Letter from the publisher

It is easy to fall into despair and hopelessness in today's world, but these times can also provide opportunities for change.

At New Society, we seek out tools to help build a better world, and as a part of that, we are proud to share our first annual CSR report for 2021. To summarize, we developed a clear Statement of Ethics, we continue to build our understanding of the lands we live and work on through our land acknowledgment, we signed a net-zero commitment, we recertified our B Corp certification with an increased score, and we enhanced our in-house policies to support staff wellness. Coming together both in person and virtually, we've found inspiration as we reviewed manuscripts and embarked on new projects to share transformative, positive solutions for troubled times.

With this catalogue, we hope you'll find inspiring books that dig deeper into issues of race, equity, food security, and ecology. Rather than reel in despair, pick up a book that launches you into action, equipped with positive solutions.

With gratitude for all you do,
Julie Raddysh, Publisher

About New Society Publishers

NEW SOCIETY PUBLISHERS has been a leader in sustainable publishing for over 40 years. We are an activist, solutions-oriented publisher focused on bringing you tools for a world of change. New Society Publishers has published over 600 books, available in both print and ebooks, as well as a growing list of audiobooks. We care deeply about what we publish and how we do business, and so the same thinker-and-doer approach permeates both our in-house work and the books themselves.

Our vision is to provide the world with fundamental tools to help build a just and ecologically sustainable society.

New Society Publishers was the first carbon-neutral publishing house in North America. In 2001, we committed to printing our books on 100% postconsumer recycled paper, leading the book publishing community in Canada. We have also introduced a unique component to our thriving ebook program — New Society’s Guide to Environmentally Responsible Digital Reading. In 2015, New Society became a registered B Corporation, and in 2020 became Signatories to the UN’s Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) Publishers Compact (2020–2030). In 2021, we created a Statement of Ethics and signed the Net Zero Commitment.

Land Acknowledgment

IN KEEPING WITH Indigenous culture, and to build respectful relationships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Peoples, we acknowledge that our office is located on the traditional unceded territory of the Snuneymuxw First Nation — the keepers of this land reaching from the centre of Coast Salish territory on the eastern coast of Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands, and to the Fraser River, since time immemorial.

As settlers, it's important for us to recognize that although we call this place home, the Snuneymuxw First Nation never ceded their lands to the Crown. Instead, we arrived here, and across Turtle Island, uninvited, and imposed, participated in, and benefited from the colonial system. Our challenge as settlers, whether recently arrived or born here, is to recognize and work actively to decolonize these systems.

The devastating and lasting impacts of colonization have done much to erase the culture, language, tradition, economy, and world views of Indigenous Peoples. We will listen, educate ourselves on decolonization, uplift, and celebrate the Indigenous Peoples of this land, and, upon invitation to do so, support them in the pursuit of self-determination, sovereignty, and justice.

An integral part of our mission and vision has been to publish books for a world of change, in a way that has a minimal impact on our environment, to help build a just and ecologically sustainable society. For this work to remain authentic and meaningful, we acknowledge our settler privilege and understand the impact it has on the land and Indigenous Peoples.

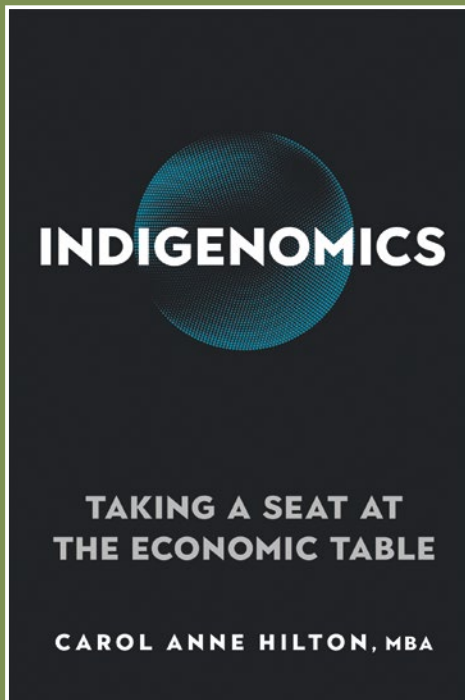

We also acknowledge that while our main business address is located on the land of the Snuneymuxw, we have staff settled on the land of the Southern Anishinaabe (Ojibwa), Western Anishinaabe (Ojibwe), Očhéthi Šakówiŋ, Anishinabewaki, Michif Piyii (Métis), K'ómoks First Nation, Coast Salish, s̓c̓ əwaθenaʔt̓ təməx̣ʷ (Tsawwassen), Quw'utsun, Á,LENENEƷ ŁTE (W SÁNEĆ), Stz'uminus, and Hul'q'umi'num'.

Featured Staff Member

CAYLIE GRAHAM started with New Society Publishers in 2017. She learned many aspects of the company, from production, marketing, and accounting, to sales and conference attendance. From there, Caylie was promoted to assistant editor under the guidance of Rob West, acquisitions editor, in 2021. She started out studying journalism in university, and then in the school of life studying permaculture, regenerative farming, and climate justice. Before she began at New Society, Caylie already had a keen eye towards — and a deep interest in — many of the company’s editorial topics. Studying the various aspects of publishing under the guidance of an amazing team over the last five years has bolstered her confidence, experience, and skills, and she is pleased to come back to editorial work 20 years later to assist in acquiring books to fill out the already impressive list that New Society Publishers has created. “Working with excellent and informed authors who write about solutions to the immense challenges of our times has been a true pleasure,” Caylie says. “I am looking forward to building many more author relationships and acquiring diverse, integral, and inspiring books for the company.”

Head of Sustainability

IN 2021, New Society Publishers created the position of Head of Sustainability, filled by our sales manager EJ HURST, to oversee the company's environmental requirements, guide actions on environmental commitments, and share New Society's works with the larger publishing community. EJ has been busy creating an Environmental Management System (EMS) used to track action on goals related to the company as well as supplier actions on environmental management, climate change, carbon emissions, air quality, water quality, energy conservation, waste reduction and recycling, hazardous substance, habitat enhancement, and other issues. EJ also works on our carbon neutral reporting, and works with our B-Corp Team.

JEAN-MARTIN FORTIER is a farmer, author, educator, and advocate for regenerative, human-scale, profitable agriculture. For over 20 years he and his wife Maude-Helene Desroches have operated les Jardins de la Grelinette, a successful 2-acre microfarm. His bestselling book The Market Gardener, which has sold a quarter million copies in nine languages, describes the biointensive principles used at his micro-farm. In 2015, he established a research farm, la Ferme des Quatre-Temps, where he trains apprentices and develops new strategies for market gardening, including year-round production. His methods of production are taught to a worldwide audience through the Market Gardener Masterclass, an online course of the Market Gardener Institute, which is tailored to small-scale food growers. He is the founder of Growers & Co., a tool and apparel company which celebrates sustainable, local, and equitable food producers. Jean-Martin farms and lives in Quebec, Canada.

GARDEN PLANNER

Increasing climate changes are creating global food shortages, predicted to become more widespread in the very near future. Pending power outages will soon leave neighborhoods without much food ...unless we get creative and take action. Your Edible Yard is a timely, clear, inspiring, and valuable resource for anyone interested in transitioning your yard from lawn to edible garden. Now is the time to create local food security, health, and community connections that help us to thrive.... through organic, locally grown food.

“Govan and Smith trace stages of identity development that they observe in white women as we come to recognize our dual locations in sexist systems that oppress us and racial systems which privilege us. The book is alive with white women’s testimonies on the raw but rewarding work of observing often-hidden power systems. This analysis helps white women with two simultaneous character-forming tasks: healing from wounds of sexism and using the power we get from privilege to weaken racism in ourselves and in the world.”
