life. The worst part: It let the true bomber roam free to strike again.

What really happened that evening during the Olympic Games? The attack left a mark on American history, but most of what we remember is wrong. In a triumph of reporting and access in the tradition of the best investigative journalism, former U.S. Attorney Kent Alexander and former Wall Street Journal reporter Kevin Salwen reconstruct all the events leading up to, during, and after the Olympic bombing from mountains of law enforcement evidence and the extensive personal records of key players, including Richard himself.

The Suspect, the culmination of more than five years of reporting, is a gripping story of the rise of domestic terrorism in America, the advent of the 24/7 news cycle, and an innocent man's fight to clear his name.

THE WITCHES ARE COMING by Lindy West (Hachette Books, Nov. 5, 2019) (previously titled CHOOSING THE LIE);

In THE WITCHES ARE COMING, the firebrand New York Times columnist and bestselling author of Shrill provides a brilliant and incisive look at how patriarchy, intolerance, and misogyny have conquered not just politics but American culture itself. The book lays out Lindy's grand theory of America: seemingly disparate or even insignificant threads from throughout the past few hundred years gathered into one sprawling, funny, illuminating tapestry. The title is derived from Lindy's NY Times column: <https://nyti.ms/2zhBUqA>

Lindy is the author of the New York Times bestselling and award-winning SHRILL (Hachette Books, 2016), which was named one of the Best Books of 2016 by NPR, Esquire, The Los Angeles Times, and more, Winner of the 2016 Stranger Genius Award and the 2017 PNBA Book Award, Lindy West was praised by The New York Times Book Review as "one of the most distinctive voices advancing feminist politics through humor." The Washington Post says "West defies clichés both by being persistently hilarious and deeply loving."

SHRILL: Notes from a Loud Woman by Lindy West (Hachette Books, May 2016; paperback March 2017)

<http://www.lindywest.net>

Guardian and GQ writer Lindy West's SHRILL is about the making of a funny feminist coming of age in a popular culture that is hostile to women (especially fat women) and doesn't think women (especially feminists) are or can be funny. Katha Pollitt filtered through David Sedaris, Lindy is one of the most popular voices on the web: Provocative, profane, vulnerable, skewering, scatological, personal: think Roxane Gay (if she could make you spit-take) or an American Caitlin Moran (a huge Lindy booster). SHRILL is her comic polemic memoir, interwoven chapters about what it means to become self-aware the hard way, to go from wanting to be silent and invisible to earning a living speaking for the silenced in all caps. Lindy narrates her life in a world where not all stories are created equal, not everybody's bodies are treated with equal respect—where jokes can be weaponized to hurt or deployed to spread what she has come to call “radical empathy.”

 FARM + LAND'S Back to the Land: A Guide to Modern Outdoor Life By Freddie Pikovsky and Nicole Caldwell (Chronicle, Nov. 2019. [*Excludes UK; translation rights only])

FARM + LAND is a practical and story-driven guidebook for those of us who aspire to abandon our cubicles for a simpler, more grounded kind of life.

A meld between Cabin Porn and Norwegian Wood, FARM + LAND's BACK TO THE LAND will take readers across the country, hearing the stories of how first-generation farmers, foresters, viticulturists, and more, abandoned their city lives and came to live closer to the land. Featuring 250-300 photographs as well as how-tos such as Growing Wormwood and Making Absinthe, Foraging Edible Berries, Building a Yurt, and Crafting Snake Skin Boots, FARM + LAND will be the perfect gift for those of us who want to do more than just fantasize about a simpler life. We want to hold it in our hands.

Freddie Pikovsky is the lead author of The Off Track Planet Guide to the Young, Sexy, and Broke (Running Press 2013), which has sold over 50,000 copies. He later developed a series of Off Track Planet Guides, which have been a mainstay at Urban Outfitters ever since. In addition, Freddie runs the Off Track Planet Twitter handle, which has over 30,000 followers. Nicole Caldwell has a master's from Columbia's School of Journalism, and is the former editor-in-chief of Playgirl Magazine. In 2009, Nicole left Manhattan for a 65-acre organic farm, animal sanctuary, and sustainability campus called Better Farm in Northern New York, where she spends her days sipping coffee from an enameled mug and heading out into the wilderness for her day's work.

IT SHOULDN'T BE THIS HARD TO SERVE YOUR COUNTRY: Our Broken Government and the Plight of Veterans by David Shulkin (Public Affairs, Nov. 2019)

A memoir by Dr. David Shulkin, the former Secretary of Veterans Affairs who was appointed by President Obama and served under Trump until he was fired by a tweet. Shulkin describes his fight to save veteran health care from partisan politics and how his efforts were ultimately derailed by a small group of unelected officials appointed by the Trump White House. Known in health care circles for his ability to turn around ailing hospitals, Dr. David Shulkin was originally brought into government by President Obama to save the beleaguered Department of Veterans Affairs. When President Trump appointed him as secretary of the VA, Shulkin was as shocked as anyone. Yet this surprise was trivial compared to what Shulkin encountered as secretary: a team of political appointees devoted to stopping anyone -- including the secretary himself -- who stood in the way of privatizing the agency and implementing their political agenda. In this uninhibited memoir, Shulkin opens up about why the government has long struggled to provide good medical care to military veterans and the plan he had to solve these problems. This is a book about the commitment we make to the men and women who risk their lives fighting for our country, how the VA was finally beginning to live up to it, and why the new administration may now be taking us in the wrong direction.

JOE BIDEN: A Life of Trial and Redemption by Jules Witcover (William Morrow; revised edition Sept. 2019);

Newly updated, the definitive biography of the forty-seventh Vice President of the United States, Joe Biden, which examines the fascinating life of a man who has shaped Washington politics for more than four decades, including his years in the Obama White House.

Raised in the working-class towns of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and Wilmington, Delaware, and with lackluster grades in school and no particular goals, Joe Biden shocked the nation in 1972 when he became one of the youngest elected senators in U.S. history. Over the course of four decades, he carved a legacy for himself as one of the most respected legislators in the country, and was a close friend and partner to President Barack Obama, who valued his vice president's vast experience in domestic and foreign affairs.

Yet Biden's political success has been matched by personal tragedy and countless challenges. Within two months of being elected in 1972, Biden lost his wife, Neilia, and his young daughter in a tragic accident—a loss that brought him to the nadir of despair and shook his resolve to stay in politics. He suffered two brain aneurysms and career-threatening gaffes and miscues. In 2015, he lost his eldest son, Beau, to brain cancer. Now, Biden is back in the spotlight as the frontrunner in a crowded Democratic field challenging Donald Trump in the 2020 presidential election.

Based on exhaustive research by one of Washington's most prolific journalists, including numerous exclusive interviews with Biden's confidants and family members, as well as President Obama and the former vice president himself, Joe Biden goes beyond conventional biography to track the forces that have shaped a man who, with his plainspoken style and inspiring life story, has resonated with millions of Americans and whose work has shaped modern American life.

Jules Witcover is one of the most distinguished and recognized of the veteran Washington correspondents. A former political columnist for the Baltimore Sun, he is the author of numerous books, including 85 Days: The Last Campaign of Robert Kennedy, Very Strange Bedfellows: The Short and Unhappy Marriage of Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew, The Party of the People: A History of the Democrats, and The Year the Dream Died: Revisiting 1968 in America.

THE MANY LIVES OF MICHAEL BLOOMBERG by Eleanor Randolph (S&S, Sept. 2019).

(Previously titled THE BLOOMBERG PHENOMENON).

With unprecedented access, the veteran New York Times reporter and editorial writer who covered New York City and state politics offers a revealing portrait of one of the richest and famously private/public figures in the country. Business genius, inventor, innovator, publisher, philanthropist, activist, and sly wit Michael Bloomberg.

Michael Bloomberg's life sounds like an exaggerated version of The American Story, except his adventures are real. From modest Jewish middle class (and Eagle Scout) to Harvard MBA to Salomon Brothers hot shot (where he gets "sent upstairs" and later fired) to creator of the machine that would change Wall Street and the rest of the world and make him a billionaire. Randolph's account of Bloomberg's life and time reads almost like a novel, a quintessentially American story. She explains the "machine" he invented that gave and continues to give instant access to an infinite amount of information to bankers and investors on how, what, and where to invest, and how it changed the financial universe. Randolph recounts one day not long ago when the Bloomberg machine briefly blipped and the whole world's financial marketplace came to a halt. Randolph recounts Mayor Bloomberg's vigorous approach to New York city's care—including his attempts at education reform, contract control, anti-smoking and anti-obesity campaigns, green climate control, and his political adventures with both aides and opponents.

After a surprising third term as Mayor, Bloomberg returned to his business and doubles its already tremendous worth. The chapter that describes this is one of the most revealing of his temperament and energy and vision as well as how he spends his "private" time—private but convivial. Bloomberg's philanthropies are education, anti-NRA, and supporting a cleaner environment. He is a moderate liberal in a time when that quality holds the future of the Democratic Party and the country to account.

RARE BREED: How to Stand Out, Be Dangerously Original and Unleash the Leader You Were Born to Be by Sunny Bonnell and Ashleigh Hansberger (HarperOne, Sept. 2019).

An unconventional business book for the rebels and misfits—the Rare Breeds—who don't fit the traditional mold, offering an approach that's anything but business as usual.

What if your biggest weaknesses are actually your greatest strengths?

Sunny Bonnell and Ashleigh Hansberger, award-winning brand consultants and founders of Motto, bring their wisdom and insights to this radical "outside the box" business guide written specifically for the mavericks, oddballs, and visionaries they call Rare Breeds. While most advice guides encourage you to change your inherent characteristics to get the job, get the promotion, get the client, Bonnell and Hansberger identify a different approach: instead of trying to conform, march to the beat of your own drum. By following your own path, you'll find your success.

For readers of Jason Fried and David Heinemeier Hansson's REWORK and Jen Sincero's YOU ARE A BADASS, RARE BREED is a roadmap for reviving the untapped leadership potential hidden in us all. From their perch as award-winning leadership consultants, Sunny Bonnell and Ashleigh Hansberger know that bold, template-shattering leaders, who they identify as “Rare Breed” leaders, don’t achieve results by playing by the rules. Instead, Rare Breeds take traits once considered vices—being rebellious, weird, hot-blooded, or instinctive—and wield them as tools of creation and growth, turning those “vices” into “virtues.” Bonnell and Hansberger have identified nine “virtues” that Rare Breed leaders harness to create opportunity and foment change. Through pithy mantras drawn from a vast array of business and inspirational stories (including their own story), they show how individuals and companies have declared war on the ordinary—and along the way, forged a new and winning paradigm for tomorrow’s leaders. RARE BREED aims to transform the way we think, lead, and live.

BLESS THIS MESS: A Modern Guide to Faith and Parenting in a Chaotic World by Reverend Molly Baskette and Dr. Ellen O’Donnell (Convergent Books, PRH, August 2019); [Translation only; excludes UK] (Previously titled FEAR NOT PARENTING)

Where the bestselling book CRUCIAL CONVERSATIONS meets the wisdom of THE BLESSING OF A SKINNED KNEE, BLESS THIS MESS pairs spiritual guidance with child development to provide practical solutions for parents as they raise their children in this age of anxiety. Based on research and weaving in teachings from the Bible and pastoral tradition, the authors also share their own personal successes and failures with a relatable sense of humor and profound honesty. Ellen O’Donnell, Ph.D., is a child psychologist at Massachusetts General Hospital for Children and Shriners Hospital for Children-Boston, as well as an Instructor at Harvard Medical School. Molly Phinney Baskette, MDiv., is the Senior Minister of First Congregational Church of Berkeley, CA, and the author/co-author of several series of books, including grief workbooks for children and practical how-tos for church renewal. HOT COLD HEAVY LIGHT: 100 Art Writings, 1988-2017 by Peter Schjeldahl (Abrams, June 2019). [Translation only; excludes UK]

“To read Peter Schjeldahl,” wrote Art in America, “is not to agree or disagree, but rather to enter the enchanting flow of a fertile imagination.” HOT COLD HEAVY LIGHT: 100 Art Writings, 1988-2017 invites you to drown in that enchantment. Chosen from uncollected work for Seven Days, The Village Voice, and The New Yorker, every essay in the book contains at least one insight, aperçu, or original formulation forcing you to reconsider an artist you thought you knew, the relationship of that artist to the world of art, or the relation of art to life.

Peter has taught at Harvard, won a Guggenheim fellowship, the Frank Jewett Mather Award for distinguished art criticism, and is the first full-time art critic to be hired as such by The New Yorker since Harold Rosenberg exalted the Abstract Expressionists.

The book has been conceived for maximum usefulness and maximum pleasure. The energy of Peter’s prose and the intensity of his intelligent attention are riveting. Each essay is an occasion for a concentrated performance—there are no throwaways among Peter’s pieces. They’re like conversations with an interlocutor able to fluently explain the hydra-headed art scene by legibly rendering his aesthetic impressions for your understanding. For more than three decades, Peter has been our American Baudelaire, a flâneur who, as chronicler of our art world, also embodies an Emersonian ideal of openness and clarity. HOT COLD HEAVY LIGHT, with its dazzling, Wildean introduction, is a summa of his career, and is writing that deserves to be given permanent availability in book form. Peter’s visibility and centrality at The New Yorker, plus his extracurricular engagements, is an extraordinary platform and will guarantee considerable review attention.

THE FATHER OF ALL DAD GUIDES: From A(doring) to Z(addy) by Madeleine Davies and Tara Jacoby (St. Martin’s Press, May 2019)

Of all the mammalian species of North America, few are as paradoxically mysterious and demanding of attention as the human father of the United States. Quiet yet steady in his affection and deafeningly loud when he’s mad, our dads—as much as we love them—are a particularly exciting study, which is why the authors created this guide as an aid for readers to identify themselves (if you happen to be a dad), their dads (if you happen to have a dad), dads on television (often a stand-in when your dad’s not around), and dads in the wild.

In A Guide to American Dads from A(doring) to Z(addy), you will learn how to identify fathers through:

- Their markings. Some dads have mustaches. Others do not!
- Dad calls. These include: “I’ll turn this car around right now” and “Can’t you ask your mom about that?”
- Migration patterns. Why does Dad consistently ignore directions when he clearly doesn’t know where he is going?
- Hibernation. Dads are tired all the time.
- Defining characteristics. All dads are different, but they typically fall into at least one of the categories we’ve collected here. Is your dad obsessed with barbecuing? He might be a grill dad. Did he only really begin to see women as people deserving of political and social equality after he had daughters? That right there is the feminist dad!

Davies was a Senior Writer at Jezebel, where her articles routinely got 100,000+ unique page views, and her podcast gets 15k+ listeners a week. Her article, "Becoming Ugly," was shared over 1.2 million times. Jacoby is a freelance illustrator whose unique style has garnered a devoted following. Perfect for readers of Stuff White People Like and *Sh*t My Dad Says*.

TWO WEEKS IN NOVEMBER: The Astonishing Untold Story of the Operation that Topped Mugabe by Douglas Rogers (UK & South African publication April 2019),

Two Weeks in November is the thrilling, surreal, unbelievable and often very funny true story of four would-be enemies -- a high ranking politician, an exiled human rights lawyer, a dangerous spy and a low-key white businessman turned political fixer -- who team up to help unseat one of the world's longest reigning dictators, Robert Mugabe in Zimbabwe.

What begins as an improbable adventure destined for failure, marked by a mixture of bravery, strategic cunning and bumbling naiveté, soon turns into the most sophisticated diplomatic-political-military operation in African history. By virtue of their being together, the unlikely team of misfit rivals is suddenly in position to spin what might have been seen as an illegal coup into a mass popular uprising that the world – and millions of Zimbabweans – will enthusiastically support.

Impeccably researched, deftly written, and told in the style of a contemporary political thriller, Two Weeks in November is Ocean's 11 meets Game of Thrones: a real-world life or death chess match for the future of a country where the political endgame is never a forgone conclusion.

NEW TO BIG: How Established Businesses Can Grow Like Startups by David S. Kidder and Christina Wallace, (Crown Business, April 2019). [Translation only; excludes UK.] (Formerly titled THE GROWTH OS)

<http://bionicsolution.com/>

In NEW TO BIG serial entrepreneurs David Kidder and Christina Wallace reveal the blueprint for igniting growth revolutions inside established companies—funding portfolios of startups and monitoring their progress as they grow from new ideas into big businesses. When David Kidder was invited to speak at GE's annual leadership conference in 2012, he posed a rather unexpected question from the stage down to then-chairman and CEO Jeff Immelt, "How many $50 million companies did you launch last year?" The answer was zero. But Immelt, rather than being angry or offended by the radical candor, admitted to the 700 leaders in attendance, "That was the most important question in the thirty-seven years of this conference." The fact is, as Kidder shows in NEW TO BIG, entrenched thinking and outdated bureaucracy is at war with new ideas. Established companies are skilled at growing big businesses into even bigger ones. Entrepreneurs and early-stage investors, on the other hand, are skilled at discovering new opportunities and turning them into big businesses. NEW TO BIG combines the best of both worlds, introducing established companies to the methodology, tools, and systems of entrepreneurship and venture capital. It creates a way of working that they call the Growth Operating System. NEW TO BIG is designed to unpack the Growth Operating System that veteran venture capitalists and successful entrepreneurs use to discover the future in the face of the unknowable.

A IS FOR ADVICE (The Reassuring Kind): Wisdom for Pregnancy by Ilana Stanger-Ross (William Morrow; March 2019)

Where WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN YOU'RE EXPECTING meets OPERATING INSTRUCTIONS with a dash of CALL THE MIDWIFE, A IS FOR ADVICE is a beautifully illustrated collection of reassuring stories and tips on pregnancy, birth, and the early postpartum period to help guide and reassure expectant mothers through this emotional, life-changing time. Experienced registered midwife Ilana Stanger-Ross does not judge or champion a particular type of birth experience. Going beyond the "birth wars," she provides information to empower you to be your own advocate and to feel confident that your choices are right for your circumstances, desires, and needs. Arranged alphabetically like a baby's book—C is for Control; F is for Fear; W is for Water—A IS FOR ADVICE offers twenty-six lessons on carrying, delivering, and caring for your baby. Throughout, Stanger-Ross's guiding message is heartfelt and simple: "Be gentle with yourself." Warm and wise, illustrated with charming one-color line drawings, A IS FOR ADVICE is a feminist guide to help new mothers-to-be—and their partners—truly enjoy this beautiful life-changing experience. Ilana is also the author of the acclaimed novel SIMA'S UNDERGARMENTS FOR WOMEN (Viking, 2010).

AN AMERICAN SUMMER: Love and Death in Chicago by Alex Kotlowitz (Nan A Talese/PRH; March 2019)

From the bestselling author of There Are No Children Here, a richly textured, heartrending portrait of love and death in Chicago's most turbulent neighborhoods.

The numbers are staggering: over the past twenty years in Chicago, 14,033 people have been killed and another roughly 60,000 wounded by gunfire. What does that do to the spirit of individuals and community? Kotlowitz set out to chronicle one summer in the city, writing about individuals who have emerged from the violence and whose stories capture the capacity—and the breaking point—of the human heart and soul. The result is a spellbinding collection of deeply intimate profiles that upend what we think we know about gun violence in America. Among others, we meet a man who as a teenager killed a rival gang member and twenty years later is still trying to come to terms with what he's done; a devoted school social worker struggling with her favorite student, who refuses to give evidence in the shooting death of his best friend; the witness to a wrongful police shooting who can't shake what he has seen; and an aging former gang leader who builds a place of refuge for himself and his friends.

Applying the close-up, empathic reporting that made There Are No Children Here a modern classic, Kotlowitz offers a piercingly honest portrait of a city in turmoil. These sketches of those left standing will get into your bones. This one summer will stay with you.

THERE ARE NO CHILDREN HERE The Story of Two Boys Growing Up in the Other America by Alex Kotlowitz (Doubleday/Nan A. Talese Books 1992;

The bestselling true story of brothers Lafayette and Pharoah Rivers, ages 11 and 9 at the start, brings home the horror of trying to make it in a violence-ridden public housing project. The boys live in a gang-plagued war zone on Chicago's West Side, literally learning how to dodge bullets the way kids in the suburbs learn to chase baseballs. "If I grow up, I'd like to be a bus driver," says Lafayette at one point. That's if, not when--spoken with the complete innocence of a child. The book's title comes from a comment made by the brothers' mother as she and author Alex Kotlowitz contemplate the challenges of living in such a hostile environment: "There are no children here," she says. "They've seen too much to be children." This book humanizes the problem of inner-city pathology, makes readers care about Lafayette and Pharoah more than they may expect to, and offers a sliver of hope buried deep within a world of chaos. Alex Kotlowitz is the bestselling author of three previous books, including An American Summer: Love and Death in Chicago (Nan A. Talese/Doubleday 2019) and the national bestseller There Are No Children Here, selected by the New York Public Library as one of the 150 most important books of the twentieth century. The Other Side of the River was awarded the Chicago Tribune's Heartland Prize for Nonfiction. His work has appeared in The New Yorker, The New York Times Magazine and on This American Life. His documentary work includes The Interrupters, for which he received a Film Independent Spirit Award and an Emmy. His other honors include a George Polk Award, two Peabodys, the Helen B. Bernstein Award, and the Robert F. Kennedy Journalism Award. He teaches at Northwestern University.

SHADE: A Tale of Two Presidents by Pete Souza (Little Brown, October 16, 2018; paperback Oct. 22, 2019)

By former White House photographer and #1 New York Times bestselling author of OBAMA: An Intimate Portrait. SHADE is a portrait in contrasts, telling the tale of two presidencies through a series of powerful visual juxtapositions—with Pete Souza's unforgettable images of President Obama given new power and meaning when framed by tweets, headlines, quotes, and other material from the first 500 days of the Trump administration.

When Souza left the White House in 2017, he didn't know what it meant to "throw shade"—but soon learned he was doing it, by posting photographs on Instagram from the Obama years along with captions that vividly define the contrast between the Obama and Trump administrations. Since then, he has become a potent force in American life, offering incisive political criticism alongside powerful reminders of the best our country has to offer to nearly two million followers.

More than a sharp compendium of "claps back," this collection of Souza's indelible photography of a historic time is a touchstone to an era of integrity. Souza's work reminds us of the highest American values we share; they are a reminder of a President we could believe in, and gives the courage to stand up and speak out for what we believe in.

#1 New York Times Best Seller

During his time as President, Barack Obama has embodied the diversity of our country in a way that has made us feel that, no matter what divided us, we were fundamentally the same. As we move forward into a new era of American Politics, where the divisions of our country threaten schism, the American people will want to remember how it has felt to have someone of President Obama's character, integrity, and eloquence representing us to the world. Chief White House

Photographer Pete Souza has been by the President's side with unique access to the most compelling and intimate moments over the 44th President's eight years in office. Souza's shares 300 photos from his collection of over 2 million to craft an inspiring and authentic portrait of the man we have been proud to call our own. While Pete Souza's iconic photos, his never-before-shared stories, and his friendship with the most powerful man in the world, will be inadequate replacement for the man who, for eight years, has made us believe the best in ourselves, it will be something to hold onto, to page through, to show our children, to inspire us, and to remind us of the promise President Barack Obama made as he prepared to step down from office: that the best for our country is yet to come.

FULLY HUMAN: A Three-Step Path to Productivity, Happiness, and Success by Susan Packard (Tarcher/Penguin, Feb. 2019); [Translation only; excludes UK] (Previously titled EMOTIONS AT WORK.)

HGTV cofounder Susan Packard launches the next chapter in emotional intelligence (EQ), and shows how employees and business leaders alike can increase their satisfaction and productivity—in work and life—via her three-step path toward EQ Fitness. Success is an inside job. EQ Fit leaders know that the emotional health of their organizations is key to their economic health, and it all begins with tending to one's own emotional fitness. As technological advances increase efficiency, old-school hierarchies are fading fast, and instead of top-down bravado, there's a new path forward. Packard shows how the most successful companies are rich with "connector" emotions like hope, empathy, and trust building. She tackles unconventional topics, like how workaholicism keeps us emotionally adolescent and how forgiveness belongs in the workplace, too. The best leaders balance power with grace, and everyone can effectively use both resilience—an ability to endure tough situations and make tough decisions—and vulnerability—a willingness to open up, change, and admit when we need help—to be more effective. In FULLY HUMAN, Packard offers exciting new tools so we can bring the best of ourselves to all we do.

ANTISEMITISM: Here and Now by Deborah Lipstadt (Schocken/Knopf, January 29, 2019); formerly titled THE NEW ANTISEMITISM.

In ANTISEMITISM: Here and Now, Professor Deborah Lipstadt, the preeminent American historian of Holocaust Studies and Modern Jewish History, examines the root causes of the spike in anti-Jewish violence and vandalism that have plagued Europe and America in the last several years.

Over the last decade, there has been a noticeable uptick in antisemitic rhetoric and incidents by left-wing groups targeting Jewish students and Jewish organizations on American college campuses. Jews in countries throughout Europe have been attacked by terrorists. And the re-emergence of the white nationalist movement in America, complete with Nazi slogans and imagery, has brought to mind the fascist displays of the 1930s. Where is all this hatred coming from? Is there any significant difference between left-wing and right-wing antisemitism? What role has the anti-Zionist movement played? And what can be done to combat this latest manifestation of an ancient hatred? In a series of letters to an imagined college student and imagined colleague, both of whom are perplexed by this resurgence, Deborah Lipstadt gives us her own superbly reasoned, brilliantly argued, and sure-to-be-controversial responses to these troubling questions.

Comparable to the polemical works of Christopher Hitchens, ANTISEMITISM will be argumentative, controversial, and accessible. It will inform opinion and demand response. The award-winning author of The Eichmann Trial and Denial: Holocaust History on Trial gives us a penetrating and provocative analysis of the hate that will not die, focusing on its current, virulent incarnations on both the political right and left, and on what can be done about it.

Lipstadt is also the author of DENIAL: Holocaust History on Trial (formerly HISTORY ON TRIAL, Ecco 2005; world rights) and DENYING THE HOLOCAUST (Free Press 1993; Plume 1994).

NEW EROTICA FOR FEMINISTS by Caitlin Kunkel, Brooke Preston, Fiona Taylor and Carrie Wittmer (Dutton Plume; Sceptre UK, November 2018) <https://www.neweroticaforfeminists.com/>

“He calls me into his office and closes the door....to promote me. He promotes me again and again. I am wild with ecstasy.”

And so began the feminist erotica daydream that sparked a viral sensation. NEW EROTICA FOR FEMINISTS is a sly, satirical take on all the things that turn feminists on: power, equality, and oh yeah, Tom Hardy in a Wild Feminist t-shirt stocking their fridge with LaCroix. This book balances the raucous and light-hearted satirical subversion of surprisingly “safe for work” erotica and porn tropes, with a deeper, powerful feminist message about the role of women, sex, and inequality in our society—and how far we still have to go. With its razor-sharp edge and laugh-out-loud humor, NEW EROTICA FOR FEMINISTS is a book women and other enlightened readers will eagerly gift their friends and give themselves. The book is based on the authors’ Feb 2018 satirical piece in McSweeney’s that has gone viral, leaving feminists wanting more. In the first few weeks, it was shared over 100,000 times on Facebook and read over half a million times on McSweeney’s. Clearly, imagining a world where porn and erotica were written by feminists resonates—the timing is perfect to expand this into a book of erotic adventures that every feminist needs.

NEW EROTICA FOR FEMINISTS taps into the zeitgeist of the #metoo and Times Up movement and will appeal to readers of edgy, feminist voices such as Lindy West, Caitlin Moran, Amy Schumer, Jessi Klein et al.

Written by co-founders and editors of the comedy and satire site for women, The Belladonna and based on their piece in McSweeney's, New Erotica for Feminists.

THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF THE SNOWMAN by Bob Eckstein (Globe Pequot, Sept. 2018)

A thoroughly entertaining exploration, this book travels back in time to shed light on the snowman's enigmatic past—from the present day, in which the snowman reigns as the King of Kitsch, to the Dark Ages, when the very first snowman was created. Eckstein's curiosity about the topic began playfully enough, but soon snowballed into a (mostly) earnest quest of chasing Frosty around the world, into museums and libraries, and seeking out the advice of leading historians and scholars. The result is a riveting history that reaches back through centuries and across cultures—sweeping from fifteenth-century Italian snowballs to eighteenth-century Russian ice sculptures to the "white-trash years" (1975-2000). The snowman is not just part of our childhood memories, but is an integral part of our world culture, appearing—much like a frozen Forrest Gump—alongside dignitaries and celebrities during momentous events. Again and again, the snowman pops up in rare prints, paintings, early movies, advertising and, over the past century, in every art form imaginable. And the jolly snowman—ostensibly as pure as the driven snow—has a dark past full of political intrigue, sex, and violence. With over two hundred illustrations, THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF THE SNOWMAN is a truly original winter classic—smart, surprisingly enlightening, and quite simply the coolest book ever. <http://bobeckstein.com/>

RESCUING LADYBUGS: Inspirational Moments with Animals that Changed the World by Jennifer Skiff (New World Library; Sept. 2018); <http://jenniferskiff.com/> (Jennifer’s backlist is on page 44).

Jennifer Skiff always believed that all animals, from the dog to the spider, had souls; and that we have a divine relationship to all animals. Bestselling author and animal rights advocate Skiff (author of GOD STORIES and DIVINITY OF DOGS), presents her next compilation of stories by recognized leaders in the global animal rights and compassion movement. In each story, a contributor shares an experience with another animal that affected them so profoundly it caused them to change the world; to advocate for animal welfare and rescue animals from suffering wherever possible.

Countless times throughout our lives, we’re presented with a choice to help another soul. RESCUING LADYBUGS highlights the true stories of remarkable people who didn’t look away from seemingly impossible-to-change situations and instead worked to save animals. Prepare to be transported to Borneo to release orangutans, Brazil to protect jaguars, Africa to connect with chimpanzees and elephants, the Maldives to free mantas, and Indonesia, the only place where dragons still exist on earth. Each story inspires and illuminates the divine connection between all species. A call to action for all to become part of the compassion movement.

THE GOOD NEIGHBOR: The Life and Work of Fred McFeely Rogers by Max King and Pat Mulcahy (Abrams Books, Sept. 2018)

Fred Rogers' seminal tv program, Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, was on the air for 31 seasons, shepherding American children through the tumultuous 60s, the radicalized 70s, into the 80s and 90s, and well into the new century. During times of great cultural upheaval, Rogers was the one constant. Every day, we would watch as he hung up his jacket and took off his shoes, as he laced up his sneakers and zipped into one of his many cardigans, all the while singing to his viewers, making us feel that, no matter what our religion, our social status or our creed, we were the most important part of his day. As Maxwell King, Senior Fellow and former Director of the Fred Rogers Center for Early Learning and Children's Media, will show in his pointed biography, The Good Neighbor, that sentiment is absolutely true.

CHESAPEAKE REQUIEM: A Year With the Watermen of Vanishing Tangier Island by Earl Swift (HarperCollins, August 2018) <http://www.earlswift.com/>

Tangier Island, Virginia is a community unique on the American landscape. Mapped by John Smith in 1608, settled during the American Revolution, the tiny sliver of mud is home to 470 hardy people who live an isolated and challenging existence, with one foot in the 21st century and another in times long passed. They are separated from their countrymen by the nation's largest estuary, and a twelve-mile boat trip across often tempestuous water—the same water that for generations has made Tangier's fleet of small fishing boats a chief source for the rightly prized Chesapeake Bay blue crab, and has lent the island its claim to fame as the softshell crab capital of the world.

Yet for all of its long history, and despite its tenacity, Tangier is disappearing. The very water that has long sustained it is erasing the island day by day, wave by wave. It has lost two-thirds of its land since 1850, and still its shoreline retreats by fifteen feet a year—meaning this storied place will likely succumb first among U.S. towns to the effects of climate change. Experts reckon that, barring heroic intervention by the federal government, islanders could be forced to abandon their home within 25 years. Meanwhile, the graves of their forebears are being sprung open by encroaching tides, and the conservative and deeply religious Tangiermen ponder the end times. Chesapeake Requiem is an intimate look at the island's past, present and tenuous future, by an acclaimed journalist who spent much of the past two years living among Tangier's people, crabbing and oystering with its watermen, and observing its long traditions and odd ways. What emerges is the poignant tale of a world that has, quite nearly, gone by—and a leading-edge report on the coming fate of countless coastal communities.

A BITE-SIZED HISTORY OF FRANCE: Gastronomic Tales of Revolution, War and Enlightenment by Stephane Henaut and Jeni Mitchell (New Press, July 2018)

From the cassoulet that won a war to the crepe that doomed Napoleon, from the new foods borne of crusades and colonization to the rebellions sparked by bread and salt, the history of France is intimately entwined with its gastronomic pursuits. A witty exploration of the facts and legends surrounding some of the most popular French foods and wines by a French cheesemonger and an American academic, A Bite-Sized History of France tells the compelling and often surprising story of France from the Roman era to modern times. Traversing the cuisines of France's most famous cities as well as its underexplored regions, this innovative social history explores the impact of war, imperialism, and global trade, the age-old tension between tradition and innovation, and the ways in which food has been used over the centuries to prop up social and political identities. From Roquefort and absinthe to couscous and Calvados, these tales will delight and edify even the most seasoned lovers of food, history and all things French.

GOODBYE, SWEET GIRL: A Story of Domestic Violence and Survival by Kelly Sundberg [formerly IT WILL LOOK LIKE A SUNSET: A Memoir] (HarperCollins, June 2018) [Translation only; excludes UK]

When Kelly Sundberg's piece about domestic violence, "It Will Look Like a Sunset," was published by Guernica magazine it was heralded as the must-read piece to explain why women stay and one of the most read pieces in Guernica's history, selected for the 2015 Best American Essays anthology. A moving portrait about the see-saw of love/violence that is symptomatic of abusive relationships, one reviewer said, "We come out of her essay believing that a partner can be both loving and dangerous. Warm and monstrous. A good father and a frightening husband." Like Jeannette Walls' THE GLASS CASTLE and Mary Karr's THE LIAR'S CLUB, Sundberg's story of survival is ultimately a triumphant one.

Sundberg has garnered support from writers like Rebecca Solnit and Cheryl Strayed; her outspokenness on domestic violence, through her speeches and articles, will no doubt continue to hit a political and cultural nerve as well.

SHARP: The Women Who Made an Art of Having an Opinion by Michelle Dean (Grove/Atlantic, April 2018)

Critical, intelligent, and utterly readable, SHARP will discern the matriarchal lineage of young women who settled in New York City with the intention of making their names in the world of letters, sparring in the intellectual scum, and settling the issues of the day with opinions more sophisticated, vigorous, and lethally witty than the men who were their peers. Dorothy Parker, Rebecca West, Mary McCarthy, Hannah Arendt, Susan Sontag, Joan Didion, Janet Malcolm, Renata Adler, Pauline Kael, and Nora Ephron—these are the main characters of this family romance. Their lives intertwine. They enable each other and feud, and manufacture unique spaces and voices, and, Michelle shows, haunt each other. Combining biography, original research, critical reading, and gossip, SHARP brings to life the unemptied ashtrays, the editorial rows, the romantic entanglements, the ideological umbrage, the acidic reviews, the corrosive parodies, the principled stands, the loyalties and defections of these women as they invented new journalistic opportunities for women and brought new sensibilities to the reading public.

INFIDELITY: Why Men and Women Cheat by Kenneth Paul Rosenberg, M.D. (Da Capo Press; April 2018)

[Translation only, excludes UK & Commonwealth]

Infidelity is a key social issue of the 21st century, no longer confined to “cheaters” bars or secret rendezvous during business trips. The Internet is a technological playground for philanderers, turning previously out-of-reach fantasies into instant opportunities. And in both genders, infidelity—emotional, virtual, and sexual—is on the rise. In his new book, INFIDELITY: Why Men and Women Cheat, renowned sex and addiction specialist Kenneth Paul Rosenberg, M.D. draws from the latest research in neuroscience and his own clinical practice to reveal the mechanics of the sexual brain. And through concrete rules, Dr. Rosenberg guides couples on how to prevent cheating, stop it from progressing, and repair the damage caused by an affair. INFIDELITY is poised to become a classic guide for men and women to help them understand and overcome their own self-inflicted barriers to love and commitment and discover their true sexual and romantic potential.

CHEFS, DRUGS AND ROCK & ROLL: How Food Lovers, Free Spirits, Misfits and Wanderers Created a New American Profession by Andrew Friedman (Ecco/HarperCollins, February 2018).

Chefs, Drugs and Rock & Roll transports readers back in time to witness the remarkable evolution of the American restaurant chef in the 1970s and 1980s. Friedman goes inside Chez Panisse and other Bay Area restaurants to show how the politically charged backdrop of Berkeley helped spark this new profession; into the historically underrated community of Los Angeles chefs, including a young Wolfgang Puck; and into the clash of cultures between established French chefs in New York City and the American game changers behind the Quilted Giraffe, River Café, and other storied establishments. Along the way, the chefs, their struggles, their cliques, and, of course, their restaurants are brought to life in vivid, memorable detail. As the '80s unspool, we watch the profession evolve as American masters like Thomas Keller rise, and watch the genesis of a “chef nation” as chefs start crisscrossing the country for work and special events and legendary hangouts like Blue Ribbon become social focal points, all as the industry-altering Food Network shimmers on the horizon.

A (mostly) oral history told primarily in the words of the people who lived it—from writers like Ruth Reichl to chefs like Jeremiah Tower and Jonathan Waxman—in an unparalleled 360-degree re-creation of the industry and the times through the perspectives not only of the pioneering chefs but also of line cooks, front-of-house personnel, investors, and critics who had front-row seats to this extraordinary transformation.

DREAM BIG DREAMS: Photographs from Barack Obama's Inspiring and Historic Presidency by Pete Souza (Hachette Book Group/Young Readers, November 21, 2017)

From former Chief Official White House Photographer Pete Souza comes a book for young readers that highlights Barack Obama's historic presidency and the qualities and actions that make him so beloved.

Pete Souza served as Chief Official White House Photographer for President Obama's full two terms. He was with the President during more crucial moments than anyone else—and he photographed them all, capturing scenes both classified and candid. Throughout his historic presidency, Obama engaged with young people as often as he could, encouraging them to be their best and do their best and to always “dream big dreams.” In this timeless and timely keepsake volume that features over seventy-five full-color photographs, Souza shows the qualities of President Obama that make him both a great leader and an extraordinary man. With behind-the-scenes anecdotes of some iconic photos alongside photos with his family, colleagues, and other world leaders, Souza tells the story of a president who made history and still made time to engage with even the youngest citizens of the country he served. By the author of Obama: An Intimate Portrait, the definitive visual biography of Barack Obama's presidency, Dream Big Dreams was created especially for young readers and not only provides a beautiful portrait of a president but shows the true spirit of the man. COUNTING BACKWARDS: A Doctor's Notes on Anesthesia by H.J. Przybylo, M.D. (W.W. Norton, Nov. 2017; paperback Nov. 2018); [Translation only; excludes UK];

A moving exploration of the most common but most mysterious procedure in medicine. For many of the 40 million Americans who undergo anesthesia each year, it is the source of great fear and fascination. In Counting Backwards, Dr. Henry Jay Przybylo—an anesthesiologist with more than thirty years of experience—has written an unforgettable account of the routine procedure's daily dramas and fundamental mysteries. Przybylo has administered anesthesia more than 30,000 times in his career—erasing consciousness, denying memory, and immobilizing the body before reversing all of these effects—on newborn babies, screaming toddlers and sullen teenagers, his own son, and even a gorilla. With compassion and candor, he weaves his experiences into intimate stories that explore the nature of consciousness, the politics of pain relief, and the wonder of modern medicine. Through its intense and humane tales of mistakes, near-disasters, life-saving successes, and moments of grace, COUNTING BACKWARDS shines a light on one of the most fascinating but unexplored corners of the medical world. This book will find an audience with readers of Atul Gawande, Jerome Groopman, and Oliver Sacks.

PLUCKED: Chicken, Antibiotics and How Big Business Changed the Way the We Eat by Maryn McKenna (National Geographic Books; Sept. 2017; paperback August 2019); (Formerly titled BIG CHICKEN).

PLUCKED uses chicken as the lens for “examining everything that has gone wrong in the modern agricultural system: overuse of antibiotics, threats to the environment, violations of animal welfare, destruction of farm economies and rural civic structure, disruption of international trade and delivery of over-processed, obesity-promoting, nutritionally hollow food.” And it will also look for solutions, to show that change is possible, seeking to return chicken to a sustainable and honored place on our plate, and asking whether, with reform, chicken can safely feed the world. Rich with characters who together propelled the story of “chicken's unintended consequences,” PLUCKED will reveal how the antibiotic era created modern agriculture. Chicken is at the heart of those developments.

LIFE LESSONS: 100 Prayers and Meditations by Julia Cameron (Tarcher Perigee/PRH, August 2017)

This book of prayers and affirmations by bestselling author of The Artist's Way is full of inspiration and encouragement. Beautifully packaged, these pocket prayers are perfect for carrying around or sharing as a gift. All too often we yearn for a more spiritual life but tell ourselves it's too difficult. But the smallest prayer is heard and answered. The simplest overture meets with a loving response. Each of the prayers in this book is a starting point. Taken collectively, they offer an approach to God that is powerful as well as simple. These prayers not only allow us to reach out to God, but they allow God to reach out to us. Each entry is a corrective to commonly held misconceptions of the divine. Like the postures assumed in hatha yoga, they stretch us gently. Through these prayers, we learn more of ourselves and the divine.

SHAKE SHACK: Recipes and Stories by Randy Garutti, Mark Rosati and Dorothy Kalins (Clarkson Potter, May 2017); <https://www.shakeshack.com/>

In just 10 years, Shake Shack has become a new American institution, with a thoroughly fresh set of values, a language all its own, inspiring passionate consumer loyalty to a "modern day roadside burger stand." Shake Shack has found a place in hip contemporary culture with surprising speed. On a recent Saturday Night Live, a convict is asked what he wants for his last meal: "Shake Shack." The wildly successful Shake Shack IPO unlocked a level of support for founder Danny Meyer's philosophy of enlightened hospitality, ideas that came together as Danny launched his first restaurant, Union Square Cafe in 1986, and were perfected at his second, Gramercy Tavern, in 1994. It's a philosophy summed up in a line from Maya Angelou that Shake Shack folks love to quote: "People will forget what you said. People will forget what you did. People will never forget how you made them feel."

25 DAYS: Retrain Your Brain, Stop the Gain, and Reveal the Leanest, Strongest You by Drew Logan (North Star Way/Simon & Schuster, April 2017)

What if we could train our brains to stop weight gain? Get them to work for us, not against us in our striving to be lean, healthy, and fit? We can. In 25 Days rising fitness star Drew Logan shows us how. Celebrity trainer Drew Logan knows firsthand how the brain affects your ability to perform and function at your best. After a life-threatening medical emergency, which left his short-term memory fried, he could no longer follow the complicated diet and fitness regimens he'd used on himself and with his famous clients. He needed to create something simpler, something that even he could follow. Drew was shocked to discover that the resulting program was even more effective than the complicated regimes of the past. That program is the basis of 25 Days. Drew created a unique, multifaceted approach that helps readers to rewrite our neurological patterning (what lies underneath those pesky habits that get in our way over and over again) so that the brain's neural pathways, biochemistry, and hormones work together efficiently and effectively.

CRAVINGS: How I Conquered Food—A Memoir by Judy Collins (Nan Talese Books/Knopf, February 2017).

A memoir about food addiction and recovery by folk-pop singer and NY Times bestselling author Judy Collins. For as long as Judy can remember, she's been running—away from the demons, the alcohol, and the food. No matter her path, she could not leave her eating disorder far enough behind—the cravings were always there. CRAVINGS is Judy's powerful story of her lifelong search for a physical and spiritual solution to her eating disorder. Countless doctors, therapists and diets, plus surviving over 50 years of this hell, have given her great wisdom and perspective. In her quest to control the food and compulsive overeating, she has looked to the most notable diet gurus in history: Lord Byron, William Banting, Gayelord Hauser, Atkins, Stillman, Jean Nidetch and more. Like Judy, these leaders had one thing in common: at the start of their search for answers, they were overweight or sick from a condition that resulted from bad food habits and addictions to grains, sugar, flour, junk and wheat. In order to face the food, in order to find a way out of her misery, Judy had to give up the foods to which she was addicted that were killing her.

THE MEZCAL RUSH: Explorations in Agave Country by Granville Greene (Counterpoint; March 2017)
[Translation only; excludes UK]

¡Para todo mal mezcal, y para todo bien tambien! So goes the Mexican proverb: “For everything bad mezcal, and for everything good as well!” Indeed, the smoke-drenched agave distillate is quickly becoming as familiar around the world as its mighty cousin, tequila, and now holds a spot on the top shelf of every mixologist’s bar. In THE MEZCAL RUSH, journalist Granville Greene searches for the story behind the mysterious spirit in his glass, embarking on a lively journey that takes him deep into the remote, mountainous regions of Oaxaca and Guerrero states, where no one mixes mezcal into cocktails, and it’s always sipped puro and typically saved for special occasions. As he travels to rural stills, Greene discusses the gold rush-style surge of “single-village” mezcals as luxury exports, and the subsequent overharvesting that now threatens the diversity and sustainability of wild agave crops in Oaxaca and Guerrero.

THE CANCER WHISPERER: Finding Courage, Direction and the Unlikely Gifts of Cancer by Sophie Sabbage (Plume/PRH, Jan. 2017) *US rights only; UK & translation controlled by Valeria Huerta Agency

Since being diagnosed with late-stage lung cancer at age 48 in October 2014, Sophie has drawn on all her skills, wisdom, courage and tenacity to pull herself back from the brink of death and create her life anew. Instead of going to war with cancer she chose to listen to it, thrive with it and transform her life in response to it. Sophie started writing this book 10 months after her initial diagnoses and is living with cancer and thriving. Cancer is her healer. THE CANCER WHISPERER is more than a book about having cancer, it's a book about living, and what it means to live a good life. About finding peace with oneself, looking after oneself, and about never taking no for an answer. Sophie refused to be a victim of her disease and will help others navigate their cancer journeys with power, purpose and autonomy. With a step-by-step approach and poetic prose, Sophie distills her research and experience, empowering the reader with practical tools. www.sophiesabbage.com; *#4 Amazon UK bestseller; Top 20 Hardback bestseller list; Nielsen Bookscan UK

A.D.H.D. NATION: The Dark Side of America’s Favorite Disease by Alan Schwarz (Scribner, Sept. 2016)

In the last 20 years, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder has become a true medical phenomenon, the result of a perfect storm of haughty scientists who cannot be wrong, insatiably greedy drug executives, and worried parents, terrified that their children will fall behind the curve—resulting in the creation of one of the most dangerous, pervasive misdiagnoses in recent history. Pulitzer Prize-nominated journalist Alan Schwarz takes us behind the scenes and follows the advent of A.D.H.D., through the blooming of the diagnosis in upwardly mobile families of the 1980’s and 90’s, through four distinct narratives, from families who have come to rely on the drug to the doctor who pioneered its use and the corporation who reaps $10 billion each year in revenue from its prescription, each narrative revealing a pivotal dimension of the story. Schwarz writes for the New York Times and is one of the most influential journalists on the subject of public health. In addition to being a finalist for the 2010 Pulitzer Prize in Public Service, he has won the Polk Award and several other journalism honors.

OUT OF THE WRECK I RISE: A Literary Companion to Recovery by Neil Steinberg and Sara Bader (University of Chicago Press, Sept. 2016) <http://www.everygoddamnday.com/> <http://www.quotenik.com/>

Addiction is easy to fall into and hard to escape. It destroys the lives of individuals, and has a devastating cost to society. The National Institute of Health estimates seventeen million adults in the United States are alcoholics or have a serious problem with alcohol. This scourge affects not only those who drink or use drugs but also their families and friends, who witness the horror of addiction. Both the afflicted and those who love them are often baffled by what is happening, never mind what to do about it. With Out of the Wreck I Rise, columnist Neil Steinberg and Sara Bader have created a resource like no other—one that harnesses the power of literature, poetry, and creativity to illuminate what alcoholism and addiction are all about, while forging change, deepening understanding, and even saving lives.

At just 30 years old, Barbara had everything she'd ever wanted: five beautiful children, a home, her faith, and a husband named Eli. But while Barbara was happy to live as the Amish have for centuries - without modern conveniences, Eli was tempted by technology: cell phones, the Internet, and sexting. Barb Raber was raised Amish, but is now a Conservative Mennonite. She drove Eli to appointments in her car, and she gave him what he wanted when he wanted. When Eli starts asking people to kill his wife for him, Barb offers to help. It was only the third murder in hundreds of years of Amish life in America, and it fell to Edna Boyle, a young assistant prosecutor to seek justice for Barbara Weaver.

THE BRIDGE LADIES by Betsy Lerner (HarperCollins, May 2016; paperback May 2017)

For the past 50 years, Monday afternoons in New Haven, Connecticut were always the same. Roz, Rhoda, Bea, Jackie, and Bette. A card table with four folding chairs. The old deck of cards in their worn-out box. The Bridge game. As a child Betsy found her mother Roz and her four best friends chic, with their frosted hairdos and shiny nylons, serious about the game in a way that sent her tiptoeing around the corners of the living room. When Betsy was a teenager, the women seemed hopelessly square, content to sit idle as the sexual revolution erupted outside. And as an adult, established in New York City, with a successful career in publishing, Betsy looked on the Bridge Ladies as a distant relic of her past. Then, her husband accepted a job in New Haven, and she found herself right back where she started. Suddenly, as taking care of aging Roz became more hands-on, the days of the Bridge Ladies came hurtling back, their Monday lunch and Bridge Club still ongoing for over fifty years. To Betsy, they once were the most boring people on the planet. But once she started looking, really looking, at them, that was the farthest thing from the truth. With the compelling mother/daughter relationship theme of The Joy Luck Club and the braided stories of a group of female friends of The Girls from Ames. www.betsylerner.com

PLEASE DON'T BITE THE BABY (and please don't chase the dogs): Keeping Our Kids and Our Dogs Safe and Happy Together by Lisa Edwards (Seal, October 2015)

Like Bringing Up Bébé and Operating Instructions, Edwards chronicles a dog trainer's endearing journey to ensure that her household survives & thrives when she introduces her newly adopted son to her motley pack of animals. Lisa knows all too well that the dog/child relationship is simultaneously treasured and feared. As her dog training techniques seep into how she navigates her first year with her child, some welcome outcomes are a baby who sleeps well, eats well, and is content playing alone or patiently sitting through restaurant meals without much distress. The unhappy impacts are more questions of effect: did the fact that Lisa is trained to know what an animal needs or wants through body language cues slow down Indy's need for verbal communication; or will his love of the most dangerous dog in the house become an issue as he grows? Training a dog to be around a child, and vice versa, is more complicated than this dog trainer bargained for.

THE BIRTH OF THE PILL: How Four Crusaders Reinvented Sex and Launched a Revolution by Jonathan Eig, (W.W. Norton, October 2014; paperback Oct 2015) Catalog link here; <http://jonathaneig.com>

The dramatic story of how visionary scientist Gregory Goodwin Pincus toiled for decades to develop the birth control pill. Spanning the years from feminist Margaret Sanger's heady Greenwich Village days in the early 20th century to trial tests in Puerto Rico in the 1950s to the cusp of the sexual revolution in the 1960s, this is a grand story of radical feminist politics, scientific ingenuity, establishment opposition, and, ultimately, a sea change in social attitudes. Beyond the pill's indisputable impact, there's another remarkable story about its creation that's never been told: that of the passionate, brilliant, and tumultuous life of its creator.

CULINARY INTELLIGENCE: The Art of Eating Healthy (and Really Well) by Peter Kaminsky (Knopf 2012)

For many, the idea of healthy eating equals bland food, calorie counting, and general joylessness; or that the task of great cooking is a complicated, expensive luxury beyond our means or ability. Kaminsky, who has written cookbooks with four-star chefs (such as Daniel Boulud), shows us that anyone can learn to eat food that is absolutely delicious and healthy. Recently, Kaminsky found himself facing a tough choice: lose weight or suffer the consequences. For 20 years, he had been living the life of a hedonistic food and outdoors writer, an endless and luxurious feast. Things had to change. But how could he manage to get healthy without giving up the things that made life so pleasurable? In Culinary Intelligence, Kaminsky tells how he lost thirty-five pounds and kept them off by thinking more—not less—about food, and he shows us how to eat in a healthy way without sacrificing the fun and pleasure in food—how we can do this in everyday life: thinking before eating, choosing good ingredients, understanding how flavor works, and making the effort to cook. Kaminsky tells us what we need to give up and what we can enjoy in moderation but he also shows us how to tantalize our tastebuds by maximizing flavor per calorie & that if we eat delicious, flavorful foods, we'll find ourselves satisfied with smaller portions while still enjoying one of life's great pleasures. Sold to: Argentina: Planeta Argentina

CHARLATAN: America's Most Dangerous Huckster, the Man Who Pursued Him, and the Age of Flimflam by Pope Brock (Crown; 2008)

In 1917, John R. Brinkley—America's most brazen con man—introduced an outlandish surgical method for restoring fading male virility.

It was all nonsense, but thousands of eager customers quickly made “Dr.” Brinkley one of America's richest men—and a national celebrity. CHARLATAN tells of the life and times of Dr. John Romulus Brinkley, who ruled a branch of American medicine in the 1920s and 30s. Although he offered a range of bogus services, his signature cure was inserting goat testicles into the scrota of impotent men. He made millions of dollars before authorities shut him down, whereupon he jumped across the Rio Grande into Mexico, built the world's most powerful radio station, and kept right on going. His brilliant innovations changed the course of American advertising and popular culture. Culminating in a decisive courtroom confrontation, Charlatan is a marvelous portrait of a boundlessly audacious rogue on the loose in an America ripe for the bamboozling. *Film Option: Matt Damon to Star as Con-Man Doctor in ‘Charlatan’

BEATING BACK THE DEVIL: On the Front Lines With the Disease Detectives of the Epidemic Intelligence Service by Maryn McKenna (Free Press/S&S 2004; [Excludes UK; we control translation])

The universal human instinct is to run from an outbreak of disease like Ebola. These doctors run toward it. Their job is to stop epidemics from happening.

They are the disease detective corps of the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the federal agency that tracks and tries to prevent disease outbreaks and bioterrorist attacks around the world. They are formally called the Epidemic Intelligence Service (EIS)—a group founded more than fifty years ago out of fear that the Korean War might bring the use of biological weapons—and, like intelligence operatives in the traditional sense, they perform their work largely in anonymity. They are not household names, but over the years they were first to confront the outbreaks that became known as hantavirus, Ebola, and AIDS. Every day they work to protect us by hunting down the deadly threats that we forget until they dominate our headlines, West Nile virus, anthrax, and SARS among others.

In this riveting narrative, Maryn McKenna—the only journalist ever given full access to the EIS in its fifty-three-year history—follows the first class of disease detectives to come to the CDC after September 11, the first to confront not just naturally occurring outbreaks but the man-made threat of bioterrorism. They are talented researchers—many with young families—who trade two years of low pay and extremely long hours for the chance to be part of the group that are on the frontlines, in the yellow suits and masks, that has helped eradicate smallpox, push back polio, and solve the first major outbreaks of Legionnaires' disease, toxic shock syndrome, and E. coli O157 and works to battle every new disease before it becomes an epidemic.

Urgent, exhilarating, and compelling, Beating Back the Devil takes you inside the world of these medical detectives who are trying to stop the next epidemic—before the epidemics stop us.

THE ELEMENTS OF JOURNALISM: What Newspeople Should Know and the Public Should Expect by Bill Kovach and Tom Rosenstiel (Crown, original edition published July 2001, 4th, latest edition published April 2021)

A timely new edition of the classic journalism text, now featuring updated material on the importance of reporting in the age of media mistrust and fake news—and how journalists can use technology to navigate its challenges

More than two decades ago, the Committee of Concerned Journalists gathered some of America’s most influential newspeople and asked them, “What is journalism for?” Through exhaustive research, surveys, interviews, and public forums, the committee identified the essential elements that define journalism and its role in our society. The result is one of the most important books on media ever written—winner of the Goldsmith Book Prize from Harvard, a Society of Professional Journalists Award, and the Bart Richards Award for Media Criticism from Penn State University.

Updated with new material covering the ways journalists can leverage technology to their advantage, especially given the shifting revenue architecture of news—and with the future of news, facts, and democracy never more in question—this fourth edition of The Elements of Journalism is the authoritative guide for journalists, students, and anyone hoping

Bill Kovach was editor of The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, the Washington bureau chief for The New York Times, and curator of the Nieman Foundation for Journalism fellowship program at Harvard. He was founding chairman of the Committee of Concerned Journalists.

Tom Rosenstiel is executive director of the American Press Institute, founder of the Project for Excellence in Journalism, a former media critic for the Los Angeles Times, and chief congressional correspondent for Newsweek. He and Kovach have written two other books together, Warp Speed and Blur.

THE SINGH FAMILY TRILOGY by Nisha Sharma (Avon Impulse, April 2019; [Translation only, excludes UK]

A three-book deal for a contemporary romance series by Nisha Sharma, the award-winning author of YA rom-com MY SO-CALLED BOLLYWOOD LIFE, and contemporary romance drama, THE SINGH FAMILY TRILOGY. She grew up immersed in Bollywood movies, eighties pop-culture and romance novels so it comes as no surprise that her work features all three. Her writing has been praised by Entertainment Weekly, NPR, Cosmopolitan, Teen Vogue, Buzzfeed, Hypable and more. She lives in New Jersey with her Alaskan-born husband, her cat Lizzie Bennett and her dog Nancey Drew. You can find her online at www.nisha-sharma.com or on Twitter and Instagram @nishawrites.

BOOK 1: THE TAKEOVER EFFECT (April 2019): Three brothers bound by culture, honor and love will pursue the ultimate act of revenge. Hemdeep, Ajay and Zail Singh are the embodiment of Sikh-Punjabi men. They're leaders, powerful and successful in their chosen professions, and devoted to a gentle-spirited father and a mother with an iron-will. Despite their palatial family compound and generations of wealth, they continue to work hard and succeed against every obstacle. Together. When their father's depression chains him to his bed because a conglomerate targets Barat Inc., the family company, in a hostile takeover, the Singh brothers band together to take back what rightfully belongs to them. Along the way, they are joined by Mina Kaur, the young attorney with something to prove when she takes on the Singh's case. There is also Lara Hothi, the socialite with secrets greater than the baby she carries and the love she has for Ajay. Lastly, there is Teseen Bari, the inside agent, Zail's secret lover, and a symbol of everything the Singhs have been fighting. In The Singh Family, six Indian Americans will take down an empire in the name of honor, a trait as old as the mustard seed fields in Punjab.

BOOK 2: THE LEGAL AFFAIR: (August 2020) Rajneet Hothi built her empire with sweat, blood, and information. She knows everything there is to know about Ajay Singh, the future CEO of Bharat, Inc., as well as how crucial he is in securing her future. But she didn't expect the passion that burst between them the first time they went head-to-head. She'd never felt anything like it before, especially during her marriage to her soon-to-be-ex-husband. When her company is blamed for her ex's dirty dealings with Bharat, she's forced to prove that Ajay is no match for her in the art of business or seduction. Ajay shouldn't trust Raj or her company. He's on the verge of losing everything his family has worked to achieve, but he can't stop thinking about the breathtaking way Raj opens her mind, body and heart to him. Throwing his infamous caution to the wind, he tempts the gorgeous CEO into his bedroom and boardroom. He soon realizes he wants Raj by his side and he's willing to fight the people he's always protected to be with her. When Raj and Ajay discover the source behind Bharat's leak, they must trust each other and work together to defy the odds and save the Singh legacy.

MY SO-CALLED BOLLYWOOD LIFE by Nisha Sharma (Crown Books for Young Readers, May 2018);

Starred Kirkus Review: A fresh, madcap rom-com in which a Princeton, New Jersey, high school senior, aspiring film school student, and Bollywood junkie navigates the dramas of real life. Vaneeta "Winnie" Mehta is digging a grave for her ex-boyfriend Raj's entire film collection. She'd believed that Raj was destined to be with her; their match was fated in her janampatri (natal star chart) after all, so she was devastated to find out via social media that he was hooking up with another classmate. To add insult to injury, she's stripped of her role as school film festival chair because of an administrative snafu, and Raj has secured Bend It Like Beckham director Gurinder Chadha—Winnie's idol—as the festival's guest of honor. But when Winnie reconnects with classmate and fellow film geek Dev Khanna and falls for him hard, she is forced to question all that has been prophesied: Is Raj really her destiny, and if she chooses Dev, will she be giving up her chance to live happily ever after? With the help of family and friends, Winnie navigates these ups and downs in order to find her own perfectly scripted Bollywood ending. (Romance, ages 14-18).

Film rights have been optioned by Susan Cartsonis (The Duff, Middle School is the Worst, What Women Want) and Gurinder Chadha (Bend it Like Beckham, Bride and Prejudice).

PRIDE WARS: The Four Guardians (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt Books for Young Readers; July 2019) [Translation only; excludes UK]

The adventure continues in PRIDE WARS Book 2: THE TWELVER. Leo and his companions flee Singara and venture deep into Maguar territory where they discover the enemy is far smarter, far stronger, far stranger, and far more dangerous than they ever imagined. With the Maguar's help, Leo learns more about his mysterious origins and astonishing destiny. Wajid, the captive Maguar recently escaped from Singara, leads them to the Maguar lair of Elyon and to the Temple of the Shakyahs. There they meet The Twelver, the Maguar's supreme leader who is preparing to wage war on the Singa. Meanwhile, the stories keep coming, leaving creatures behind who both help and hinder Leo's quest to find his mother and prevent a battle between the Singa and Maguar prides, as a demonic force threatens both their existences.

PRIDE WARS: The Spinner Prince by Matt Laney (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt Books for Young Readers; March 2018) [Translation only; excludes UK]

THE SPINNER PRINCE is being hailed as Game of Thrones meets the Warrior series. In the scientific realm of Singara, where feline humanoids rule, fiction is forbidden. Those caught telling stories lose their tongues before being exiled. Heir to the throne and orphan, thirteen-year-old Prince Leo, is cursed with the unpredictable, uncontrollable habit of telling stories. Worse, the stories carry a dangerous power, leaving creatures behind who cause trouble and threaten to expose Leo's curse. Meanwhile, Leo's elder cousin is making his move to seize the throne and the enemy beyond the Great Wall, another feline race called Maguar, are rising up. Will Leo claim the throne from his rival (and keep his tongue) before his curse is revealed? Or will he embrace his ability as a gift and discover a far greater destiny among the Maguar? The heart-racing story starts here. "Readers who like Erin Hunter's books will race through this title and will be highly anticipating the sequel." --School Library Journal

RYAN QUINN & THE REBEL'S ESCAPE by Ron McGee (Harper Children's Books, October 2016) [Translation only, excludes UK.]

From an award-winning television writer, The Ryan Quinn Adventure series is where Alex Rider meets Jason Bourne. Fourteen-year-old Ryan Quinn is a new student at the International Community School in New York, a high school populated by the children of diplomats and employees of the United Nations. When his father goes missing while attending an international conference and his mother is abducted, Ryan discovers that his family is involved in a super-secret organization called the Emergency Rescue Committee (the ERC). Created at the start of World War II, the ERC helped thousands escape the Nazis. Defying the U.S. government who for almost seventy years has tried to shut them down, the group has continued to perform daring rescue missions around the world. Ryan's search for his parents leads him to the military state of Andakar in Southeast Asia. Along the way, Ryan faces off against deadly foes, takes part in exciting chases and learns to his surprise that his parents have been secretly training him to be an ERC agent his whole life without even realizing it.

Ron McGee is a winner of the Writers Guild of America award for his work on Disney Channel's Halloween hit GIRL VS. MONSTER. Currently, he is a writer/producer on TNT's #1 scripted series RIZZOLI & ISLES. Previously, he wrote and produced episodes of ABC Family's THE NINE LIVES OF CHLOE KING. A veteran of longform television, Ron has penned numerous movies in a wide range of genres for many of the major television networks, including ABC, NBC, USA, Lifetime, TBS and VH-1. Ron lives with his family in California and this is his novel-writing debut.

SAVAGES by Michael Silver (W.W. Norton / Liveright, Summer 2025) ms delivery February 2024

Players over plays. It was a snide little mantra, conceived amid a time of conflict—an oft-uttered reminder from quarterback to coach that at the highest level of football, his precious Xs and Os were beholden to the athletes charged with executing them. When Kyle Shanahan arrived as the Atlanta Falcons’ newly hired offensive coordinator in January of 2015, already stained with a reputation for clashing with talented players who dared display any deviation from his intricately crafted blueprints, he immediately encountered a headstrong and formidable adversary. Matt Ryan, the Falcons’ franchise quarterback since they’d made him the third overall pick of the 2008 draft, had his way of doing things that didn’t always conform to Shanahan’s way, and when their tempers inevitably flared, in practices or in games, the disconnect between them was impossible to ignore. But after a good old marriage counseling session, Shanahan and Ryan fast came to an understanding that transformed their relationship on the field.

In Savages, sports journalist Michael Silver explores Kyle Shanahan’s coaching career, detailing the highs and lows of his turbulent NFL journey. Coaching at football’s highest level is not for the meek. It’s an existence fueled by obsessive preparation, and yet, despite the best-laid plans, a tipped ball or bad call can alter careers and legacies. Everyone is constantly looking for an edge, and the elite coaches must adapt and evolve on a perpetual basis. There are grinders. There are innovators. And, as the NFL enters its second century, there are Savages. This book will reveal their unique understanding of the craft and take readers on an enriching trip through football’s most charged and compelling landscapes, all through the lens of Shanahan’s life in football.

THE DROP by Chris Jones (Random House, Spring 2025) ms delivery February

In May 2022, Burnley, the football club that Chris Jones’s family has followed for generations, was relegated from the Premier League after an excruciating final-day loss to Newcastle. Chris broke up with his girlfriend, Ana, the next day. They had been together for six years—precisely the length of Burnley’s latest stay in the Premier League. Twice relegated in 24 hours, he had to find a way to fix his broken heart. Chris had done it once before, after his calamitous divorce in 2016. He had been suicidal and needed therapy and several lucky breaks to make it through. Ana’s arrival had been the luckiest. Now she was gone. But Burnley were still there, and Chris’s little club began a rebuilding process that he looked to mirror in his own life.

Today, the Clarets seem destined to return to the Premier League after only a season in exile—as an entirely different team, with a new manager, new players, and a new, more optimistic approach to the sport he loves. Chris has changed and risen with them. Most of the time, a game is just a game. But sometimes, sport gives us greater lessons. The Drop will be more than a football memoir. It will be a prescription for griever, for sufferer, for the vanquished and the dumped, and a reminder that it’s always worth fighting to return to life’s top flight.

WITH ALL YOUR HEART: Clayton Kershaw and the Burden of Greatness by Andy McCullough (Hachette Books, Spring 2025) ms delivery October 2023

Clayton Kershaw is a three time Cy Young award winner, a league MVP (2014) and statistically, one of the best to ever ascend the mound. He has succeeded, famously, and yet his struggles in the postseason have come to influence the public perception of his greatness. Kershaw has always stood tall, even in defeat, but he has also never really let the press—and hence the world—past his public presence. Until now. Andy McCullough, a writer for the Athletic and a former writer for the Los Angeles Times, has covered Clayton for seven years. He’s written reams of copy about him, and is now taking that one step further with his new book, With All Your Heart.

Clayton Kershaw is a pitcher for his time, a man who has given his body to the game. His pitching motion is somewhat unorthodox, and has likely been part of the reason that his back has continued to haunt him, causing him to miss time in season after season. Graceful in defeat, sympathetic to fans of the game, all of whom were unaware of the demons Kershaw was fighting on the mound. With All Your Heart will go beyond the story of Clayton Kershaw to examine the state of the game as it is being played today. To what degree are pitchers being asked to throw so forcefully that they can’t avoid injury? To what extent are they being babied to a degree where pitching 200 innings a year is considered an accomplishment? How different is that from the seasons past when the top pitchers in the game threw over 300 innings and somehow never seemed to get injured? What has happened, and more importantly, why? There are a lot of elements of the game that Andy will explore in this book, and there is no better vehicle through which he can ask these questions than through Clayton Kershaw.

LIVE AND LET DIE by Alan Shipnuck (Avid Reader Press, 2024); ms. delivery April 2023

Right now, a battle rages for the soul of golf, pitting traditionalists against dirty new money and superstar versus superstar. The upstart LIV Golf tour—funded by Saudi Arabia, with all the baggage that entails—has reshaped professional golf's world order. LIV is about disruption, sportswashing and vengeance (in the case of frontman Greg Norman, who three decades tried to launch a new global tour but was outfoxed and humiliated by the PGA Tour), with a dash of competition on the side.

In this new book, bestselling author Alan Shipnuck ("Phil", "Bud, Sweat & Tees") unpacks all of the intrigue and takes the reader behind closed doors to illuminate the biggest sports story in years. Along the way, he brings to life a blockbuster cast of characters: Rory McIlroy, who has emerged as golf's conscience in turning down wheelbarrows of Saudi money and fighting to keep the old-line PGA Tour relevant; Donald Trump, who has leveraged LIV tournaments as a way to curry favor with the Saudi Arabian elite, whose oil policies will help decide the next Presidential election; Norman, the Hall of Famer turned pariah; Phil Mickelson, a former fan favorite still paying the price for his dalliance with Saudis; and PGA Tour commissioner Jay Monahan, a back-slapping bureaucrat suddenly thrust into the center of golf's existential crisis.

This rollicking, insightful, irreverent book is a must-read for fans interested in golf and geopolitics and their complicated intersection.

THE TAO OF THE BACKUP CATCHER by Tim Brown with Erik Kratz (Grand Central, July 2023) ms available

There are many ways to describe the role of a backup catcher. They are the unlicensed therapist, the pack mule, the unofficial coach, the older brother. In the thirty years Tim Brown has spent in baseball clubhouses, he's always looked to the corners of the room for the great, untold stories of the game. And in almost every one of those corners, what he found was a backup catcher.

In The Tao of the Backup Catcher, sports journalist Tim Brown uncovers the pathos of this entirely singular character. The spark for this investigation was Erik Kratz, a journeyman catcher who, upon his retirement in 2020 at the age of 40, had played 19 professional seasons with 15 professional teams in the US and abroad. For half his life, Kratz left each game not knowing if he would be invited back for the next one, despite having a wife and three kids to support at home. Together, Kratz and Brown tell the stories of dozens of players who had that same precarious experience. The Tao of the Backup Catcher mines observations from the quiet leaders of the game—the AJ Millers, the Vance Wilsons, the AJ Ellises, the Drew Buteras, and those pulling the strings that decided where they would end up but could never extinguish their eternal optimism.

PHIL: The Rip-Roaring (and Unauthorized!) Biography of Golf's Most Colorful Superstar by Alan Shipnuck (Avid Reader Press/S&S; May 2022) New York Times Bestseller

A juicy and freewheeling biography of legendary golf champion Phil Mickelson—who has led a big, controversial life—as reported by longtime Sports Illustrated writer and bestselling author Alan Shipnuck.

Phil Mickelson is one of the most compelling figures in sports. For more than three decades he has been among the best golfers in the world, and his unmatched longevity was exemplified at the 2021 PGA Championship, when Mickelson, on the cusp of turning fifty-one, became the oldest player in history to win a major championship. In this raw, uncensored, and unauthorized biography, Alan Shipnuck captures a singular life defined by thrilling victories, crushing defeats, and countless controversies. Mickelson is a multifaceted character, and all his warring impulses are on display in these pages: He is a smart-ass who built an empire on being the consummate professional; a loving husband dogged by salacious rumors; a high-stakes gambler who knows the house always wins but can't tear himself away.

Phil is the perfect marriage of subject and author. Shipnuck has long been known as the most fearless writer on the golf beat, and he delivers numerous revelations, from the true scale of Mickelson's massive gambling losses; to the inside story of the acrimonious breakup between Phil and his longtime caddie, Jim "Bones" Mackay; to the secretive backstory of the Saudi golf league that Mickelson championed to wield as leverage against the PGA Tour. But PHIL also celebrates Mickelson's random acts of kindness and generosity of spirit, to which friends and strangers alike can attest. Shipnuck has covered Mickelson for his entire career and has been on the ground at Mickelson's most memorable triumphs and crack-ups. The result is the juiciest and liveliest golf book in years—full of heart, humor, and unexpected turns.

SWING AND A HIT: Nine Innings of What Baseball Taught Me by Paul O’Neill and Jack Curry (Twelve, May 24, 2022).

The fun and fiery memoir of All Star Yankee and five-time World Champion, Paul O’Neill, written by NYT bestselling sports journalist and author of FULL COUNT, Jack Curry

In SWING AND A HIT, O’Neill elaborates on his most important hitting principles, lessons, and memories—exploring those elements across ten chapters (to align with the nine innings of a baseball game and one extra inning). Here, O’Neill, with his intense temperament, describes what he did as a hitter, how he adjusted to pitchers, how he boosted his confidence, how he battled with umpires (and water coolers), and what advice he would give to current hitters.

O’Neill has always been a tough out at the plate. Recalling how he started to swing at bat as a two-year-old and kept swinging it professionally until he was thirty-eight, O’Neill provides constant insights into the beauty and frustration of playing baseball. The legendary Ted Williams said using a round bat to hit a round ball is the most difficult thing to do in sports. Naturally, O’Neill, who once received a surprise call from Williams that was filled with hitting advice, agrees. SWING AND A HIT features O’Neill’s most thoughtful revelations and offers clubhouse stories from some of the biggest names in Major League Baseball—hitters, managers, and teammates like Joe Torre, Derek Jeter, Don Mattingly, Pete Rose, and Bernie Williams.

O’Neill, ever the perfectionist, was the type of hitter who believed that pitchers didn’t ever get him out. For that incredible reason and so many others, SWING AND A HIT is essential reading for any baseball fan.

COACH K: The Rise and Reign of Mike Krzyzewski by Ian O’Connor (Harvest, February 2022)
New York Times* Bestseller

With updated coverage of Coach K’s stunning final season, O’Connor shows you sides of the man and his methods that will surprise even the most dedicated Duke fan.

WISH IT LASTED FOREVER: LIFE WITH THE LARRY BIRD CELTICS by Dan Shaughnessy (Simon and Schuster, November 2021)

From award-winning Boston Globe columnist Dan Shaughnessy, an “entertaining” (The Wall Street Journal) and nostalgia-filled retelling of the 1980s Boston Celtics’ glory years, which featured the sublime play of NBA legend Larry Bird.

Today the NBA is a vast global franchise—a billion-dollar industry seen by millions of fans in the United States and abroad. But it wasn’t always this successful. Before primetime ESPN coverage, lucrative branding deals like Air Jordans, and $40 million annual player salaries, there was the NBA of the 1970s and 1980s—when basketball was still an up-and-coming sport featuring old school beat reporters and players who wore Converse All-Stars.

Enter Dan Shaughnessy, then the beat reporter for The Boston Globe who covered the Boston Celtics every day from 1982 to 1986. It was a time when reporters travelled with professional teams—flying the same commercial airlines, riding the same buses, and staying in the same hotels. Shaughnessy knew the athletes as real people, losing free throw bets to Larry Bird, being gifted cheap cigars by the iconic coach Red Auerbach, and having his one-year-old daughter Sarah passed from player to player on a flight from Logan to Detroit Metro.

Drawing on unprecedented access and personal experiences that would not be possible for any reporter today, Shaughnessy takes us inside the legendary Larry Bird-led Celtics teams, capturing the camaraderie as they dominated the NBA. For any fan who longs to return—for just a few hours—to those magical years when the Boston Garden rocked and the winner’s circle was mostly colored Boston Green, Wish It Lasted Forever is a masterful tribute to “the Celtics from 1982–1986 [that] is so good even fervent Celtics haters will have trouble putting it down” (New York Post).

SWAGGER: Super Bowls, Brass Balls, and Footballs—A Memoir by Jimmy Johnson and Dave Hyde (Scribner, November 2022)

Hall of Fame football coach Jimmy Johnson’s house isn’t on the way to anything. Yet, his private sanctuary on the Florida Keys’ Islamorada islands is a popular destination to which college and professional coaches, general managers, and team owners regularly trek to seek advice—how to build a positive team culture, draft elite players, balance work and family life, and lead a team to win. Why? Because Jimmy Johnson has done it all—rising through the college coaching ranks to lead the University of Miami Hurricanes to a national championship, winning two consecutive Super Bowls with the Dallas Cowboys, and handling public triumphs while dealing with private adversity. Now, in Swagger, written with veteran sports journalist Dave Hyde, Johnson shares a candid account of his life experiences that have turned him into a legend in the coaching world. More than a highlight reel, Swagger reveals the hard-won lessons Jimmy Johnson has learned both as a man and as a coach through a lifetime dedicated to excellence.

THE 1998 YANKEES: The Inside Story of the Greatest Baseball Team Ever by Jack Curry (Twelve, May 2023)

The visiting clubhouse in San Diego was soggy, sweaty and sticky after the 1998 Yankees swept the Padres in four games and celebrated winning their 24th World Series title. The players raised bottles of Champagne, sprayed the bubbly on each other and reveled in a baseball season that might have been more memorable than any in history. Jack Curry was part of that unforgettable scene as a reporter, navigating around the clubhouse to ask the same, pertinent question. After winning an unprecedented 125 games and pummeling teams along the way, were these Yankees, the Yankees of Jeter, Mariano, Posada, Pettitte, Bernie, O’Neill, Tino and so many other vital players, the best team ever?

Twenty five years later, Curry revisits that season to discuss how that team was built and why the Yankees were such a talented, refreshing and successful club. This book includes new interviews with more than 25 players, coaches and executives, who revealed some behind-the-scenes about the magical journey and who also discussed the depth of this historic squad.

THE LAST FOLK HERO: The Life and Myth of Bo Jackson by Jeff Pearlman (Mariner, October 2022) (See Jeff’s forthcoming titles on page 16)

From the mid-1980s into the early 1990s, the greatest athlete of all time streaked across American sports and popular culture. Stadiums struggled to contain him. Clocks failed to capture his speed. His strength was legendary. His power unmatched. Video game makers turned him into an invincible character—and they were dead-on. He climbed (and walked across) walls, splintered baseball bats over his knee, turned oncoming tacklers into ground meat. He became the first person to simultaneously star in two major professional sports, and overtook Michael Jordan as America’s most recognizable pitchman. He was on our televisions, in our magazines, plastered across billboards. He was half man, half myth. Then, almost overnight, he was gone. He was Bo Jackson. The Last Folk Hero is the true tale of Bo Jackson that only “master storyteller” (NPR.org) Jeff Pearlman could tell.

IT’S BETTER TO BE FEARED: The New England Patriots Dynasty and the Pursuit of Greatness by Seth Wickersham (formerly titled THE PATRIOT WAY) (W.W. Norton, October 2021)

New York Times Bestseller

Sports Illustrated: Nonfiction Book of the Year

Kirkus Reviews: Best Nonfiction of the Year

With new reporting on Tom Brady’s run to the Super Bowl with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The explosive, long-awaited account of the making of the greatest dynasty in football history—from the acclaimed ESPN reporter who has been there from the very beginning.

Over two unbelievable decades, the New England Patriots were not only the NFL’s most dominant team, but also—and by far—the most secretive. How did they achieve and sustain greatness—and what were the costs?

In IT’S BETTER TO BE FEARED, Seth Wickersham, one of the country’s finest long form and investigative sportswriters, tells the full, behind-the-scenes story of the Patriots, capturing the brilliance, ambition, and vanity that powered and ultimately unraveled them. Based on hundreds of interviews conducted since 2001, Wickersham’s chronicle is packed with revelations, taking us deep into Bill Belichick’s tactical ingenuity and Tom Brady’s unique mentality while also reporting on their divergent paths in 2020, including Brady’s run to the Super Bowl with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Raucous, unvarnished, and definitive, IT’S BETTER TO BE FEARED is an instant classic of American sportswriting in the tradition of Michael Lewis, David Maraniss, and David Halberstam.

OUT OF THE POCKET: Football, Fatherhood, and College GameDay Saturdays by Kirk Herbstreit with Gene Wojciechowski (Atria, August 17, 2021)

In OUT OF THE POCKET, football commentator Kirk Herbstreit will dive deep into both his personal and professional worlds. It is a football book, to be sure, but one told with compassion, perspective, honesty—and told by the sport’s foremost expert. What is it like to grow up among Ohio State football royalty, to one day play on the same field as your dad, to grapple with the realities and unforgiving nature of big-time programs such as Ohio State? What is it like to face a monumental post-football career decision? What is it like to be plucked from obscurity and eventually find yourself on the GameDay set surrounded by tens of thousands of passionate fans who treat their Saturdays like a football Mardi Gras? What is it like to be in the booth calling a game that is remembered for years to come? What is it like to be face to face with some of the greatest players and coaches the sport has seen—from Peyton Manning to Tua Tagovailoa, from Nick Saban to Dabo Swinney? How is it that Coach Lee Corso, GameDay’s bombastic but fatherly 84-year-old cohost, always knows exactly what to say to Herbstreit—about football, and about life?

FINISH STRONG: A Father's Code and A Son's Path by Nate Ebner and Paul Daugherty (Penguin Press; May 2021)

The inspiring story of Nate Ebner's bond with his unconventional father and its remarkable consequences. Nate Ebner made it into the NFL and won two Super Bowls with the New England Patriots, and then took a leave with the team's blessing to make the Olympic team in the sport he loved above all, rugby. A memoir honoring the author's late father.

Nate Ebner and his father were inseparable. From an early age, they worked side-by-side in the family junkyard, where part of the job was dispensing citizen's justice to aspiring robbers, and they worked out side-by-side in their grungy homemade gym. Even though Nate was a great peewee football player in football-mad Ohio, he followed his father's passion for rugby and started playing for the same club as his father when he was only thirteen years old.

But Nate had to face the fact that there was no way to make a living as a professional rugby player in this country. So Nate gave his dad the news that he planned to quit rugby and go out for the football team at Ohio State University, with an eye toward making the NFL. As a goal for someone who hadn't even played high school football, this was completely ridiculous. Without blinking, his father told him that if he gave up what he had built in rugby, he had to see it through. It was the last conversation they ever had--the next day, his father was brutally murdered at work by a would-be robber.

Nate went on to make the Ohio State team and when NFL Draft Day came, he was selected by the New England Patriots. Three Super Bowl rings later, his legacy in the sport is secure. But he got another unexpected chance to honor his father's memory when the Olympics admitted rugby as a sport for the 2016 Games. Against long odds, he made the team and competed in Rio in the sport he and his father loved above all others.

An astonishing story of what a father will do for a son and what a son will do for a father, Finish Strong is a powerful reminder that the lessons parents embody for their children continue to bear fruit long after they are gone.

I CAME AS A SHADOW by John Thompson with Jesse Washington (Henry Holt, Dec 2020)

The long-awaited autobiography from Georgetown University's legendary coach, whose life on and off the basketball court threw America's unresolved struggle with racial justice into sharp relief.

John Thompson was never just a basketball coach and I Came As A Shadow is categorically not just a basketball autobiography.

After three decades at the center of race and sports in America, the first Black head coach to win an NCAA championship makes the private public at last. Chockful of stories and moving beyond mere stats (and what stats! three Final Fours, four times national coach of the year, seven Big East championships, 97 percent graduation rate), Thompson's book drives us through his childhood under Jim Crow segregation to our current moment of racial reckoning. We experience riding shotgun with Celtics icon Red Auerbach, and coaching NBA Hall of Famers like Patrick Ewing and Allen Iverson. How did he inspire the phrase "Hoya Paranoia"? You'll see. And thawing his historically glacial stare, Thompson brings us into his negotiation with a DC drug kingpin in his players' orbit in the 1980s, as well as behind the scenes of his years on the Nike board.

Thompson's mother was a teacher who couldn't teach because she was Black. His father could not read or write, so the only way he could identify different cements at the factory where he worked was to taste them. Their son grew up to be a man with his own life-sized statue in a building that bears his family's name on a campus once kept afloat by the selling of 272 enslaved people. This is a great American story, and John Thompson's experience sheds light on many of the issues roiling our nation. In these pages—a last gift from "Coach"—he proves himself to be the elder statesman whose final words college basketball and the country need to hear.

I Came As A Shadow is not a swan song, but a bullhorn blast from one of America's most prominent sons. Huddle up.

THREE-RING CIRCUS: Kobe, Shaq, Phil, and the Crazy Years of the Lakers Dynasty by Jeff Pearlman (Houghton Mifflin, Sept. 2020)

The story of the Lakers dynasty from 1996 through 2004, when Kobe Bryant and Shaquille O'Neal combined—and collided—to help bring the Lakers three straight championships and restore the franchise as a powerhouse

In the history of modern sport, there have never been two high-level teammates who loathed each other the way Shaquille O'Neal loathed Kobe Bryant, and Kobe Bryant loathed Shaquille O'Neal. From public sniping and sparring, to physical altercations and the repeated threats of trade, it was warfare. And yet, despite eight years of infighting and hostility, by turns mediated and encouraged by coach Phil Jackson, the Shaq-Kobe duo resulted in one of the greatest dynasties in NBA history. Together, the two led the Lakers to three straight championships and returned glory and excitement to Los Angeles.

In the tradition of Jeff Pearlman's bestsellers Showtime, Boys Will Be Boys, and The Bad Guys Won, Three-Ring Circus is a rollicking deep dive into one of sports' most fraught yet successful pairings.

ELWAY: A Relentless Life by Jason Cole (Hachette, Sept. 2020);

The unauthorized biography of John Elway, Hall of Fame Quarterback, two-time Super Bowl Champion, now President of Football Operations and General Manager of the Denver Broncos.

Jason Cole, a longtime football journalist is writing the definitive biography of one of the games most intense competitors: John Elway. Jason has conducted over 100 hours of interviews with the former Broncos quarterback, both during and after his playing days ended. In addition, he's spoken to an additional 200 people, including Elway's family, friends, former teammates, people who have worked with him, and those strongly influenced by Elway, chief among them New England quarterback Tom Brady. That first-hand view of Elway as he works and manages the Broncos has given Cole an intimate understanding of a very complex man. Elway's combination of competitive confidence and personal humility is a quality that requires deep understanding to explain.

THE Q FACTOR: The Elusive Search for the Next Great NFL Quarterback by Brian Billick and James Dale (Twelve/Grand Central Publishing, Sept 2020).

Brian Billick, Super Bowl-winning coach and current analyst for the NFL network, takes on the 2018 draft class of quarterbacks and follows them for two years, identifying the tangibles and intangibles of success, in search of the key to better predicting who will make it as a top-ranked NFL franchise QB.

There are elite athletes in every sport -- people who possess tangible and intangible qualities that allow them to overcome daunting odds, spot opportunity in the midst of adversity, and turn defeat into victory. No position embodies this dynamic more than football quarterbacks, and nothing is a greater test of performance than the NFL.

The tangibles -- metrics, stats, ratings, bowl games, championships -- are critical to evaluation. But they're not enough. Every year, highly rated college quarterbacks are analyzed, critiqued, hyped up and/or doubted, and those who manage to survive the scrutiny are drafted early. Some of those early picks make it to the top, some end up journeymen, and some just wash out. Why? What separates the elites from the pack?

In THE Q FACTOR, former NFL coach Brian Billick takes the highly promising 2018 NFL quarterback Draft class - the most touted class since 2004 (Manning, Roethlisberger, Rivers) and 1983 (Elway, Kelly, Marino) -- and measures the top five quarterback picks to gauge how, why, and if they succeed. They are all first rounders, all with sterling college credentials, all talented athletes, all taken by teams betting their futures. One or maybe two could go on to greatness. But which ones, and why? Could the prediction process be better? Are the "experts" looking at the wrong factors? How do we find the best of the best?

That's what THE Q FACTOR explores...and finally explains.

FULL COUNT: The Education of a Pitcher by David Cone and Jack Curry (Grand Central, May 2019)
New York Times Best Seller

Legendary MLB pitcher David Cone's upcoming memoir written with Jack Curry. From the pitchers he studied to the hitters who infuriated him, FULL COUNT takes readers inside the mind of a thoughtful pitcher, detailing Cone's passion, composure and strategies. The book is also filled with never-before-told stories from the memorable teams Cone played on—including the Mets and Yankees dynasties—and incredible stories about Derek Jeter, Darryl Strawberry, David Wells, Andy Pettite, Joe Torre, and more.

THE COST OF THESE DREAMS: Sports Stories and other Serious Business by Wright Thompson (Penguin, April 2, 2019). New York Times Best Seller

From one of America's most beloved sportswriters, a collection of true stories about the dream of greatness and its cost in the world of sports.

There is only one Wright Thompson. He is, as they say, famous if you know who he is: his work includes the most read articles in the history of ESPN (and it's not even close) and has been anthologized in the Best American Sports Writing series ten times, and he counts John Grisham and Richard Ford among his ardent admirers (see back of book). But to say his pieces are about sports, while true as far as it goes, is like saying Larry McMurtry's Lonesome Dove is a book about a cattle drive. Wright Thompson figures people out. He jimmys the lock to the furnaces inside the people he profiles and does an analysis of the fuel that fires their ambition. Whether it be Michael Jordan or Tiger Woods or Pat Riley or Urban Meyer, he strips the away the self-serving myths and fantasies to reveal his characters in full. There are fascinating common denominators: it may not be the case that every single great performer or coach had a complex relationship with his father, but it can sure seem that way. And there is much marvelous local knowledge: about specific sports, and times and places, and people. Ludicrously entertaining and often powerfully moving, The Cost of These Dreams is an ode to the reporter's art, and a celebration of true greatness and the high price that it exacts.

BELICHICK by Ian O'Connor (Houghton Mifflin, October 2018; paperback Sept 2019)

New York Times Best Seller

From a New York Times best-selling author, the definitive biography of the NFL's most enigmatic, controversial, successful coach, Bill Belichick, perhaps the most fascinating figure in the NFL—the infamously dour face of one of the most beloved franchises in sports. As head coach of the New England Patriots, he's led the team to five Super Bowl championship trophies. In this revelatory and robust biography, readers will come to understand Belichick's full life in football, from watching Naval Academy games as a kid with his scout father, to masterminding two Super Bowl-winning game plans as defensive coordinator for the Giants, to his dramatic leap to the Patriots where he has made history.

Veteran sports writer and award-winning author Ian O'Connor delves into the mind of the man who has earned a place among coaching legends, presenting sides of Belichick that have previously been unexplored. O'Connor discovers how this legendary coach shaped the people he met and worked with in ways perhaps even Belichick himself doesn't know. Those who follow pro football know Bill Belichick only as the hooded genius of the Patriots, a team shrouded in victory and controversy. Based on exhaustive research and countless interviews, this book circles around Belichick to tell his full story for the first time, and presents an incisive portrait of a mastermind at work.

FOOTBALL FOR A BUCK: The Crazy Rise and Crazier Demise of the USFL by Jeff Pearlman (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, September 2018; paperback Sept. 2019)

From a multiple New York Times best-selling author, the rollicking, outrageous story of Donald Trump's United States Football League, a bona fide professional sports phenomenon full of larger-than-life characters and you-can't-make-this-up stories featuring some of the biggest celebrities and buffoons in the game.

The USFL was the last football league to challenge the mighty NFL. It spanned three years, 1983–1986. It soared in popularity, but then it died beneath the weight of a particularly egotistical and bombastic owner at the time—Trump. The league featured as many as eighteen teams, and included such superstars as Herschel Walker, Jim Kelly, Steve Young, Reggie White, Doug Flutie, and Mike Rozier.

In Football for a Buck, dogged reporter and bestselling author Jeff Pearlman draws on some five hundred interviews to unearth all the salty, untold stories of one of the craziest sports organizations to have ever captivated our interest. From 1980s drug excess, to airborne brawls and hooker raids to backroom business deals to some of the greatest football on the field, Pearlman transports readers back in time to this crazy, boozy, audacious, unforgettable era of the game, showing how fortunes were made and lost on the backs of professional athletes and also how, thirty years ago, Trump was a scoundrel and a spoiler. This is sports as high entertainment—and a cautionary tale of the dangers of ego and excess.

THE BIG FELLA: Babe Ruth and the World He Created by Jane Leavy (HarperCollins, 2018; pb Oct 2019)

New York Times Best Seller

From Jane Leavy, the award-winning, New York Times bestselling author of The Last Boy and Sandy Koufax, comes the definitive biography of Babe Ruth—the man Roger Angell dubbed "the model for modern celebrity."

He lived in the present tense—in the camera's lens. There was no frame he couldn't or wouldn't fill. He swung the heaviest bat, earned the most money, and incurred the biggest fines. He expanded notions of the possible. Like all the new-fangled gadgets then flooding the marketplace, Babe Ruth "made impossible events happen." Aided by Christy Walsh—his business manager, spin doctor, damage control wizard, and surrogate father, all stuffed into one tightly buttoned double-breasted suit—Ruth drafted the blueprint for modern athletic stardom. His was a life of journeys: from uncouth to couth, impoverished to spendthrift; from Baltimore to Boston to New York, and back to Boston at the end of his career for a finale with the only team that would still have him. There were road trips and hunting trips; promotional tours and grand tours of foreign capitals, not to mention those 714 trips around the bases.

After hitting his 60th home run in September 1927—a record that would not be exceeded until 1961—he embarked on a three-week victory lap across America, accompanied by Yankee teammate Lou Gehrig. This was Babe Ruth's star tour through the American heartland. The Omaha World Herald called it "the biggest show since Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, and seven other associated circuses offered their entire performance under one tent." Acclaimed biographer Jane Leavy recreates that 21-day circus and in so doing captures the romp and the pathos that defined Ruth's life and times. Drawing from more than 250 interviews, a trove of previously untapped documents, and Ruth family records, Leavy breaks through the mythology that has obscured the legend and delivers the man. (

THE SOUL OF BASKETBALL: The Epic Showdown Between LeBron, Kobe, Doc, and Dirk That Saved the NBA by Ian Thomsen (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, April 2018)

The Soul of Basketball tells the story of an NBA prodigy, his league, and their sport in the throes of crisis during the pivotal 2010-11 season. It began with The Decision, that infamous televised moment when uber-star LeBron James revealed that he was leaving the Cleveland Cavaliers—thereby distancing himself from his role model Michael Jordan—to pursue his first championship with his former opponents on the Miami Heat. To the great fortune of LeBron, the NBA, and basketball itself, the mission didn't work out as planned. In the cultural tradition of Moneyball and Friday Night Lights, veteran NBA writer Ian Thomsen portrays the NBA as a self-correcting society in which young LeBron is forced to absorb hard truths inflicted by his rivals Kobe Bryant, Doc Rivers and Dirk Nowitzki, plus lessons set forth by Pat Riley, Gregg Popovich, Larry Bird, David Stern, Joey Crawford and many more.

This is about the making of a champion. The Soul of Basketball tells the inspiring story of LeBron's loneliest year, when his ultimate foe was an unlikely immigrant who renewed the American game's ideals. From Miami to Boston, L.A. to Dallas, Germany to the NBA's Manhattan headquarters, the biggest names in basketball are driven by something more valuable than money and fame—a quest that will pave the way for Stephen Curry, Kevin Durant, and future generations to thrive.

GETTING TO US: How Great Coaches Make Great Teams by Seth Davis (Penguin Press, March 2018)

What makes a coach great? How do great coaches turn a collection of individuals into a coherent “us”? Seth Davis, one of the keenest minds in sports journalism, has been thinking about that question for twenty-five years. In Getting to Us, Davis probes and prods the best of the best from the landscape of active coaches of football and basketball, college and pro—from Urban Meyer, Dabo Swinney, and Jim Harbaugh to Mike Krzyzewski, Tom Izzo, Jim Boeheim, Brad Stevens, Geno Auriemma, and Doc Rivers—to get at the fundamental ingredients of greatness in the coaching sphere. There's no single right way, of course. Part of the great value of this book is Davis's distillation of what he has learned about different types of greatness in coaching, and what sort of leadership thrives in one kind of environment but not in others. Some coaches have thrived at the college level but not in the pros. Why? What's the difference? Some coaches are stern taskmasters; others are warm and cuddly. Some are brilliant strategists but less emotionally involved with their players, and with others it's the opposite. In Getting to Us, we come to feel a deep connection with the most successful and iconic coaches in all of sports—big winners and big characters, whose stories offer much of enduring interest and value.

THE LAST PASS: Cousy, Russell, the Celtics, and What Matters in the End by Gary Pomerantz (Penguin, October 2018; paperback Oct. 2019);
New York Times Best Seller

From an acclaimed bestselling historian comes this poignant and revelatory narrative about the greatest dynasty in American professional sports history, and an intimate story of race, mortality, and regret.

About to turn ninety, Bob Cousy, the Hall of Fame Boston Celtics captain who led the team to its first six championships, has much to look back on in peace and contentment. Yet for Cousy, a widower living alone in a big house, there's one piece of unfinished business: to close the circle with his great partner on those Celtics teams, fellow Hall of Famer Bill Russell, now 84. These teammates were basketball's Ruth and Gehrig, and Cooz, as everyone called him, was famously ahead of his time as an NBA player in terms of race and civil rights.

But as the decades passed, Cousy blamed himself for not having done enough, for not having understood the depth of prejudice that Russell faced as an African-American star in a city with a fraught history regarding race. Cousy wishes he had defended Russell publicly, and that he had told him privately that he had his back. At this late hour, how can he make amends?

To Boston's white sportswriters the Celtics were Cousy's team, not Russell's. As the civil rights movement took flight, Russell became more publicly involved in it, which involved some ugly repercussions. THE LAST PASS situates the Celtics dynasty against the full dramatic canvas of American life in the 50's and 60's, with Cousy and Russell in the foreground. An enthralling portrait of the heart of this legendary team and a book about the legacy of a life: what matters to us in the end, long after the arena lights have been turned off and we are alone with our memories.

ALI: A Life by Jonathan Eig (Harcourt Houghton Mifflin, Oct. 2017; paperback Oct. 2018); <http://www.alialife.com/>
New York Times bestseller

Ali: A Life will be the first definitive biography of Muhammed Ali. Eig will begin at the beginning, following Ali from childhood through his Six Golden Glove titles in Louisville, his gold medal in the 1960 Rome Olympics, and the pro career followed back in the States. From there, we'll see Ali's perspective on being black in America begin to change, as he becomes involved with members of the Nation of Islam. With his newfound religion, Ali rejects the expectations of white America, refusing to fight in Vietnam, and ultimately sparking a change in popular view of the war. We'll see Ali at his physical peak, as he defeats Sonny Liston, and then George Foreman. And, ultimately, Eig will show us the irreversible neurological effects of a career in professional boxing, his stepping in and out of retirement, and the series of unfortunate business decisions that followed when Ali retired for good. We'll see Ali at the 1996 Atlanta Olympics, the American hero in a white track suit, and today, debilitated by Parkinson's, not having given a public appearance in years.

ALI: A LIFE was a finalist for an NAACP Image Award. It has also been long-listed for the Plutarch Prize for biography and the 2018 PEN/ESPN Award for literary sports writing. The Wall Street Journal named it one of the ten best non-fiction books of 2017, Smithsonian called it one of the ten best books of the year, and Sports Illustrated called it the best book of 2017.

ARNIE: The Life of Arnold Palmer by Tom Callahan (HarperCollins, April 2017; paperback March 2018)

In a sport, and in an era, that was slow and reluctant to change, the great Arnold Palmer built a bridge between the country club and the town square. The son of a greenskeeper, he entered the rarified realm of professional golf through the service entrance and became one of its most beloved players. With his frank, charismatic manner, he commenced a paradigm shift in golf from an elite, upper-class pastime to the democratic sport we know today. Photogenic and telegenic, Palmer, in his prime, became one of the first celebrity athletes this country has known; even people who hate golf love Arnold Palmer. In ARNIE, veteran golf journalist Tom Callahan will set out to write the first definitive biography of golf's greatest player, seeking to tell the untold stories of a true American original, adored by so many.

THE PHENOMENON: Pressure, the Yips, and the Pitch that Changed My Life by Rick Ankiel and Tim Brown, (PublicAffairs, 2017)

Rick Ankiel had the talent to be one of the best pitchers ever. Then, one day, he lost it. The Phenomenon is the story of how St. Louis Cardinals prodigy Rick Ankiel lost his once-in-a-generation ability to pitch - not due to an injury or a bolt of lightning, but a mysterious anxiety condition widely known as "the Yips." It came without warning, in the middle of a playoff game, with millions of people watching. And it has never gone away. Yet the true test of Ankiel's character came not on the mound, but in the long days and nights that followed as he searched for a way to get back in the game. For four and a half years, he fought the Yips with every arrow in his quiver: psychotherapy, medication, deep-breathing exercises, self-help books, and, eventually, vodka. And then, after reconsidering his whole life at the age of twenty-five, Ankiel made an amazing turnaround: returning to the Major Leagues as a hitter and playing seven successful seasons.

This book is an incredible story about a universal experience -- pressure -- and what happened when a person on the brink had to make a choice about who he was going to be.

FINDING CHIKA: A Little Girl, an Earthquake, and the Making of a Family by Mitch Albom (HarperCollins, November 5, 2019; paperback publication May 18, 2021)

New York Times Best Seller

Bestselling author Mitch Albom returns to nonfiction for the first time in more than a decade in this poignant memoir that celebrates Chika, a young Haitian orphan whose short life would forever change his heart.

Chika Jeune was born three days before the devastating earthquake that decimated Haiti in 2010. She spent her infancy in a landscape of extreme poverty, and when her mother died giving birth to a baby brother, Chika was brought to The Have Faith Haiti Orphanage that Albom operates in Port Au Prince.

With no children of their own, the forty-plus children who live, play, and go to school at the orphanage have become family to Mitch and his wife, Janine. Chika's arrival makes a quick impression. Brave and self-assured, even as a three-year-old, she delights the other kids and teachers. But at age five, Chika is suddenly diagnosed with something a doctor there says, "No one in Haiti can help you with." Mitch and Janine bring Chika to Detroit, hopeful that American medical care can soon return her to her homeland. Instead, Chika becomes a permanent part of their household, and their lives, as they embark on a two-year, around-the-world journey to find a cure. As Chika's boundless optimism and humor teach Mitch the joys of parenting, he learns that a relationship built on love, no matter what blows it takes, can never be lost.

Told in hindsight, and through illuminating conversations with Chika herself, this is Albom at his most poignant and vulnerable. Chika is a celebration of a girl, her adoptive guardians, and the incredible bond they formed—a devastatingly beautiful portrait of what it means to be a family, regardless of how it is made.

THE NEXT PERSON YOU MEET IN HEAVEN by Mitch Albom (HarperCollins; October 9, 2018)

#1 New York Times Best Seller

The long-awaited sequel to the mega bestselling The Five People You Meet in Heaven and the latest novel by #1 internationally renowned and bestselling author Mitch Albom.

In 2003, in Albom's beloved tale, The Five People You Meet in Heaven, the world fell in love with Eddie, a grizzled war veteran-turned-amusement park mechanic who died saving the life of a young girl named Annie. Eddie, who felt his life was meaningless, journeyed to heaven and encountered five people from his time on earth who showed him every life matters, and we touch each other in countless, unimaginable ways. Now, in this enchanting sequel, Albom reveals what happened to Annie, the little girl, how her world changed after the accident, and what awaits her when she eventually makes her own journey to heaven and reunites with the man who saved her. Through this unforgettable sequel, we learn how the accident that took Eddie's life took something from Annie as well: her left hand—which needed to be surgically reattached. She also lost any memory of the accident, wiped out by the trauma.

Scarred and confused, Annie is whisked away by a guilt-ravaged mother to start a new life, far away from the world she knew. Bullied by her peers and haunted by something she cannot recall, Annie struggles to find acceptance as she grows. She makes mistake after mistake, and comes to feel she is fated to a life of trying but failing. Then, in her early 30's, she reconnects with Paulo, her childhood love, and believes she has finally found happiness. But when their wedding night ends in an unimaginable accident, Annie begins her own heavenly journey—and the inevitable reunion with Eddie, who is now one of the five people to illuminate her life, much the way his was illuminated by others.

Poignant and beautiful, filled with unexpected twists, The Next Person You Meet in Heaven reminds us that our mistakes are not always what they seem, and every ending is also a beginning—we only need to open our eyes to see it.

THE MAGIC STRINGS OF FRANKIE PRESTO: A Novel by Mitch Albom (HarperCollins, November 2015; paperback Nov 2016)

This is the epic story of Frankie Presto—the greatest guitar player to ever walk the earth—and the six lives he changed with his six blue strings. Born under ringing chimes of a burning church, Frankie's amazing journey from a war-torn Spanish town to America weaves him through the musical landscape of the 1940's, 50's and 60's, his stunning talent affecting numerous stars along the way (Duke Ellington, Hank Williams, Elvis Presley) until, as if predestined, he becomes a pop star himself. But Frankie Presto's gift is also his burden, as he realizes the power of the magical strings his childhood teacher gave him, and how, through his music, he can actually affect people's fates. With the spirit of Music as our otherworldly guide, we see how "everyone joins a band in this life" and how each of us affects its members, just as its members affect us. A longtime musician himself, #1 New York Times Bestselling Author Mitch Albom creates his deepest, most fascinating tale, a remarkable novel about the power of talent to change lives.

NO ONE GOES ALONE: a novel by Erik Larson (PRH Audio/A Random House Audiobook Original, September 28, 2021): audio rights only

Tv/film option: Chernin Entertainment

From New York Times bestselling author Erik Larson comes his first venture into fiction, an otherworldly tale of intrigue and the impossible that marshals his trademark approach to nonfiction to create something new: a ghost story thoroughly grounded in history.

Pioneering psychologist William James leads an expedition to a remote isle in search of answers after a family inexplicably vanishes. Was the cause rooted in the physical world . . . or were there forces more paranormal and sinister at work? Available only on audio, because as Larson says, ghost stories are best told aloud.

A group of researchers sets sail for the Isle of Dorn in the North Atlantic in 1905 to explore the cause of several mysterious disappearances, most notably a family of four who vanished without a trace after a week-long holiday on the island. Led by Professor James, a prominent member of the Society for Psychical Research, they begin to explore the island's sole cottage and surrounding landscape in search of a logical explanation.

The idyllic setting belies an undercurrent of danger and treachery, with raging storms and unnerving discoveries adding to the sense of menace. As increasingly unexplainable events unfold, the now-stranded investigators are unsure whether they can trust their own eyes, their instincts, one another—or even themselves.

Erik Larson has written a terrifying tale of suspense, underpinned with actual people and events. Created specifically to entertain audio listeners, this eerie blend of the ghostly and the real will keep listeners captivated till the blood-chilling end.

Read by Julian Rhind-Tutt and featuring Erik Larson reading his Notes for a Narrator.

DEAD WAKE: The Last Crossing of the Lusitania by Erik Larson (Crown, March 2015; paperback March 2016)

#1 New York Times bestseller

<http://www.eriklarsonbooks.com>

From internationally bestselling author and master of narrative non-fiction comes a riveting story many of us think we know but don't: the sinking of the Lusitania. On May 1, 1915, with WWI entering its tenth month, a luxury ocean liner sailed out of NY, bound for Liverpool, carrying 1200 passengers. For months, German U-boats brought terror to the North Atlantic but the Lusitania was one of the era's great transatlantic "Greyhounds"—the fastest liner then in service—and her captain, William Thomas Turner, placed tremendous faith in the gentlemanly strictures of warfare that for a century had kept civilian ships safe from attack. Germany, however, was determined to change the rules of the game, and Walther Schwieger, the captain of Unterseeboot-20, was happy to oblige. Meanwhile, an ultra-secret British intelligence unit tracked Schwieger's U-boat, but told no one. As U-20 and the Lusitania made their way toward Liverpool, an array of forces—hubris, a chance fog, a closely guarded secret, and more—converged to produce one of the great disasters of history. Drawing on new sources, Larson crafts a maritime thriller that captures the sheer drama, suspense, and emotional power of the disaster.

THE CULTURE CODE: The Secrets of Highly Successful Groups by Daniel Coyle (PRH/Bantam, January 2018); <http://thetalentcode.com/>

New York Times bestseller

New York Times bestselling author of The Talent Code and The Little Book of Talent Daniel Coyle's THE CULTURE CODE, unlocks the secrets of highly successful groups and provides tomorrow's leaders with the tools to build a cohesive, motivated culture.

Where does great culture come from? How do you build and sustain it in your group, or strengthen a culture that needs fixing?

In The Culture Code, Daniel Coyle goes inside some of the world's most successful organizations—including the U.S. Navy's SEAL Team Six, IDEO, and the San Antonio Spurs—and reveals what makes them tick. He demystifies the culture-building process by identifying three key skills that generate cohesion and cooperation, and explains how diverse groups learn to function with a single mind. Drawing on examples that range from Internet retailer Zappos to the comedy troupe Upright Citizens Brigade to a daring gang of jewel thieves, Coyle offers specific strategies that trigger learning, spark collaboration, build trust, and drive positive change. Coyle unearths helpful stories of failure that illustrate what not to do, troubleshoots common pitfalls, and shares advice about reforming a toxic culture. Combining leading-edge science, on-the-ground insights from world-class leaders, and practical ideas for action, The Culture Code offers a roadmap for creating an environment where innovation flourishes, problems get solved, and expectations are exceeded.

Culture is not something you are—it's something you do. The Culture Code puts the power in your hands. No matter the size of your group or your goal, this book can teach you the principles of cultural chemistry that transform individuals into teams that can accomplish amazing things together.

HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL WITHOUT HURTING MEN'S FEELINGS: Non-threatening Leadership Strategies for Women by Sarah Cooper (Andrews McMeel, October 2018); <http://sarahcpr.com/>

Ambitious women are so scary. In this fast-paced business world, female leaders need to make sure they're not perceived as pushy, aggressive, or competent. In HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL WITHOUT HURTING MEN'S FEELINGS, Sarah Cooper, author of the bestselling 100 TRICKS TO APPEAR SMART IN MEETINGS, illustrates how women can achieve their dreams, succeed in their careers, and become leaders, without harming the fragile male ego.

Chapters include, among others, "9 Non-threatening Leadership Strategies for Women," "How to Ace Your Job Interview Without Over-Acing It", and "Choose Your Own Adventure: Do You Want to Be Likable or Successful?" It even includes several pages to doodle on while men finish what they're saying. Each chapter also features an exercise with a set of "inaction items" designed to challenge women to be less challenging.

And, when all else fails, a set of wearable mustaches is included to allow women to seem more man-like. This will cancel out any need to change their leadership style. In fact, it may even lead to a quick promotion!

SEEKING WISDOM: A Spiritual Path to Creative Connection by Julia Cameron (St. Martin's/Essentials, January 2022); (previously titled TALKING TO GOD).

In another 6 week creativity program, Julia Cameron focuses on cultivating the art of prayer in one's life to unblock creatively and live a more authentic, joyful life. SEEKING WISDOM is a perfect follow-up to THE LISTENING PATH, which shifted our perspective to the creative art of attention, fostering re-engagement with one's environments and building deeper connections to gain insight, clarity and deepen our creativity. SEEKING WISDOM takes us to the next level; through inspiring stories and revealing exercises, Julia will guide her reader to find a way forward as an artist, through prayer. In another 6 week creativity program, Julia's audience can delve into the inextricable link between spirituality and creativity, and put prayer into their daily practice. The book explores the questioning and seeking of a higher power, and finding solace, answers, gratitude, joy and creative growth through prayer.

From reframing the God concept and “praying on the page” to learning about trusting guidance, readers will see how writing is an act of prayer, that “as we take care to write what is unfolding within us, the flow of words is a flow of grace. The higher power writes through us.” Julia teaches us how life is a prayer, how prayer is woven into the very fabric of life. “For decades, I have shared this connection with my students and as they have worked with this concept, their creativity—and their connection to the divine—have consistently blossomed as well.”

THE LISTENING PATH: The Creative Art of Attention [A 6-Week ARTIST’S WAY program] by Julia Cameron
(St. Martin’s/Essentials, January 2021);

Publisher’s Weekly Bestseller

From the bestselling author of THE ARTIST’S WAY comes a new guide that will urge readers to listen more carefully, to listen in deeper ways, which will bring us healing, insight and clarity. The act of listening generates empathy and connection. We hone our presence and have deeper, more meaningful relationships. THE LISTENING PATH is a gentle path with tools along the way to become better listeners –to our environment, to each other and to ourselves. Listening connects us to higher realms and brings us to our true, authentic selves.

Hailed by the New York Times as “The Queen of Change,” Julia Cameron is credited with starting a movement in 1992 that has brought creativity into the mainstream conversation— in the arts, in business, and in everyday life. She is the best-selling author of more than forty books, fiction and nonfiction; a poet, songwriter, filmmaker and playwright. Commonly referred to as “The Godmother” or “High Priestess” of creativity, her tools are based in practice, not theory, and she considers herself “the floor sample of her own toolkit.” The New York Times described The Artist’s Way as “one of the most enduring books in the broader self-help genre, its purpose and style seemingly invulnerable to social and cultural shifts.” The Artist’s Way has been translated into forty languages and sold over five million copies to date. juliacameronlive.com

GOLDENROD by Maggie Smith (One Signal/Simon & Schuster; July 27, 2021) [Excludes UK; translation only]

With her breakout bestseller KEEP MOVING, Maggie Smith captured the nation with her “meditations on kindness and hope” (NPR). Now, with Goldenrod, the award-winning poet returns with a powerful collection of poems that look at parenthood, solitude, love, and memory. Pulling objects from everyday life—a hallway mirror, a rock found in her son’s pocket, a field of goldenrods at the side of the road—she reveals the magic of the present moment. Only Maggie Smith could turn an autocorrect mistake into a line of poetry, musing that her phone “doesn’t observe / the high holidays, autocorrecting / shana tova to shaman tobacco, / Rosh Hashanah to rose has hands.”

Slate called Smith’s “superpower as a writer” her “ability to find the perfect concrete metaphor for inchoate human emotions and explore it with empathy and honesty.” The poems in Goldenrod celebrate the contours of daily life, explore and delight in the space between thought and experience, and remind us that we decide what is beautiful.

Maggie Smith is the award-winning author of Good Bones, The Well Speaks of Its Own Poison, Lamp of the Body, and the national bestseller Keep Moving: Notes on Loss, Creativity, and Change. A 2011 recipient of a Creative Writing Fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts, Smith has also received several Individual Excellence Awards from the Ohio Arts Council, two Academy of American Poets Prizes, a Pushcart Prize, and fellowships from the Sustainable Arts Foundation and the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts. She has been widely published, appearing in The New York Times, The New Yorker, The Paris Review, The Best American Poetry, and more.

KEEP MOVING: THE JOURNAL: Thrive Through Change and Create a Life You Love by Maggie Smith (One Signal/Simon & Schuster; October 26, 2021) [Excludes UK; translation only]

Based on the national bestseller Keep Moving—called “a meditation on kindness and hope” (NPR)—a 52-exercise journal about hope and renewal from the award-winning poet.

As Maggie Smith navigated loss and upheaval, she wrote to herself each day—forgiving herself for a past mistake, reflecting on moments of joy, or looking towards the future, ending each note-to-self with the phrase “keep moving.”

In her own words, “I wasn’t offering wisdom from on high; I was talking to myself at the bottom of a dark well, trying to climb up into the light, little by little, day by day.” Smith was surprised not only by how uplifting this process was, but also by the outpouring of support and gratitude from thousands of people who found solace in her words.

Through the healing power of writing, Keep Moving: The Journal invites us to find beauty in the present moment, embrace change, and create a life we love.

 KEEP MOVING by Maggie Smith (Signal/Atria, October 2020). [Excludes UK; translation only]

National bestseller

For fans of Anne Lamott and Cleo Wade, a collection of quotes and essays on facing life’s challenges with creativity, courage, and resilience.

When Maggie Smith, the award-winning author of the viral poem “Good Bones,” started writing inspirational daily Twitter posts in the wake of her divorce, they unexpectedly caught fire. In this deeply moving book of quotes and essays, Maggie writes about new beginnings as opportunities for transformation. Like kintsugi, the Japanese art of mending broken ceramics with gold, Keep Moving celebrates the beauty and strength on the other side of loss. This is a book for anyone who has gone through a difficult time and is wondering: What comes next?

“A Poet for Times of Trouble.” —The Wall Street Journal

“Keep Moving speaks to you like an encouraging friend reminding you that you can feel and survive deep loss, sink into life’s deep beauty, and constantly, constantly make yourself new.”

ETERNAL LIFE by Dara Horn (W.W. Norton, Jan. 2018; pb Jan 2019)

Critically acclaimed author Dara Horn returns with an ingenious novel about what it would mean to live forever.

Rachel has an unusual problem: she can't die. Her recent troubles—widowhood, a failing business, an unemployed middle-aged son—are only the latest. She's already put up with scores of marriages and hundreds of children, over 2,000 years—ever since she made a spiritual bargain to save the life of her first son back in Roman-occupied Jerusalem. There's only one other person in the world who understands: a man she once loved passionately, who has been stalking her through the centuries, convinced they belong together forever. In 2018, as her children and grandchildren develop new technologies for immortality, Rachel knows she must enable her beloved offspring to live fully—without her, but with meaning—by finding a way for herself to die. Gripping, hilarious, and profoundly moving, Eternal Life celebrates the bonds between generations, the power of faith, the purpose of death, and the reasons for being alive.

In 2007, Dara Horn was chosen by Granta magazine as one of 20 “Best Young American Novelists.” She's also the author of The World to Come and A Guide for the Perplexed. <http://darahorn.com>;

ALL OTHER NIGHTS by Dara Horn (W.W. Norton; May 2009). [Translation rights only; excludes British Commonwealth.]

We don't want you to murder her—we want you to marry her.” This order is given to Jacob Rappaport, a 19-year-old Jewish assassin for the Union Army. Jacob is at the center of ALL OTHER NIGHTS, an espionage thriller set during the American Civil War, combining the romance and historical detail of Charles Frazier's COLD MOUNTAIN with the skillful suspense of Daniel Silva. After Jacob agrees to assassinate a Southern cousin for the Union, his commanders tell him that they've found another spy for him to go after—the attractive daughter of one of his father's business partners. When Jacob protests that he won't assassinate this woman, they tell him he's to marry her to infiltrate her network of intelligence. Neither Jacob nor his superiors anticipate one insurmountable complication: He falls in love with her. Sacrificing none of her acclaimed intelligence or grace, in ALL OTHER NIGHTS Dara uses the conventions of a spy thriller to create a commercial novel that will also explore loyalty, how we decide who deserves our devotion, and why.

THE WORLD TO COME By Dara Horn, W.W. Norton (January 2006). [Translation only; excludes British commonwealth].

A million-dollar painting by Marc Chagall is stolen from a museum during a singles' cocktail hour. The unlikely thief is Benjamin Ziskind, a 30-year-old quiz show writer who last saw the painting as a child, in his own living room. As Benjamin and his twin sister frantically try to evade the police, they stumble upon the secrets of their dead parents: the father who lost a leg in Vietnam, the mother who created children's books—both lives full of loss and betrayal. Over eighty years earlier, Chagall and the enigmatic Yiddish fabulist Der Nister (“The Hidden One”) were teachers at a school for Jewish children orphaned by Russian pogroms. Their encounter with a single child will unlock the painting's past—and Benjamin Ziskind's future. Winner of three national awards for her first novel, Dara Horn crafts a gripping literary mystery that interweaves a real art heist, Yiddish literature, and biographies of actual artists with an astonishing combination of simplicity and depth—revealing, in a stunning climax, the powerful beauty of “the world to come.”

IN THE IMAGE by Dara Horn, W.W. Norton & Co. (September 2002)/paperback August 2003. [Translation only; excludes British commonwealth].

A stunning debut about the different modes of Jewish experience; a literary fantasia about Jewish life and literature, tradition and assimilation, tested faith and memory. Rife with allusions to the Old Testament, Hebrew mysticism, and Jewish numerology, IN THE IMAGE sets up striking parallels between the urban life of casual, cultural Jews; a young Hassidic convert; and the tribulations of the Lower East Side's relocated wretched refuse.

A RAISIN IN THE SUN by Lorraine Hansberry (Random House originally published in 1959; Vintage reissue 2004), the classic, bestselling and ground-breaking play. Originally published in 1959, the book has sold nearly 2 million copies. There's a resurgence in interest in Hansberry's iconic work, and it's our honor to share this with the world.

“Never before, the entire history of the American theater, has so much of the truth of black people’s lives been seen on the stage,” observed James Baldwin shortly before A Raisin in the Sun opened on Broadway in 1959.

Indeed Lorraine Hansberry’s award-winning drama about the hopes and aspirations of a struggling, working-class family living on the South Side of Chicago connected profoundly with the psyche of black America—and changed American theater forever. The play’s title comes from a line in Langston Hughes’s poem “Harlem,” which warns that a dream deferred might “dry up/like a raisin in the sun.”

“The events of every passing year add resonance to A Raisin in the Sun,” said The New York Times. “It is as if history is conspiring to make the play a classic.” This Modern Library edition presents the fully restored, uncut version of Hansberry’s landmark work with an introduction by Robert Nemiroff.

When it was first produced in 1959, A Raisin in the Sun was awarded the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for that season and hailed as a watershed in American drama. A pioneering work by an African-American playwright, the play was a radically new representation of black life.

"A play that changed American theater forever."
--The New York Times.

About the Author

Lorraine Hansberry (1930-1965) electrified the theatrical world with her first play, A Raisin in the Sun, which won the New York Critics Circle Award for the 1958-59 season. Before her tragic death from cancer at the age of 34, she had already produced a remarkable body of work, including The Sign in Sidney Brustein’s Window and Les Blancs. Her former husband and literary executor, the late Robert Nemiroff, posthumously produced and published her To Be Young, Gifted and Black and the musical Raisin.

Lorraine Hansberry, at twenty-nine, became the youngest American, the fifth woman, and the first black playwright to win the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for the Best Play of the Year. Her A Raisin in the Sun has since been published and produced in some 30 countries, while her film adaptation was nominated by the New York critics for the Best Screenplay and received a Cannes Film Festival Award. At thirty-four, during the run of her second play, The Sign in Sidney Brustein’s Window, Lorraine Hansberry died of cancer. In the years since her death, her stature has continued to grow. To Be Young, Gifted and Black, a dramatic portrait of the playwright in her own words, was the longest-running Off-Broadway drama of 1969, and has been recorded, filmed, and published in expanded book form, and has toured an unprecedented forty states and two hundred colleges. In 1986, following the stage production of the 25th anniversary of A Raisin in the Sun by the Roundabout Theatre in New York City, the play was widely acclaimed as in the foremost ranks of American classics. In 1990, the PBS American Playhouse TV adaptation of the 25th-anniversary version had one of the highest viewing audiences in PBS history. Les Blancs, her last play—posthumously performed on Broadway and recently in prominent regional theaters—has been hailed by a number of critics as her best.

BECOMING GANDHI: My Life-Changing Experiments Following the Mahatma's 6 Moral Truths in these Immoral Times by Perry Garfinkel; (Formerly titled BEING GANDHI); (Sounds True; January 2024). ms. available (*Author controls UK, Germany, India);

These days it often seems that the human race has lost its moral compass. Who can we turn to for inspiration? Where are the mentors and role models representing a dedication to higher standards of integrity? Perry Garfinkel, author of the bestselling BUDDHA OR BUST and a New York Times contributor, looks to Mahatma Gandhi for direction. More than ever, we need to follow Gandhi's example and "be the change." But how? Garfinkel will conduct an "experiment with truth" and follow Gandhi's six main principles, literally—and live them on a daily basis: truth, non-violence, vegetarianism, simplicity, faith and celibacy. He will turn to Gandhi and the body of writing he left behind, "a virtual how-to instructional on living a virtuous life, one man's guide to moral integrity followed by many people around the world—but not enough." With Gandhi as our guide, Garfinkel will examine his own beliefs and intentions, and work on cleaning up habits in practice and in thought. The hope is to become a better version of oneself.

Garfinkel will travel to locations of importance to the Mahatma and places that changed him. From Porbandar, where Gandhi was born in 1869 and where his philosophy took root; to Pietermaritzburg, South Africa, where Gandhi was thrown off a train, motivating him to enact his first protests and give rise to the birth of nonviolent resistance; to London, where Gandhi became intensely involved with the London Vegetarian Society. Garfinkel will learn to use the spinning wheel and how to wear a dhoti as Gandhi did, to express the simplicity of his life, "reducing himself to zero." Culminating in walking Gandhi's 240-mile Salt March, the Dandi March, which added momentum for the push to achieve India's sovereignty, Garfinkel will examine the historical and metaphorical meaning of the march for independence. While looking at Gandhi's example as a model of hope, BECOMING GANDHI will seek to inspire and influence others to look within to change.
