She thinks she’s won the game, but they’re just getting started.

If Banner had a dollar for every time Jared broke her heart, she’d have exactly one dollar. One epic failure of a night. After parting on such bad terms, Banner has no intention of ever giving Jared a second chance. She’s found success in a field ruled by men like him. She’s learned to call the shots and block them when she has to.

No Other Gods, Book 1

The first in a spellbinding new urban fantasy from USA Today bestselling author and TikTok sensation Piper CJ. Fantasy author Marlow has been haunted by what she believes is a figure of her imagination: a mysterious and alluring man she calls Caliban. But when Caliban disappears, her quest to find him throws her into the very world of gods, demons, and monsters her books have been based on for years.

- Author is a viral TikTok sensation: Piper CJ is a TikTok sensation with over 1.1 million followers and over 15 million views combined on the series hashtags #tnaim and #thenightanditsmoon.
- Proven success: Piper CJ has sold over 50,000 copies of The Night and Its Moon between its September 2022 release and May 2023, still steadily selling over 1,000 copies a week
- Perfect for fans of: Jennifer Armentrout, Scarlett St. Clair, and Sarah J Maas; Piper’s books include incredible world-building and LGBTQIA+ elements from a queer author

The deities you call aren't always the ones who answer.

Marlow needs to believe she's crazy. The alternative would mean embracing the gift—or curse—shared by her mother and grandmother: she can see angels and demons. She would have to admit she's been seeing one for years, the alluring, starlit man she calls Caliban, who understands her, soothes her, loves her like no one else. And with her history of religious trauma, she's far too afraid to do that—at least, until a fae from the Nordic pantheon strolls into her life and informs her that her so-called hallucinations are actually a passionate affair with the Prince of Hell.

A prince who has now gone missing.

But finding Caliban will mean accepting her new reality and seeing the world for what it truly is. The veil is far thinner than she or any human realizes, and the mortal realm is up for grabs. Before she knows it, Marlow is deeply entangled in a centuries-old war, stumbling straight into a battleground between vicious and powerful pantheons. And who will come out on top...may just depend on her and the man she never dared to believe in.

PIPER CJ, author of the bisexual fantasy series The Night and Its Moon, is a photographer, hobby linguist, and french fry enthusiast. Timothy Janovsky

Boy Meets Boy, Book 3

13 Going on 30 meets One Last Stop in an LGBTQIA+ Romance by author Timothy Janovsky

- Fantastic hook: 13 Going on 30 meets One Last Stop when a young man wishes he could “skip to the good part” of life in this hilarious and heartwarming LGBTQIA+ rom-com in the vein of Alexis Hall
- Perfect YA fiction crossover: Features younger characters, a lower heat level, and includes fun rom-com tropes like best-friends-to-lovers with a very light speculative touch
- Fresh new voice: Timothy Janovsky is a multidisciplinary storyteller with a charming voice perfect for the rom-com space

Nolan Baker wants it all by the time he’s thirty. Too bad he’s single, barely able to cover his own expenses, and still paying his dues at a prominent NYC comedy club. When an invitation for his sister’s engagement party arrives, Nolan takes it as a wakeup call. It’s time to quit comedy and make good on his practical dreams—most importantly, asking Drew Techler, his childhood best friend, to be his date.

But right as Nolan is about to give it all up, he’s asked to fill a last-minute spot for a famous comedian. Score! He crushes his set, but stands Drew up, misses his sister’s big day, and disappoints his entire family. After major blowouts with everyone he loves, Nolan desperately wishes on a set of gag gift “magical healing crystals” to just skip to the good part of life. When he wakes the next morning, it’s seven years later, he’s a twenty-nine-year-old successful comedian, and he has everything he always thought he wanted. Everything, that is, except his friends and family, none of whom are taking his future self’s calls.

With nowhere else to turn, Nolan sets out to find the only person he trusts to help him. Except Drew is all grown up now, too. He’s hot, successful...and hates Nolan’s guts. As Nolan works to get back to his younger self—and the life he so carelessly threw away—he finds himself working to regain Drew’s trust, friendship, and maybe, ultimately, his heart.

TIMOTHY JANOVSKY is a queer, multidisciplinary storyteller from New Jersey. He holds a degree in theatre and dance from Muhlenberg College. His work as a humor writer has been featured on Points in Case, The Broadway Beat, and Well Mannered Grump, and his fiction short story debut was published by Voyage YA Journal. When he’s not daydreaming about a young Hugh Grant, he’s writing the queer rom-coms he wished he had as a teenager.

Feeling nostalgic on the eve of his birthday, he sends emails to all the boys he (ahem) loved before he came out. Morning brings the inevitable Oh God What Did I Do?, but he brushes that panic aside. Why stress about it? None of his could-have-beens are actually going to read the emails, much less respond. Right?

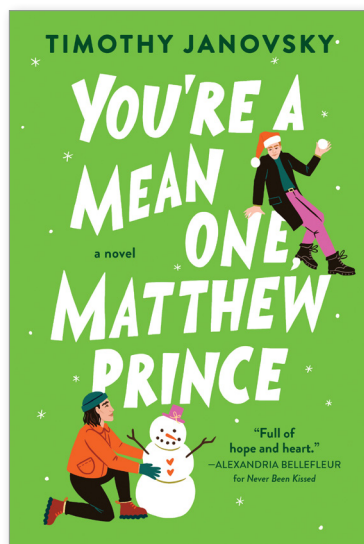

Enter Derick Haverford, Wren's #1 pre-coming-out-crush and his drive-in theater's new social media intern. Everyone claims he's coasting on cinematic good looks and his father's connections, but Wren has always known there's much more to Derick than meets the eye. Too bad he doesn't feel the same way about the infamous almost-kiss that once rocked Wren's world.

Whatever. Wren's no longer a closeted teenager; he can survive this. But as their hazy summer becomes consumed with a special project that may just save the struggling drive-in for good, Wren and Derick are drawn ever-closer...and maybe, finally, Wren's dream of a perfect-kiss-before-the-credits is within reach.

10 Things That Never Happened

Alexis Hall

Material World, Book 1

From Alexis Hall's breakout Boyfriend Material expanded universe comes a hilarious LGBTQIA+ romcom about identity, mistaken first impressions, and a serious case of (faux) amnesia.

- Bestselling series: The next book in the beloved Boyfriend Material universe, following fan-favorite characters in new settings and situations

Sam Becker is the manager of the Leeds location of a bed and bath retailer. It's a pretty great job, all told; management suits him, and his staff adore him, not least because he places a high value on making the store a humane place to work. Too bad, then, that the owner is a thoroughly intimidating git.

Jonathan Forest should never have hired Sam Becker in the first place. It was a sentimental decision—he saw something in the sunny young Northerner—and Jonathan did not get to where he is by following his heart. Trying to fix the situation, Jonathan orders Sam down to the Croydon branch for a difficult talk... only for Sam (panicked at the idea of a confrontation with the surly owner) to bump his head and, well, pretend he doesn't remember anything?

Faking amnesia seemed like a good idea in the heat of the moment, but now Sam has to deal with the very real reality of Jonathan's guilt—and the unexpected new sides of the surly man he never thought he'd see. There's an unexpected freedom in getting a second shot at a first impression...but as Sam and Jonathan grow closer, can Sam really bring himself to tell the truth, or will their future be built entirely on one impulsive lie?

Not Bad for a Girl

Anastasia Ryan

Indiana Aaron gets a taste of male privilege when her new remote boss mistakes her for a man. Is there ever a good time to blow your cover?

- Relatable mainstream appeal: The challenges of the new hybrid/remote workplace are all over the media and the concept of differences in perception based on gender alone resonates with the young working woman

It's a man's world, and Indiana "Ana" Aaron, a talented coder and IT specialist, doesn't fit in. She says what she thinks, which frequently gets her in trouble and most recently has resulted in her transfer to a remote work team. She sees working from home as a chance at redemption (by keeping her head down and her camera off). But, almost immediately, her new boss makes a huge mistake in a report, and Ana feels compelled to point it out. She expects extreme repercussions, like before, but instead, the boss praises "Mr." Aaron for his assertiveness and gives the team the afternoon off, to the delight of her fellow "bros."

It's a simple error. Indiana is one of those names. But would it have gone that way if he had known what she looked like? She's considering how to set everyone straight without making things worse when her work besties complicate things further. In a misguided attempt to "help" during a reference check, the legend of "Indiana" begins to take on a life of its own. Ana is suddenly in over her head. She doesn't know how to compete with her alter-ego "Indiana," who is a former Navy SEAL, an emergency back-up goalie for the Colorado Avalanche, and an abstract artist. Fortunately, Ana is picking up more allies, including Shane, a handsome tech guy on her team who's smart enough to put the puzzle together. But how can she be true to herself and follow her heart in the midst of this tangle?

When Dahlia Weathersby’s sister disappears on what should have been a simple day hike, Dahlia immediately heads to the Colorado Rockies to find her. Knowing that she’ll never survive the mountains alone, she convinces the local hermit, grouchy Winston Dane, to be her guide. All it takes is a good helping of Dahlia’s charm...and just the teeniest bit of blackmail...before she’s got all six-foot-something of him wrapped around her finger.

But it’ll take more than charm and some city girl ingenuity to make this mountain adventure anything but a disaster waiting to happen.

As the two retrace her sister’s trail deep into the wilderness, they’re forced to face wild animals, bad weather, and a slowly simmering attraction helped along by a single shared sleeping bag. Dahlia’s never felt more out of her element—or more certain she’ll never fit into the gorgeous world Winston calls home. Yet as it becomes increasingly clear that Dahlia’s sister isn’t just missing but may have been taken, Dahlia and Winston will have to work together to find her in time...as they face everything the Rockies have to throw at them.

When she’s not writing, KATIE RUGGLE rides horses, trains her three dogs, and travels to warm places to scuba dive. A police academy graduate, Katie readily admits she’s a forensics nerd. While she misses her off the grid home in the Rocky Mountains, she now lives in a 150-year old Minnesota farmhouse near family. Connect with Katie at katie.ruggle.com.

Felicity Pax loves her job. She craves action and excitement, and being a bounty hunter gives her both in spades. When her estranged mother leaves town after supposedly stealing a priceless necklace, Felicity chases her just like she would any other skip...but she didn’t barter on having increasingly infuriating (and infuriatingly hot) PI Bennett Green on her tail.

To distract the annoyingly persistent man—and give her sister a chance to track down their mother, instead—Felicity heads west into the remote Rocky Mountains. The beauty of the Rockies is as overwhelming as it is moving, but there’s danger here too, and it isn’t long before Felicity’s deliberate distraction turns into a mystery worth solving.

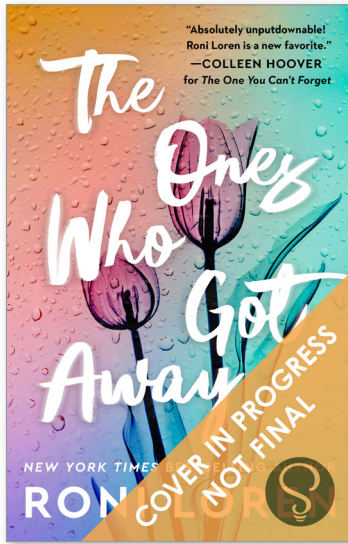

Teaming up with the quirky locals is one thing. Partnering with Bennett? Out of the question. But when a few adversarial drinks turns into a heated exchange turns into an oops woke up married fiasco, Felicity will have to decide what’s most important to her: staying one step ahead of the “enemy” or giving herself over to a new adventure of a lifetime.

When she’s not writing, KATIE RUGGLE rides horses, trains her three dogs, and travels to warm places to scuba dive. While she still misses her off-grid home in the Rocky Mountains, she now lives in a 150-year-old Minnesota farmhouse near her family.

The Lady He Lost

Faye Delacour

When Lieutenant Eli Williams reappears after being lost at sea two long years ago, his first move is to redeem himself with Miss Jane Bishop. But her only interest is in making her own way in the world. Luckily for Eli, he can help.

- Charming Regency world: Full of wit and strong, willful characters that readers of Evie Dunmore, India Holton, and Julia Quinn’s Bridgerton romances will adore.

Lieutenant Eli Williams was supposed to be dead. In the two years since he was claimed by a shipwreck, his friends and family mourned him, his brother spent his savings, and his fiancée married someone else. So, when he turns up in the middle of the London social season, very much alive and citing the wild reasons for his absence, it creates quite a stir. All Eli wants is to set his life back in order, mend his relationship with his former friend Jane, whom he secretly loves, and return to sea.

Jane Bishop, who was not Eli’s fiancée, refuses to waste any more of her life pining over the man who chose her cousin instead of her. She needs to focus on gaining her financial independence by establishing her ladies’ gambling club as a steady source of income. Never mind that Eli keeps trying to atone for his past mistake by offering his support in bringing in new members. He’s obviously keeping secrets about his disappearance.

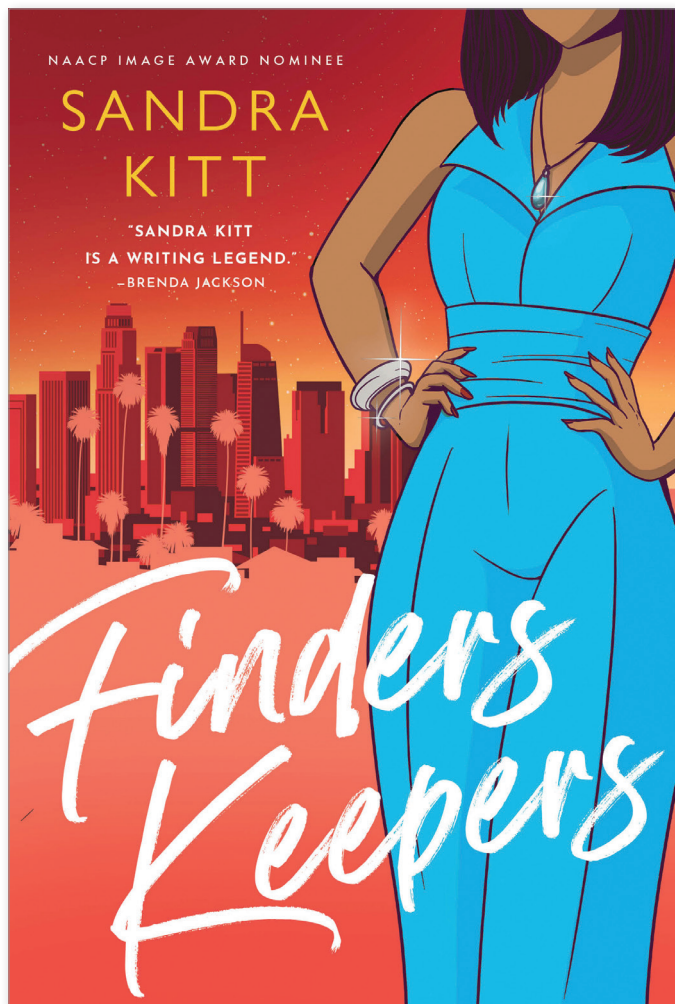

When Jane and Eli are stuck at the same country house party during Royal Ascot, it becomes difficult to resist their mutual attraction, especially when Eli has done so much to support her business. Although she’s afraid of being hurt again and pushes him away, Jane is surprised and delighted when Eli protects her club from exposure. When Eli faces a court of enquiry on suspicion of desertion, Jane must decide whether she can let go of the past and forgive Eli before she loses him again.

FAYE DELACOUR writes modern, steamy historical romance. She works as a lawyer and lives with her partner and three children in Montreal.

She's just about at the end of her rope when she stumbles across a rare edition of a book from the 1960s at the local flea market. Deciding it's a sign of her luck turning, she takes it home with her—only to be shocked when her cranky hermit of a neighbor swoops in and offers to buy it for an exorbitant price. This kickstarts a literary scavenger hunt that Chloe is determined to see through to the end. This summer, Ray convinces Kip to join him for an early honeymoon at a famous lux resort in Ray’s coastal New England hometown, eschewing the tradition of bachelor parties and hoping to recharge before their end-of-August wedding. But when a surprising encounter with another couple at the resort leads to a series of mishaps and miscommunications, Ray and Kip are forced to look at their many differences in a stark new light—thereby turning the trip into less of a vacation and more of a test: will they be able to work through their issues in time for the big day? # The Second Chance Hotel

A Novel

Sierra Godfrey

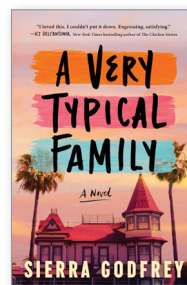

Amelia is desperate for a second chance after losing her boyfriend, her best friend, and her job. She just wasn't expecting that second chance to be on a Greek island... with a newly gifted, rundown hotel to run... and accidentally married to a total stranger. As they say in Greece: Opa!

- Strong praise from big-time authors and review outlets: KJ Dell'Antonia, New York Times bestselling author of The Chicken Sisters, called Godfrey's debut, A Very Typical Family, "engrossing, satisfying;" Booklist gave the debut a starred review and called it, "atmospheric and uplifting."

After a bad breakup, falling out with her best friend, and getting fired from her job, Amelia escapes to a small island in Greece to reset her life. But after too much ouzo and wine, she gets tricked into marrying a stranger and inheriting a ramshackle hotel with him.

Amelia and James agree to keep the hotel open through the busy summer season so as not to cause the economic downfall of the island's quirky but well-meaning residents, after which Amelia plans to return home to start rebuilding her disastrous life. At first, they're appalled and try to get out of it, but then guests start showing up. They must work together as partners—and friends only—to determine how to get out of their situation. But when the hotel is threatened by a big developer, it seems that this might be something worth fighting for—both the hotel, and maybe something deeper between Amelia and James, too.

This is the perfect escapist, armchair getaway vacation read, with a quirky and lovable cast of characters, that will warm your heart, inspire you to dig out your passport, and perhaps push you to take a big leap of faith towards something bigger.

Under the direction of Professor Joe Lyons, five graduate students remain on campus. They have been conducting an experiment on the psychology of deception to uncover the science behind lies. But they each have something to hide themselves.

Then, a test goes awry, and an angry subject ends up in handcuffs. The group believes it to be a fluke incident. But when one of them is discovered murdered in Lyon’s office less than twenty-four hours later, they find that their studies may have deadly consequences—and that each of them had a reason to kill. With a local detective on the case and a major snowstorm moving in, the students soon realize that lies can be more dangerous than they ever believed. How do you spot a liar who may be an expert on the psychology of deception?

- Southern twist: Combines a propulsive thriller with a popular Southern setting
- Growing buzz: Midnight Is the Darkest Hour will build on Ashley's momentum after the highly anticipated The Last Housewife, which has been praised by the Washington Post, Library Journal, Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, and many more

In a small bayou town in Louisiana, people fear God's wrath and local superstitions—like the story of the Low Man, a vampiric figure who steals into sinners' homes to kill them on moonless nights. The daughter of the town's fire-and-brimstone preacher is not immune to the fear. But when a skull found deep in the swamp reunites her with a man from her past with a dark reputation, she'll do whatever it takes to protect her town from evil: not the horrors rumored to dwell in the swamp, but the real evil that walks among them.

Midnight Is the Darkest Hour is a powerful and chilling examination of obsessive love, the way stories shape us, and what happens when the best choice we can make is to unleash our own dark beasts.

The Witches at the End of the World

Chelsea Iversen

Two sisters find themselves at odds in this breathtaking historical fantasy—and when one releases a dark spell, someone will have to burn. They are witches, after all

- Exceptional writing readers will love from a debut author: Rich, lyrical writing is completely gripping and tackles contemporary issues in a historical setting

Minna and Kaija live deep in the birchwoods of northern Norway, hiding in the shadows since their mother was burned at the stake thirteen years ago.

Sweet-tempered Kaija remembers life before the fire—the friendships, the comfort and warmth of community. Her magic is quiet, mostly charms to heal cuts and bruises. She'd happily give it up to have a normal life. Minna, though, was raised in smoke. She's a witch through and through: full of power and unafraid of it, wrath always simmering just below the surface.

When Kaija decides to return to the village where their mother died to make a new life for herself, Minna, in a rage, releases a curse to raze the community that's taken everything from her. In doing so, she sets in motion a plot that could destroy Kaija and the new life she's trying to build. But you can't take back dark magic once it's been released, and someone will have to burn. They are witches, after all.

Hollywood might look like an oasis from the devastation of WWII, but that doesn't mean it's safe...

The Girls We Sent Away

A Novel

Meagan Church

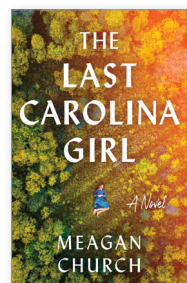

A charged novel set against the forgotten Baby Scoop Era of the 1960s following one southern girl and her fight against a system that's determined to take her child away from her

- Your next big book club pick: Set in the compelling 1960s, this is a read that traverses time. A mother's emotional dilemma about whether or not to give up her baby for the society that would shun her if she chooses to keep it will have readers discussing topics such as body autonomy, motherhood, science, and the choices women are able to make

North Carolina, 1960s. Lorraine has it all—the boyfriend, the good grades, the white picket fence, the ambition to become the first woman astronaut. But when she—the darling girl-next-door—becomes pregnant, she learns that love is conditional and ambition has its limits.

In an effort to hide their daughter's secret shame, her parents send her away to a maternity home—a common solution for "wayward" girls during that time period. Lorraine soon realizes that instead of being a safe haven, the home forces unwed mothers to relinquish parental rights and place their babies for adoption. Lorraine must decide if she has the agency and power to fight to keep her baby or if she must submit to the rules of the society she once admired.

Set in the Baby Scoop Era, The Girls We Sent Away juxtaposes the breakthrough technologies of the Race to Space with the societal realities that kept women grounded.

Long After We Are Gone

A Novel

Terah Shelton Harris

Four siblings—each fighting their own personal battle—return home in the wake of their father’s death in order to save their family’s home and ancestral land from being sold out from under them, in an explosive and highly emotional story about the power of family and letting go of things that no longer serve you

- Second novel following a highly acclaimed debut: Terah’s debut (a Target Book Club Pick) earned remarkable acclaim from bestselling authors, including Mateo Askaripour (“nothing short of astonishing”), Rochelle B. Weinstein (“unequivocally a best book of 2023”), and Kim Michele Richardson (“a powerful, heartrending debut”)
- Timely and relevant themes: Touches on cultural issues around intergenerational trauma, family legacies, and heir property, which the Dept. of Agriculture calls the worst problem you’ve never heard of, making this a thought-provoking and discussion-worthy novel for book club readers. Major awards potential.
- Stories about siblings sell: Readers are drawn to books about siblings and they’ll get the perspectives of all four siblings, in a moving and emotional story about the power of family and letting go of things that no longer serve you

The Solomon siblings are not perfect. Far from it. CeCe, the oldest daughter and an NYC lawyer, has embezzled thousands of dollars from her firm’s clients. Junior, the oldest, married to his wife for 11 years, is secretly living in the closet as a gay man. Mance, the second son, can’t control his temper. And Angeline (Tokey), the youngest, wonders why she doesn’t seem able to fit into this family. But when their father dies, all four siblings must return home to save their ancestral land—and themselves.

Written in alternating points of view from all four siblings, LONG AFTER WE ARE GONE is a moving and emotional story about the power of family and letting go of things that no longer serve you. It explores intergenerational trauma and the lessons and legacies we pass on to our children, and is centered around the legal process called heir property, a form of ownership in which heirs inherit interest (like stocks). The practice began during the Reconstruction when many Black people did not have access to the legal system and continued throughout the Jim Crow era. The Department of Agriculture says it is the worst problem you’ve never heard of and recognizes it as the leading cause of Black involuntary land loss. Without a clear title, it only takes one family member with interest in the land to spark a sale. This is what happens to the siblings in LONG AFTER WE ARE GONE.

For Hammons, business has never been better in this young city of big ambition and even bigger corruption, and when he’s drawn into a case of smuggled gold, blackmail, and murder, he will need all the help he can get. His capable-but-drug-addicted brother, still a detective, is as much a hindrance as a help. Luckily, Hammons finds a professional ally in Pamela Bradbury, a fellow gumshoe. As they work the cases together, they can’t help but worry that the crimes are somehow connected, and that time is not the only nemesis threatening their investigations.

When She Was Me

A Novel

Marlee Bush

Secrets follow these sisters like shadows...

- Highly commercial elements: this is dual POV, dual timeline sister story featuring unreliable narrators in an isolated, southern setting makes this exciting debut unputdownable for readers
- Timely and conversation-worthy: a psychologically riveting story that explores a hot topic (the exploitation of true crime) in the vein of All Good People Here, this is perfect for book club discussions
- An author to grow: Marlee Bush's degree in criminology lends her fiction an authentic quality and she is enthusiastic about building a brand—she's kicked things off by sharing an event with USA Today bestselling author Darcy Coates

Twin sisters Cassie and Lenora are inseparable. Ever since that night, they've been on their own, and that's how they like it. As the sole permanent residents of Cabin Two, their refuge on an isolated Tennessee campground, the twins manage to stay away from prying eyes, probing questions, and true crime junkies. The peace and quiet is almost enough to make them forget what happened all those years ago. Almost.

Until a teenage girl camping at the neighboring cabin goes missing, and the memories come rushing back. As the crime becomes ever more recognizable, each sister suspects the other knows more than she's letting on.

Trapped in the isolating, claustrophobic wilderness, Cassie and Lenora must piece together the truth of what happened—and the sinister truth lurking in their own pasts—before it's too late.

MARLEE BUSH lives in Alabama with her husband and children. A Criminology major, she's obsessed with true crime, documentaries, and being generally paranoid about the world and the people in it.

This Girl's a Killer

A Novel

Emma C. Wells

Meet your new best friend (who also just happens to be a serial killer)

- A Killer Main Character: Following in the footsteps of My Sister, the Serial Killer, Promising Young Woman, and even the murderous Georgia Miller, Cordelia Black is a character you can't help but root for (even under the worst of circumstances).
- Fresh and Feminist Thriller: Incredibly empowering storyline that fits in the "good for her" genre of books, perfect for the expanding mystery readership and for fans of The Bandit Queens and Layne Fargo.
- Balance of Murderous Intrigue and Surprising Heart: With heartfelt emotional moments surrounding both women's rights and women's wrongs balanced with the bright, pacey thriller read, this is perfect for that modern mystery book club pick.

Cordelia Black loves exactly three things: Her chosen family comprised of her best friend Diane and her goddaughter, her hairdresser (worth every penny plus tip), and killing bad men.

By day she's a successful pharma rep with her pristine reputation and designer wardrobe, by night she's culling South Louisiana of unscrupulous men--monsters who always seem to evade justice, until they meet her. It's a complicated, yet fulfilling life that requires complete and total control- at all times. But when the evening news starts throwing around the word serial killer, suddenly pressure heightens for Cordelia in the South. And it's only exacerbated when Diane starts dating a man who Cordelia isn't sure is a good person. Someone who might just unravel everything Cordelia has worked for.

Soon enough Cordelia's world starts to spiral and she loses control of those tightly held threads that keep her safe. and she has to come face to face with the choices she's made. The good, the bad, and the murderous. Both her family, and her freedom, depend on it.

EMMA C. WELLS loves anti-heroes, dark humor, witty banter, and ride-or-die friendships. Twisty relationships are her kryptonite (or catnip—depending on how you look at it) and her favorite characters are often called unlikable (but at least they're never boring). Emma enjoys camping, yoga, researching spooky folklore, and collecting copies of Wuthering Heights from used bookstores.

Listen to Emma and her co host EJ Wenstrom on either SFF+Girls Podcast (a pod for geeking while female) or Troped Out (a fun exploration of genre fiction.) For more information on the pods—check out typoproductions.com.

50 Ways to More Calm, Less Stress

Scientifically Proven Ways to Relieve Anxiety and Boost Your Mental Health Using Your Five Senses

Megy Karydes

Fifty self-care practices that come at low to zero cost, are backed by science, and take less than ten minutes to help burnt out people achieve calm

- Fresh take on self care: It's not all bubble baths and facial masks (although, those are fun, too). Everyone practices self care differently and that's why this book features dozens of activities on a far-reaching spectrum of interests. Studies show that people's stress levels are at an all-time high, so many consumers are seeking out ways to combat anxiety and feel more calm

Many of us are at a breaking point. We struggle with burnout, stress, and feeling overwhelmed on a daily basis. While most self-care research takes us to practices like meditation, massage, or manifestation, very few focus on using our senses to ground us in calmness.

Self-care isn't just facial masks and spa days: 50 Ways to More Calm, Less Stress presents opportunities to activate our five senses to reduce stress. Each activity is supported by scientific research, is relatively easy to do, and is low to no cost.

Examples include:

TOUCH: Addressing burnout and digital fatigue through a creative outlet like cross-stitching, embroidery, or knitting

SEE: Forest therapy using the five senses to connect with nature

TASTE: Mindful eating to teach you to be less reactive to stress

SMELL: Aromatherapy requires just a few sniffs of a scent to help ease your mind or help you focus

HEAR: Calm your body by tuning in to music or white noise

A Black Poetry Collection

Martina McGowan

A much anticipated follow up to Martina McGowan’s award winning debut, I Am the Rage, her latest poetry collection explores the fractured emotions of being a Black woman in America

- A much needed perspective in a popular space: While illustrated poetry collections have been gaining popularity in recent months and years as a popular trend/bestselling space (think Rupi Kaur and Amanda Lovelace) very few explore and face the issue of race, making this an important contribution to the popular poetry space

A Sweeter Song moves beyond the rage of McGowan’s first poetry collection by showing that there is more than one dimension to the lives of people of color, women, and other marginalized and oppressed peoples, focusing on universal issues we all face as human beings. The issues covered in this collection include, but are not limited to:

Personal history/ Parents/ Ancestors

Love/Lust/ Loss

Biblical Religion

42 Reasons to Hate the Universe

(And One Reason Not To)

Chris Ferrie

From bestselling author Chris Ferrie comes an out of this world pop science space book on how the universe is, indeed, trying to kill us all

- Acclaimed author: Chris Ferrie is the #1 bestselling science author for kids, with more than 1 million books sold worldwide, proving his ability to effectively communicate scientific ideas to the masses
- Popular nonfiction space: Readers of Randall Munroe’s monumental “What If” series, which has sold almost 1 million books worldwide, and books such as We Have No Idea will be captivated by Ferrie’s wit and humor, welcoming his work into the science space
- Science writing with a twist: Ferrie offers a fresh take on the “how does the universe work” category that not only adds humor about our impending doom, but sneakily teaches readers the science of the universe in a convincing and effective way.

Yes, the Universe is beautiful. And, despite all our scientific progress, it’s still pretty mysterious. But you know what? The Universe is also kind of an asshole.

Consider that you are just a group of atoms structured in a specific way that you can try to understand this thing we call existence. Those same atoms could have just as easily been used to make the dog shit you are cleaning off your shoes. The fact is, when you zoom out and look at the Universe and how it functions, you’ll see that it’s usually not in our favor. Many of the laws of physics are just kind of... dick-ish.

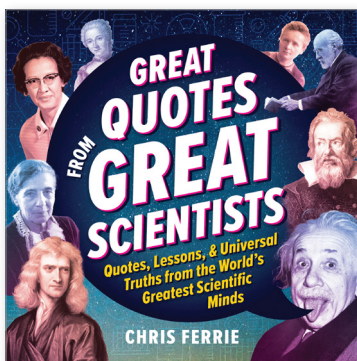

CHRIS FERRIE is an award-winning physicist and Senior Lecturer for Quantum Software and Information at the University of Technology Sydney. He has a Masters in applied mathematics, BMath in mathematical physics and a PhD in applied mathematics. He lives in Australia with his wife and children.

Slow Down, Take a Nap

A Celebration of the Siesta

duopress labs, illustrated by Marina Oliveira

Science says that a quick afternoon nap habit can recharge and relieve tired brain, so let's fight burnout and seize the nap!

- Let's normalize nap culture: In a world of sensory overload and toxic productivity culture, people need to slow down and rest; a nap is a great way to give your mind a break and fight burnout at the same time

There's a lot of love for napping, and a lot of science that supports it, but ... it has a bit of a bad reputation, even though it's an important part of many cultures! So instead of celebrating them, they're a secret obsession for many work-from-homers or corporate (under-desk) nappers. But naps don't have to be stigmatized any longer! Slow Down, Take a Nap will reclaim the siesta as self-care, in a funny, quirky, and sweetly illustrated way.

Packed with content ranging from the serious and data-driven to the hilarious and entertaining, Slow Down, Take a Nap includes quotes ("Think what a better world it would be if we all, the whole world, had cookies and milk about three o'clock every afternoon and then lay down on our blankets for a nap. —Barbara Jordan"), definitions (What is sleep inertia anyway?), fun facts, flow charts, illustrated scenes, profiles of great nappers in history, and more.

Rebecca Little

A comprehensive sociological look at the laws, pop culture, medicine, and history surrounding female grief and pregnancy loss, how it came to be so stigmatized, and what a system of more compassionate care could look like, from Pulitzer Prize finalist and White House correspondent Colleen Long and freelance journalist Rebecca Little

- No book like this on the market: Explores pregnancy loss through deep research into laws, pop culture, medicine, history, and personal narratives, offering a comprehensive sociological look at how pregnancy loss came to be so stigmatized, an angle that no other book on the market takes
- Broad audience appeal: Beyond people who have experienced pregnancy loss themselves and their loved ones, readers interested in issues of feminism, social justice, and reproductive rights will also be interested in this book
- Well-connected authors: Colleen Long is a White House correspondent for the AP and Rebecca Little is a freelance journalist and former contributing editor for Chicago magazine. They have relationships with NYT, WP, The New Yorker, The Atlantic, NPR, MSNBC, Vanity Fair, and more

Rebecca Little and Colleen Long are journalists and childhood friends who both experienced pregnancy losses past 20 weeks. In the days, weeks, and months that followed, they searched desperately for information to help them process what they had been through. But they found nothing.

So, Rebecca and Colleen began to research. Diving deep into the history, culture, and science around pregnancy loss, they discovered that the helplessness and loneliness they felt was not a coincidence. Over the past several decades, American culture has been placing more and more emphasis on the rights and life of the fetus—at the cost and well-being of the mother. Politics, history, racism, misogyny, capitalism, and medicine have been working separately and together to choke off grief related to pregnancy loss.

In their first book, I'm Sorry for My Loss, Rebecca and Colleen weave together deep research into laws, pop culture, medicine, and history with powerful personal narratives to offer readers a comprehensive sociological look at how pregnancy loss came to be so stigmatized and what a system of more compassionate care could and should look like.

COLLEEN LONG, a White House correspondent for The Associated Press whose work has appeared in every major news publication in the world, was a finalist for a Pulitzer Prize in 2019. She lives in Washington DC.

REBECCA LITTLE is a freelance journalist and a former contributing editor for Chicago magazine. She lives in Park Ridge, Illinois. With over two decades of experience in the industry, she has established relationships with outlets including the New York Times, Washington Post, The New Yorker, The Atlantic, NPR, Vanity Fair, New York Magazine, MSNBC, and RadioLab, among others.

Stacie Ramey

Allie and her sister, Leah, couldn't be closer. But when Leah breaks their suicide pact and kills herself, Allie is left to question everything she ever thought she knew about her sister...and herself. For fans of Kathleen Glasgow and Amber Smith.

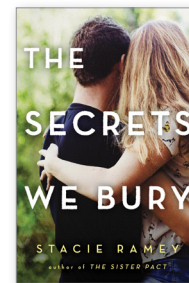

- For fans of Kathleen Glasgow, Amber Smith, and Jodi Picoult: Taps into that heart-rending (and mending) emotion that readers crave. As with Laura Nowlin's If He Had Been With Me, we are looking for our repackage to bring a fresh readership to this backlist gem
- Intense and emotionally driven books sell well in YA! Stacie Ramey delivers a moving novel about suicide, depression, grief, divorce, sister rivalry, friendship issues, and the love that makes your heart flutter and the kind that calms it
- Reality or figment of her imagination? Allie self-medicates to deal with her emotional pain and starts to hallucinate conversations with her sister—but readers will want to believe, like Allie, that she can still connect with Leah

Allie is devastated when her sister Leah commits suicide—and not just because she misses her. The two teens made a suicide pact so that they'd always be together, and Allie can't understand why she was left behind.

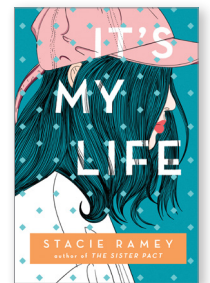

Drugs seem to be the only thing that help Allie with her grief, and it just so happens that her dealer might be the only one who knows why Leah did what she did. As Allie struggles to uncover the truth, she must come to terms with the fact that she wasn't as close to her sister as she thought...and that some secrets are best left buried.

Seventeen-year-old Warren is haunted by a sinister voice in his head urging him to commit unspeakable acts of violence on the people around him. He is horrified by the voice and does everything in his power to ensure there is no way for him to hurt anyone. However, rumors begin to spread about a string of disappearances in southeastern Kansas, only 70 miles away from his family's farm, and his father hasn't returned from what was supposed to be a simple trip. Warren knows he needs to stop living in fear so he can find his father.

As he makes his way through Kansas, he learns more about the disappearances and does his best to drown out the voice in his head. He finds himself at a suspicious inn run by the Benders, a family with deeply unsettling mannerisms. That is, except for Kate, who Warren feels a strong pull to—and it seems like she might feel the pull right back. It's only after they part ways that he learns the Benders are responsible for all the missing people, and when he returns to the inn, it's clear the Benders have fled town, leaving behind an orchard of buried bodies—including his father's.

How This Book Got Red

Margaret Chiu Greanias, illustrated by Melissa Iwai

In this clever picture book tale about the power of representation, a red panda decides to write her own story when she realizes that none of the other panda books include pandas that look like her.

- Representation matters: This relatable story explores the importance and emotional impact of seeing oneself reflected in the pages of a book; the inspiration came from the author's personal experiences of not seeing herself reflected in books when she was growing up

When Red discovers a new book about pandas, she can't wait to read it! Except it's about only one kind of panda, and red pandas are completely left out. Red never gets to read stories about pandas like herself! So she decides to take matters into her own paws and write her own book.

But when Red looks around, it seems like the only kind of pandas the world cares about are the black and white kind. Will anyone want to read about red pandas? It's up to Red to finish her story and share it with the world!

MARGARET CHIU GREANIAS is not a red panda, but when she was growing up she also did not see herself in many books. She is the author of the picture books Amah Faraway and Maximilian Villainous. The daughter of Taiwanese immigrants, she now lives in the San Francisco Bay Area with her husband and three children.

The Light She Feels Inside

Gwendolyn Wallace, illustrated by Olivia Duchess

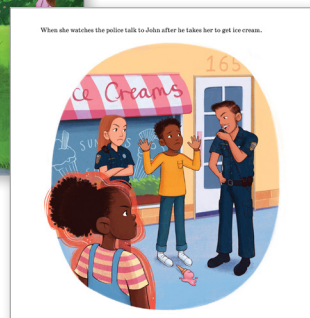

Maya has something special—a glow that pushes her to create a brighter world. By learning about Black women throughout history, Maya is inspired by their glowing feelings of love, anger, and justice to change the world for the better!

- Inspires kids to make a difference: Families are looking for stories that empower children and acknowledge the need for change in the world
- Empowering Black girls: Encourages Black girls to see themselves as part of a long line of strong women, not only in history, but in their own ancestry
- Inspirational story and back matter: Profiles of Black women who made notable contributions to Black, Women’s, and LGBTQ histories are ideal for teachers, librarians, and parents

Maya feels two types of glowing—a warm glow when she picks strawberries in the community garden or hears music in her neighborhood, and a different kind of glow when she gets pushed down on the playground or sees her favorite cousin get stopped by the police. Sometimes that glowing seems like too much to carry...

But then Maya learns that others feel the same light she does—Black women like Ida B. Wells, Nina Simone, and Maya’s own ancestors—and they always found ways to honor their glow. They were all guided by their light to make a difference, so Maya decides to share her own light and work toward a brighter world.

The Girl Who Never Made Mistakes

Mark Pett, illustrated by Gary Rubinstein

The Girl Who Never Made Mistakes is the incredibly funny and inspirational result about a girl who prides herself on being perfect—until she's not.

- Stephanie Oppenheim of The Today Show has given an early rave review: "It's great fun and certainly would be an Oppenheim Toy Portfolio winner."
- An empowering message for today's highly-pressured kids
- Perfect for the school and library market, which the author is tapped into

Meet Beatrice Bottomwell: a nine-year-old girl who has never (not once!) made a mistake. She never forgets her math homework, she never wears mismatched socks, and she ALWAYS wins the yearly talent show at school. In fact, Beatrice holds the record of perfection in her hometown, where she is known as The Girl Who Never Makes Mistakes. Life for Beatrice is sailing along pretty smoothly until she does the unthinkable—she makes her first mistake. And in a very public way!

Writer and illustrator MARK PETT lives in Mississippi with his wife, two children, and a very old dog named Catfish. Every February, the family draws five random digits from a hat and travels to whatever zip code it makes. He has illustrated several books and is the creator of the syndicated comic strips Mr. Lowe and Lucky Cow.

GARY RUBINSTEIN teaches high school math by day and is occasionally a comedian by night. In addition to co-authoring this book, he has written two guidebooks for new teachers. He lives in New York City with his wife, Erica, and his daughter, Sarah.

Minda Dentler made history when she became the first female wheelchair athlete to complete the world’s toughest triathlon, using only her arms to finish a 2.4 mile swim, 112 mile bike ride, and 26.2 mile marathon. But the journey there wasn’t easy. Minda was paralyzed as an infant in India after contracting polio, and was left in the care of an orphanage. After she was adopted by an American family and moved to Washington, she underwent surgeries to enable her to walk with leg braces and crutches.

As she grew, she faced many challenges, but remained undeterred by her disability. Her decision to begin training and competing in triathlons was no different. Despite the obstacles and failures she experienced along the way, Minda’s persistence and determination in the face of setbacks helped her to make sports history and inspire people around the world to rethink what’s possible!

MINDA DENTLER is the first female wheelchair athlete to complete the Ironman World Championship. She has been featured on CNN and NBC, and was nominated for an ESPN ESPY Award for the best female athlete with a disability. She has also written for Huffington Post and TIME, promoting the eradication of polio, and has served as a global immunization advocate for Rotary International and the UN Foundation. In addition to being a mom, an athlete, and an activist, she is a motivational speaker. She shares her story with Fortune 500 companies, including Amazon and Microsoft; non-profits; and universities, urging listeners to find their own personal Ironman.

Dinosaurs in Space

Todd Sturgell

Award-winning author Todd Sturgell returns with another irreverent, hilarious, and informative picture book that explains just how dinosaurs might have ended up in space!

- Award-winning author-illustrator Todd Sturgell's first book Except Antarctica received starred reviews and award nominations proving his meta concept and comical dialogue between the narrator and characters make his books something kids will come back to over and over again
- Delightful mash-up of two kid-favorite topics: dinosaurs and space!
- Nonfiction that's funny!

When the narrator explains about the big boom that caused dinosaur extinction, Dakota the dinosaur and his ragtag group of friends don't want to hear it! Taking over the story—much to the narrator's dismay—these dizzy dinos share their spacetastic theories about moon-sauruses, Martian dinosaurs, and...zombie-sauruses?

This silly science lesson gone wrong is an amusing lesson based on real scientific theories.

If Nasa sticks to schedule the manned mission to circle the moon will be November 2024, and then we'll really know if dinosaurs are in space!

TODD STURGELL has loved dinosaurs for as long as he can remember. His favorite dinosaur is Triceratops! He lives in the North Carolina mountains where he hikes, reads dinosaur books, and draws (dinosaurs, mostly). Todd has two daughters who learned about dinosaurs before they were old enough to say Stegosaurus. Todd has not been to space but if NASA ever calls, he's available.

The Reindeer Remainders

A Math Story with Plenty of Heart

Katey Howes, illustrated by Marie Hermansson

- Inclusion Topic: The message of what to do when you or someone else is left out of the group is perfect for in-person, post-pandemic classrooms, teams, and other group environments for kids.

She currently lives in Pennsylvania. Marie Hermansson lives near Raleigh-Durham, North Carolina. She is the illustrator of the award-winning book Listen to the Language of the Trees.

A perfect picture book for back-to-school or any time of year, this clever, rhyming story shows how working together and including others are important parts of friendship.

A class of a dozen reindeer is preparing for the big showcase night event when a new student arrives. This isn't a big deal until it's time to divide in groups, and there's a leftover reindeer every single time. How will the class make sure everyone feels included? And what will they learn in the process?

A perfect picture book for back-to-school or any time of year, The Reindeer Remainders shows how working together and including others are important parts of friendship. Back matter included.

KATEY HOWES is an author and poet who loves math and science, and finding fun ways to bring those things together! Katey's books are often inspired by the natural world around her, though she has yet to see thirteen reindeer visit the small Pennsylvania mountain she calls home. - An Invaluable Resource That Encourages Communication: This book provides diverse and open-ended questions for parents of schoolchildren of all ages and walks of life. Some questions are fun, some are deep and reflective, and some are silly. Ultimately, this book is about communication.
- A Simple, Effortless Tool That Can Be Used Again and Again: Designed to get the ball rolling to encourage openness, connection, and communication, the book can be easily flipped through to find the right questions for the appropriate moment.

We’ve all been there: The kids come home from school tired and distracted, and we try to connect with them by asking the same questions day after day. Well, this book will help you find the right questions to connect with your child today and every day.

How was school? “What did you learn today?” “Did you have fun?” If we are lucky, we might get a little more than “Fine” or “It was good” in return. Maybe we’re asking the wrong questions. The good news is that this book will help you find the right questions to connect with your child every day. Stop Asking “How Was Your Day?” is an invaluable tool that can be used again and again. Easy to flip through while waiting in the pickup lane outside school or before sitting down to dinner, this book provides diverse and open-ended questions for parents of schoolchildren of all ages and walks of life. Some questions are fun, some are thoughtful, and some are silly. Ultimately, this book is about communication.

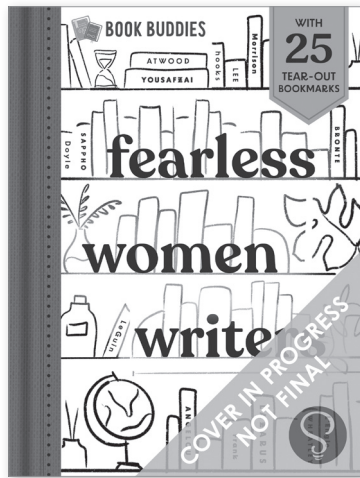

As we all know, communication is a two-way street, and Stop Asking “How Was Your Day?” alternates the queries with “Lead by Example” sections that prompt parents to share something from their own experiences to help them connect with their children.

Using simple greetings like "How's it going, soft blankie?," "Bonjour, cozy bed," and "Good night, stars," alongside lovely black-and-white art by Jannie Ho (illustrator of Hello, My World), Hello, Bedtime is the perfect board book for babies just beginning to look around and learn about their world. Tons of Palabras, Book 3

Introduce little ones to the English and Spanish words used by kids in their daily lives with Tons of Palabras (Tons of Words), a series of bilingual books made for Hispanics by Hispanics

- Featuring Words Used by Real Kids in Their Daily Lives: Most bilingual English-Spanish books focus on words seldom used in real Hispanic households. Tons of Palabras addresses this issue by featuring words used every day by millions of households in the U.S., Canada, and Europe.
- Books for a New Reality: According to the 2020 Census, the multiracial population has increased by 276% in the U.S. since 2010, and nearly one in four Americans today identifies as either Hispanic or Asian. These families want books that reflect their culture, language, and identity.
- No Longer a Localized Trend: Although the largest Hispanic growth is in states like Florida, Texas, New York, Illinois, and California, those with the fastest Hispanic growth are not the traditional enclaves: North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, New Hampshire, and District of Columbia.

Tons of Palabras: Fiestas is the third title in the series, presenting kids with traditions and special occasions that are celebrated in Hispanic and non-Hispanic households. The book covers holidays like Christmas, Day of the Dead, and Holy Week, discussing the customs around these special times as well as the delicious foods that accompany them! Did you know that on New Year's, it's a tradition in some Latin American countries to eat 12 grapes at the stroke of midnight? Or that during Day of the Dead, funny verses are read in honor of loved ones who are no longer with us? Birthdays are also an exciting time, with piñatas, cake, and games. Tons of Palabras: Fiestas is full of fun, colorful, and interesting Latin American celebrations!

My First Book of Water is a beautiful introduction for babies and toddlers to the benefits and importance of water in our lives.

Like other titles in the earth-friendly series Terra Babies at Home, this book helps tots develop a connection with the natural world and is made with FSC materials and nontoxic inks.

Simple and quirky text pairs with charming art by Åsa Gilland in this book where tots will learn about water in a friendly and easy way while being introduced to basic concepts of conservation and the environment.

"Much of our planet is made of water, but only a tiny bit is water that we can drink. We all need to take care of it," we read. "We all need water to live. Your pet and your houseplants also need water."

Prepare to be scared silly in this creepy middle-grade novel! Twins seek medical help in a remote village after their father is in a canoeing accident... only to discover the scarecrow that stands watch in town may have a stronger hold over the residents than expected. Perfect for fans of R.L. Stine, Dan Pablocki, and Mary Downing Hahn.

- Award-winning Author Now Writing for Younger Readers: Jeff Strand is a Bram Stoker Award winning author with numerous adult horror novels. His middle-grade debut will literally scare readers silly with his signature creepy tension that is served up with a dash of humor

Twins Oliver and Trisha are on a canoe trip with their dad when a freak accident leaves their father badly injured. With no cell phone reception, their only choice is to continue down river and hope to find civilization.

And they do—in a small village. Except the people there behave strangely, and weirdest of all is the giant scarecrow in the village square. The townspeople seem nervous—obsessed—with the scarecrow. “He watches over us,” the twins are told. “He keeps us safe.”

An old woman whispers to the twins that they should not, under any circumstances, spend the night in the village. Not if they ever want to leave. But with the sun soon to set and their father at the medical center, can they escape? And if not, can they survive?

Nightmare in the Backyard

EEK!

Bram Stoker Award winning author JEFF STRAND has written more than twenty books, though this is his middle-grade debut. Three of his young adult novels were Junior Library Guild picks. He lives in Chattanooga, TN. Learn more at jeffstrand.com.

When the scratching starts on the tent, a backyard camping trip turns terrifying for three friends. Prepare to be scared silly in this creepy middle-grade novel for fans of R.L. Stine, Dan Pablocki, and Mary Downing Hahn.

- Jeff Strand is a Bram Stoker Award winning author with numerous adult horror novels. His middle-grade showcases his signature creepy tension that is served up with a dash of humor. The second stand-alone in our Spooked! series: tales that will scare you silly.
- Jeff’s YA novels have been Junior Library Guild picks and are well-loved by librarians, teachers, parents, and kids for how they appeal to even the most reluctant readers. He is a master storyteller who knows how to keep an audience captivated, and we’ve sold nearly 100,000 copies of his titles.
- Jeff is a very active author with strong middle grade contacts from his YA publishing. He does a lot of school outreach and attends many horror cons, so he will be an active promoter of his MG publishing—both to kids and for the adults who will want to share his voice with young readers.

Chloe, Avery, and Madison can’t wait to spend the night camping in the backyard. S’mores! Spooky stories! Trading secrets! It’s going to be awesome. Sure, Elijah the kid next door keeps trying to prank them, but it’s all in good fun. Who doesn’t like a little scare after the sun has set and the moonlight casts creepy shadows everywhere?

Then the scratching starts on the tent fabric. The girls think it must be Elijah again, but there’s no one outside. As the scratching gets more insistent, the girls may need to start asking WHAT is making that noise rather than WHO. Can they make it through the night?
